PANTOMIME AT EASTER.
EASTER PANTOMIME.
MANAGERIAL PRONULGATION:
At Christmas time business complications compelled the directors to postpone their usual
"CHRISTMAS ANNUAL."
thus depriving a large class of theatre-goers of that LIGHT and PLEASING CLASS of ENTERTAINMENT which had from childhood's days been looked forward to as the most AGREEABLE MENTAL PABULUM of that FESTIVE SEASON.
Being desirous of pleasing all classes of their patrons Messrs. WILLIAMSON, GARNER, and MUSGROVE have determined to take advantage of the opportunity presented by the forthcoming
EASTER HOLIDAYS
to
PLACE A PANTOMIME upon the STAGE of the THEATRE ROYAL
on a scale of
COMPLETENESS far in ADVANCE of all PREVIOUS PRODUCTIONS.
CHRISTMAS PANTOMIME at EASTER reads like a STARTLING INNOVATION, and seems a bold experiment; but there are many reasons why it should PROVE SUCCESSFUL,
the cool and pleasant Autumn evenings will enable young and old to ENJOY the PERFORMANCE in far greater comfort than during the sweltering heat of Midsummer.
At the present time the Directors are able to bring together a
MOST POWERFUL COMPANY,
and to secure
A GREAT NUMBER
of
SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS,
the whole forming a
COMBINATION OF UNEQUALLED STRENGTH.
Under these circumstances the Directors announce with every confidence as their EASTER ATTRACTION
the
GORGEOUS PANTOMIME
SINBAD THE SAILOR;
or,
Tished the Tailor.
The good fairy, the wicked ogre, and the little old man of the sea.
GREAT CAST, MAGNIFICENT SCENERY. SUPERB DRESSES.
A SPECIAL FEATURE
will be the
FIRST APPEARANCE IN AUSTRALIA
of
Miss EDITH BLANDE,

Mr. W. E. ROYCE.

Mr. JOHN COURLAY.

HOUSE AND ESTATE FOR PRIVATE SALE, GOULBURN, NEW SOUTH WALES.

The well-known Property ROSSIVILLE, of about 1200 Acres, highly improved, watered throughout by 2¾ miles of the Wollondilly River, situated within a few minutes drive of the City of Goulburn, which it immediately adjoins as its boundary line.

The soil is limestone and whinstone, the best for agricultural and pastoral uses, and is simply unsurpassable for dairying purposes and horsebreeding.

This truly English-like home is in excellent order, and possesses all the requirements of a beautiful residence in the healthiest of climates. The Improvements, together with the Grounds and Plantations, represent the labours, skill, and capital expended thereon for above 60 years past, and the whole represents exceptionally rare beauty in its features of landscape gardening.

The House, of stone and brick, slated, contains with other rooms, a magnificent hall; drawing-room, 30ft. by 20ft.; dining-room, 26ft. 6in. in length; stables of massive hewn stone to accommodate 8 or 12 horses, kitchen, store, and other rooms of similar material; a circular reservoir 100ft. diameter for supply of water from river by large windmill pump with 9 hydrants, besides tanks for dairy, horse, stables, and garden, &c.

The improvements are complete for the luxury of a charming home, while the property, the largest area obtainable so near Goulburn, commands a high value for capitalists, squatters, dairymen, and dealers in stock, from its immediate proximity to the principal central stock sale market in the South.

The House and Improvements can be sold with from 800 acres to 1200 acres, as may be agreed upon.

As a Gentleman's or Family Residence Rossiville is perfect, nothing in this colony so truly represents the retired and lovely English home.

FOR SALE.

The undersigned have received instructions to SELL all that LAND comprised in R.S. 5076, 5090, 5091, 5092, 5093, 16,973, 16,974, 19,613, consisting of 244 acres, all of which is COAL-BEARING.

This property is situated about ten miles from SPRINGFIELD, and is connected with this township by a capital road.

The COAL from the property has been tested at the various foundries and smithies in Christchurch, and has proved to be of excellent quality for steam and welding purposes, as well as for household use.

As the property is so close to Springfield, which is only 44 miles from Christchurch, and is connected thereto by rail, it must be of very great value in the immediate future, and a grand opportunity now presents itself to syndicators to acquire a coal-bearing property at a moderate price, and which at small cost can be opened up.

TYPHOID FEVER.

Among the thousand ills that flesh is heir to, typhoid fever seems at present to be claiming the majority of victims. It is necessary to say but little with respect to this disease, by which so many colonials are yearly taken away. It has formed the subject of numerous medical exhortations, and a still larger number of newspaper articles. The disease still remains with us, and the unfortunate part of the affair is that many of those who fall victims are persons who endeavour to comply, so far as their knowledge goes, with the conditions of life which would ensure immunity from it. No man can be expected to be his "brother's keeper," and, moreover, no man can be expected to know what his neighbour is doing. Thus the most careful and cleanly person may have living next door to him someone who is altogether regardless of the commonest requirements of sanitation. Typhoid germs are prevalent in all defective drains and sewer pipes, and if our systems are in a low condition the germs are easily impregnated. How many of those among us are in a condition favourable for the germs of disease to take effect in, is demonstrated by the large numbers stricken with, and those who die from, typhoid fever every week. Why not then take every precaution by fortifying the system with the use of Warner's Safe Cure, so as to render the danger of contagion almost impossible. In recommending this great remedy we offer the following from grateful colonials, who speak of its efficiency:—

The Rev. William Campbell, Presbyterian minister, of South Dunedin, N. Z., writes, June 6th, 1888:—"Warner's Safe Cure has very often been brought under my notice as a specific for kidney, liver, and general debility. I know of several instances of protracted suffering, where a cure has been effected through the agency of this medicine."

Mr. H. E. Shacklock, proprietor of the South End Foundry, Dunedin, N. Z., writes, June 7th, 1888:—"For three years prior to the taking of Warner's Safe Cure and Warner's Safe Pills, I had an attack of headache every three or four days, which would last from six to twenty-four hours with more or less violence. I found relief from the first dose. I took altogether six bottles of Warner's Safe Cure, and two vials of Warner's Safe Pills. I have not taken any for ten months, and during that time have not had an attack."

Mr. R. Green, keeper of the Keppel Bay Lightship, writes from Rockhampton, Q., June 5, 1888:—"Ten years ago my work obliged me to pass the greater part of the night in an open boat off the coast of Peru, and as a result I contracted a very severe kidney complaint. But it was not until two years ago, when getting completely drenched, that the disease became clearly manifest to me, accompanied by inflammation of the bladder, causing a painful cessation of urine. I tried several remedies without permanent relief, until last October, when I obtained Warner's Safe Cure and Warner's Safe Pills. I derived great benefit from taking two bottles, but it was not until I had taken twenty bottles of Warner's Safe Cure, and twelve vials of Warner's Safe Pills, that I felt the disease was surely overcome. Two months ago I passed a small round substance the size of a swan shot, and in addition I have got rid of a large amount of sandy or gritty substance."

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

My recollections of the stage date no further back than 1875. But, perhaps, they are all the better for this, as the various events in histrionic art, of which I have been a sympathetic observer, will be the more readily recalled to the public mind. Again, although my career as a critic of the drama has not been lengthy in years, it has been fruitful in experience and rewarded with recognition. I may, indeed, lay claim to as great and varied a knowledge of the theatre, in all its aspects, both past and present, as any living man. There is not a single circumstance of any note in the history of plays and players, from the opening, by Sir William Davenant, of the theatre in Lincoln's Inn Fields, in 1662, until the last revival of "Macbeth," at the Lyceum, with which I am unacquainted. And my personal knowledge of all concerning the stage of to-day is, like that of Samuel Weller in connection with London, "extensive and peculiar." The English provincial theatres, once the training ground and birthplace of our best actors, have fallen from their high estate and become mere vehicles for the display of the varieties of travelling companies, before my very eyes. On the other hand, I have seen the drama in London take its position, thanks in no small degree to the genius of Henry Irving, as, not only an amusement for the people, but as a valuable and interesting instructor. I have witnessed and criticised every play produced in London from 1880 to 1889, and have studied the best efforts of the art of the greatest French, German, and Italian actors. It has also been my lot to attend the performances of the most noted American players, "Rip Van Winkle" Jefferson, Edwin Booth, Lawrence Barrett, Augustin Daly's company, Fanny Davenport, and, last but not least, Mary Anderson, nearly all of whom I have seen in America. Of some of the players that I have seen it is my privilege to speak on the present occasion. Whatever else may be conceded me, it will at least be allowed that I speak "as one with authority."

The most prominent and entirely successful actor of the present day is deserving of his fame. Henry Irving has always recognised the principle that if any thing is worth while doing at all, it is worth while doing well. He has always been thoroughly in earnest and he has ever given the public the best work of which he was capable. His intellect is bright and powerful and he was more than fortunate in entering upon his career at a time when acting meant, above all things, hard work. During his first two years and a half on the stage, he appeared in no less than 428 characters. This is 270 characters more than Charles Macklin (1690-1797) acted in his life time, and 335 more than David Garrick (1716-1779) played altogether. Now that stock companies are abolished in England, such an experience as this is impossible for an actor at home; here, in Australia, the constant change of bill gives him more practice than he can obtain in the mother country, and such practice is invaluable to him. The conditions of theatrical work for the beginner are eminently superior in Australia to those in Great Britain, and conducive to good work. The period is not very remote when Australia will be able to send out quite as good actors as she can draw from England. Nothing tends to make a man's work good and admirable more than hard work, for it teaches him to be earnest. Mr. Irving is the most earnest man I know, and he is also incomparably the most intellectual. An actor requires a certain amount of physique, but he must also have brains. Mr. Irving does not always appear, at first sight, to be the man he is playing; but his acting is so full of thought that mind soon triumphs over matter. He understands perfectly how to give a play its entire value and significance. He not only thinks for himself, but for everyone else. In the grouping of the various characters and crowds on the stage he is not excelled by the much-vaunted Saxe-Meinengen company. He, of course, has the best scenic artists at his disposal, he can employ an Alma-Tadema to design his costumes, and he can afford to risk a fortune on the production of a single piece. But all this would be nothing without a master mind which, happily, Mr. Irving possesses. He is also fortunate in his coadjutor, Ellen Terry, who is gifted with a rare and alluring personality. As an actress, pure and simple, Mrs. Kendal has no rival. But she is mechanical and self-conscious. She always impresses you with the idea that she is acting. On the other hand Ellen Terry is spontaneous and natural, hence her great popularity in England and America. So that it will be seen that Mr. Irving is possessed of the best incentives and aids to noble achievements. But it has not always been so. His early days were full of privation concealed under a would-be careless demeanour. It may interest visitors to the Criterion Theatre here at present to know that he was the original Digby Grant in the production of "Two Roses" at the Vaudeville, London, on June 4, 1870. His impersonation of the vain, shallow, pompous, shifty old father was quite admirable. (I saw Mr. Irving in the character on December 26, 1881, when he revived the play at the Lyceum.) It was during the first run of Albery's pretty comedy that, on the 291st night, he recited "The Dream of Eugene Aram," and gave the first inkling of that tragic power which, a few months later, was destined to draw all London to see his acting as the conscience-haunted murderer, Mathias, in "The Bells." This was the play in which he elected to open in New York in October, 1883, on the occasion of his first appearance in America, and I well remember the tremendous burst of welcome with which he was greeted as he stepped on the stage of the Star Theatre. His success was immediate and deep. Both artistically and financially, his three tours in the United States have given proof of the admiration with which he is held by our American cousins. I cannot but think that if he is ever induced to visit Australia his success in this country would be equally great.

Another actor who would be popular here is the well-known comedian, John Lawrence Toole. In London, younger and more active rivals have carried off some of his honours, but he is thoroughly appreciated in the provinces, where the word "Toole," displayed on the walls, is a sure sign of crowded houses in the local theatre, so long as "Johnny" Toole, as he is familiarly called, is there. The private life of an actor is hardly anyone's concern but his own; but Toole is noted for his goodness of heart, and now, alas! for his sorrows. I have seen him on a Christmas Day, with the thermometer at freezing-point, and the streets enveloped in a heavy fog, drive many miles in order to give his money and his wit for the benefit of a lot of poor children. Such acts as this are the outcome of pure good nature, and have endeared him throughout his life to his many friends. It is melancholy to reflect that such a man has not a relation left in the world. First to go, not many years ago, was his only son, a promising young barrister. Within the last few months death has robbed him of his only daughter and his wife. Add to this the recent decease of his friend and "right hand," his manager, George Loveday, and it will be felt that he has drunk deep of sorrow. It thus comes about that the representative comedian of England has been pursued by a tragic fate, and is to-day one of the most sorrowful, though resigned, of men. Truly "the clown must joke while his bairns die." Toole would, I feel sure, be liked in Australia, for he is not only the best of men, but a sound actor, and a humorous one, into the bargain.

The drama in London was never in so flourishing a condition as it now is. I have already spoken of Mr. Irving and his influence on the stage. Another influence that has acted favourably on the public mind has been found in the visit to London of Mary Anderson, who has occupied the Lyceum stage during Mr. Irving's tours in America and the provinces. Miss Anderson charms by the nobility of her appearance and the grace of her movements. Her style is cold and classical, but she interests, nevertheless, and draws the populace by her beauty and simplicity. Her success lies in her personality, so that she succeeds from the same cause as Ellen Terry, but in a different degree, inasmuch as the English actress is warmth and impulsiveness in all she does, whereas the fair American is statuesquely grand and studied in her every tone and gesture. The posturing of Galatea in Mr. W. S. Gilbert's "Pygmalion and Galatea" becomes Miss Anderson exceedingly well; but, to my thinking, Ellen Terry is at her best in the brilliancy and raillery of Shakespeare's Beatrice. The one actress is measured in style and inclined to be tragic; the other is freedom itself, and as light as air. Now, I do not think Miss Terry is at all well fitted in Lady Macbeth; she is too willowy and weak for the character. On the other hand, it is a part which would suit Miss Anderson exactly.

The Australian theatres vie very favourably with the London ones. Of course there is nothing so vast here as Her Majesty's Theatre, Haymarket, or the Theatres Royal, Covent Garden and Drury Lane. There is nothing to compare with the sombre grandeur of the Lyceum or the handsomeness of the Lyric, a new theatre built out of the fortunes of "Dorothy." Nor, happily, are any of the chief theatres here so extremely inconvenient as the Vaudeville. But, as a general rule, they are excellent buildings, in my opinion, and well adapted for their purpose. There is a mania for building playhouses in London at present. Shaftesbury-avenue, a new thoroughfare running from Bloomsbury to Piccadilly Circus, already possesses two theatres, one recently built for Miss Wallis, and now closed, the other being the Lyric; while Mr. R. d'Oyly Carte, the manager of the Gilbert-Sullivan operas, is building yet a third. Mr. Gilbert has erected a theatre for Mr. John Hare, which is about to be opened; and Mr. Edward Terry, an exceptionally able comedian, is the proprietor of a new and handsome house in the Strand. Mr. Augustus Harris, lessee of Drury Lane, and most energetic and enterprising of modern managers, contemplates an elaborate playhouse, to be built from his own designs and on entirely new principles. It must be borne in mind that each new theatre is an improvement in one respect or another upon its immediate predecessor. It would, therefore, be idle to contend that colonial theatres are equal to those at home. They, at least, may be voted quite as good as most English theatres, and they are better than many London ones. They possess, moreover two advantages over English theatres. The ground floor being devoted entirely to stalls, the playgoer can have a better seat for less cash than in London, and the result is that the manager frequently gets more money into his house than he would in London. Here you can have the best seat in the theatre for 3s., whereas in London the stalls are half-a-guinea each, and there is practically no pit. In this matter London might take a hint from Australia. The actual seats, too, are comfortable ones, and far in advance of the rude bench which is so often found in the playhouse of the "big city."

It will be gathered from the foregoing remarks that I consider that the Australian play-goers—they who come to see the play and not to be seen—have a distinct advantage over the theatre-going public in London in the low price for which they can witness a performance. This benefit extends also to the actors. In London, people mostly go to the theatre as a fashion, to be seen more than to see. The result is, that many actors become slovenly in their art. Here such an event is not possible. The stalls in the Australian theatres represent the pit in the days gone by—that pit which was at once both judge and jury. "The pit rose at him" in its pleasure, one reads of Edmund Kean when applause at his acting literally shook the walls of "old Drury." In London, the pit is now a mere nothing, and, on first nights especially, the ground floor of the house is filled with newspaper men and friends of the management. The same remark applies to the dress circle, and, as a consequence, the people who ought to judge the play are not present. In London, as elsewhere, there are honest critics indeed, but they are very few and far between. The majority of the writers there are the servants of the proprietors of the papers, who consider the question of advertisements more than their duty in guiding the public. It thus frequently happens that a so-called critic becomes nothing more or less than a mere canvasser for advertisements. If a play can by any means be called good, it is praised to the skies provided that the manager spends a deal of money in advertising in the columns of the papers. With the same proviso, a bad piece is treated very leniently. There are critics—heaven save the mark!—who go still further, and demand black-mail from the managers. For instance, before me as I write, lies a copy of a letter written by the present assistant-editor of a well-known theatrical publication, the editor of which is the dramatic critic on an important London daily paper. The writer suggests that the manager in question should advertise at so much a month in the particular publication, and he sends his letter on the eve of the manager's production. With his letter he encloses his card, on which he is described as belonging to five periodicals, including The Observer, an old-established and respectable Sunday paper, The Referee, a Sunday paper of large circulation, The Stage, a weekly theatrical paper, and The Lady's Pictorial. I am happy to think that such a case as this is rare, and I only quote this example to prove that criticism in the English capital is not always honest. The London critic is too often the servant of the actor, not his master, and the public is led like a flock of sheep by the false writer. It thus falls out that many a bad play and many an indifferent actor are accorded inordinate praise, and the actor becomes inflated with false pride. The injury done to the public is considerable, but the real sufferer is the actor. His old training ground—the stock companies of the provinces—has vanished. He has no real work to do, and he is being constantly patted on the back, and made much of. He is chosen, not to act a part, but because a certain part is fitted to his peculiarities, and when he has "played" that part a couple of hundred nights or so, he not only has not gained in the art he professes, but he has positively retrograded. Here, at any rate, he has an honest judge in the public, and with this advantage over his fellow in England, he combines that of the necessity of acting, to the best of his ability, in many and diverse characters. His experience will tell in the end, and the cry that is already rife among those in England who have the interests of the drama at heart—the cry, "Where will our actors of the future come from?"—will be answered from Australia. The actor in England has but little opportunity of exercising either intellect, facial expression, voice, or gesture.

This reminds me that in the display of the latter two qualities the actor who has most impressed me is the Italian tragedian, Salvini. His voice, wonderfully soft and musical, is capable of reaching the lowest tones or the grandest bursts of passion. To hear him in the Senate scene in "Othello" is like listening to waves of sound from the finest cathedral organ, welled out with the most delicate touch that imagination can conceive. He is gifted with a splendidly sonorous and melodious voice, which long practice has taught him how to use. Again, I have seen no other actor who has such perfect grace in the movement of hand and arm. In "Civil Death," a doleful play, he once moved me intensely by a single gesture. The scene represented was, briefly, where a father is denied his own child. Instead of bursting into hysterical weeping, or ranting, as an English actor would do in a similar situation, he sat down, as though quite overmastered by suppressed grief. Two tears trickled down his face, and he put his hand to his eyes in order to hide those tears with such an ineffable grace and such a load of pathos in the action that the large audience was itself reduced to tears, and to feeling the situation as deeply as did the actor. In voice and gesture, Salvini is unsurpassed on either the English or American stage. In fact, I do not know his equal on any stage whatever, either English or foreign, in these respects. A. B.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

SOME OF OUR WOMEN.

The types of women we come across in our every-day life are, of course, manifold. But, looking at them broadly, and in the aggregate, we might roughly divide them into two classes—men's women, and women's women. A man's woman—that is to say, one who lays herself out especially for the amusement and admiration of the opposite sex—too often to the neglect and at the expense of her own—is a species of being that plays a very large and prominent part in social life everywhere. She is generally more or less pretty—cela va sans dire. Hence her power. She dresses fashionably, with a dash of audacity and coquetry in her style, that the masculine mind calls "piquante" and the feminine "fast." In evening dress, if she has a pair of white shoulders and pretty arms, she draws such a fine line between indecency and simple fashion, that she generally manages, somehow, to give the former the advantage. She has a sufficient smattering of accomplishments to make her pass muster in a drawing-room, and if she doesn't read books she reads reviews of anyone that is being specially talked about and makes plenty of show with her very small capital of knowledge, and her special gift of adapting to her own use other people's brains. She is very demonstrative and conciliatory to her own sex, in the short intervals she can spare from conquering the other; so amiable that, for the life of them, they can't succeed in positively disliking her when under the influence of her immediate presence. She knows very well, you may be sure, the worth of the old French adage that it is easier to catch flies with sugar than with vinegar. But she doesn't waste much time in catching flies, or moths either, but those of the masculine gender—life is too short for such an unexciting form of amusement. Her women acquaintances—even those who, won by her clever flattery, and general adaptability, conceive an ephemeral sort of liking for her—do not trust her. They seem to prefer, when their husbands, or lovers, or brothers are being exposed to the attacks of her bewitching airs and glances, to hang round, somewhere, within sight and hearing, in the hope of turning these arrows barbed with sweetness in another direction, or of neutralising their influence in some way. They are not jealous, of course not; only they feel it isn't fair to expose the poor fellow to such terrible temptation, for, after all, men are weak on such points, and a pretty woman disposed to flirt a little; well, they can't be so positively unchivalrous as to disregard such an invitation. But the worst of it is that she has an uncomfortable way of making these husbands, and lovers and brothers unconsciously dissatisfied with their female relations. She doesn't mean to—oh, dear, no! She doesn't say anything that might be offensive or to their detriment—that course of action would defeat its own end. No, a shrug is enough, or a a titter, or a lifting of the eyebrows, or worse still, the faint praise which is damnation! For she is very quick in acquiring some kinds of knowledge; her fellow-creatures' weak points, for instance, and deftly and cleverly turns them to account.

The woman's woman is a different being altogether. She is soft, and fair, and gentle; no disturbing influence about her. She dresses well, and in the fashion, but aims rather that the style shall be quiet and ladylike and richly simple, than dashing and effective. She likes men very well; but in their proper place—attending to the affairs of the nation or the office, while she looks after the making of the children's summer frocks; and sees that the cook does not use too much butter, when it is so terribly dear. She delights in details of domestic experience; never forgets to ask after your children, and remembers each of their names. Her own children love her dearly; hang round her and tug at her dress; and pull her hair down without getting slapped for it; and all their childish griefs and wrongs are wept out on her sympathetic bosom. Her husband trusts her implicitly, and regards her as a very nice comfortable institution in the scheme of creation for making things work smoothly at home. He loves her, certainly—how could he help loving anybody who never forgets to sew his buttons on, always sees that his dinner is prepared to his liking, and never interferes with a fellow's affairs in any way? Ah, these sweet women have much to answer for after all. They make terrible autocrats; and though men praise them, it is a sad fact that they don't always estimate them at their true worth until the busy hands are still, and the gentle presence gone from the domestic circle altogether. But women love them, and trust them, and confide their most cherished secrets to them. If they are ill, or tired, or in trouble, it is to a friend like one of these they fly for sympathy and help. If they want a recipe for a pudding, or a pattern for a baby's frock, or a touch of the oil of patience and sweet temper to make the domestic wheels run smoothly, it is she who carefully and thoughtfully supplied it. When the body is racked with the agony that only a woman can know and suffer, it is her hand that soothes the hot brow, her voice that gives encouragement and inspires fortitude. When a marriage is to be celebrated, she sheds a placid brightness round happy youth and hope. In sorrow and death, she is there to "weep with those that weep"; and not only to weep, but to spend herself in kind intelligent action if it should be needed. Out in the world she does not attract much notice. Men try to talk with her; but, as she generally maintains a sort of reserve with strangers of the opposite sex, topics of personal interest are soon exhausted, and they go away and say, "Oh, yes, a very nice woman; but insipid, you know!" These are two types of women very largely—perhaps the most largely—represented in modern society. Then we have higher and lower grades of both. For instance, there is a man's woman, who has more mind than the one I have described. She goes in for being intellectual. She likes to gather at her table men of note in the world of art and literature. She does not mind if there are a few neglected wives and children pining away in some little shanty up the mountains, or in a shabby suburb of the busy metropolis. She attacks these men on their most vulnerable side, that of their work and their especial talents; of which she makes a study. She knows, with a woman's intuition, that this will be the most subtle and effective flattery of all. She sees that with the class of man she wishes to conquer mere personal attractions though, as with all men they may go a long way, will not subjugate them entirely. She would like to have a salon, and be an unseen mysterious power in politics, and does her best in that direction. Such women as these are perhaps the highest and most interesting species of the genus man's woman. The lowest. Ah! well, we know too well what the neutral, frivolous, utterly useless lives of some such degenerate into. That of prosperous Magdalens, without the touch of grief, remorse, and humility which made their historic namesake pathetic.

Of the women's women there are many kinds, though the variety is not perhaps so great. The highest and most intelligent type, she is just as admirable as a woman can be. The lowest cannot do anything worse than sink into a mere household drudge, with a soul only just capable of "chronicling small beer."

Then there are many exceptional women that we don't seem to be able to classify. Some splendid beings appear to have every good gift that nature has to offer—beauty of mind and body, a sweet nature, a sincere and loving heart. They are equally loved by both sexes, which is a very rare experience, and can only be accounted for by the fact of their being utterly free from the almost universal weakness of self-consciousness. Then we see some few miserable specimens, who are so wrapped up in serene self-contemplation that they don't take the trouble to get on with anybody. We have the painfully shy woman, who seems to wonder whether she was not encroaching when she ventured to be born at all, and the "brazen hussey," who talks at the very top of her voice, and wonders, for her part, why anybody but herself ever dared to be born.

Life is a curious problem at best. Let our women band together—instead of making it more complicated by their pettiness, their vanity, their desire for social eminence, and their hasty judgment of each other—to cast out from our society all that is uncharitable, all that is impure in sentiment, all that is unreal. And a nobler society than any we have dreamed of yet will be the result.

GIRL-LIFE IN A LONDON STUDIO.

The interesting, amusing, and industrious life led by hundreds of young lady art students in London is a phase of existence of which little is known this side of the world. I should therefore like to chaperon my readers into one of these little centres of activity where so many individualities develop; where so much work, good, bad, and indifferent, is done; where the artistic taste is developed to a very high degree; and where a pleasant and active life is led by those who engage in it. In all the large cities of Europe will be found studios in which women can study art, either as a pastime or with the intention of making it a career. Paris contains many such; Rome, of course, is rich in them: Antwerp, Berlin, Dresden; in fact, wherever the art-seeker enters large cities, there he will find them. Each one forms a little world of its own, having its own interests and characteristics.

Of all parts of London, the neighbourhood of Tottenham Court-road is the one where artists most do congregate, and where studios open their doors to aspiring young artists the most freely. I will conduct my readers to one in Charlotte-street, in the vicinity of Fitzroy-square, in which the writer has passed many a happy hour in the study and pursuit of art.

Imagine one of those early spring mornings peculiar to London. A weakly sun is trying to assert itself. Remnants of yesterday's heavy fog still brood over the city, reluctantly dispersing, however, before the fitful north-east wind which has sprung up, searching the bones and trying the tempers of those who are forced to leave their homes early in the morning to go citywards. It is only 9 o'clock, so we still have time before the advent of the pupils to introduce our readers into the precincts of the studio. A row of gloomy, dirty-looking houses which try loudly to proclaim that they have seen better days, are on our right hand as we walk down Charlotte-street towards Oxford-street. Nay, be patient, that is not the house. A little further. Here we are at last. You are glad to get out of the cutting north-easter? No wonder, your Australian blood shrinks from so merciless a trial of its quality. No need to ring the bell, for during twelve hours of the day the door stands hospitably open to all comers. That large brass plate on the right hand side of the door, bearing the inscription Monsieur L——, Artist's Studio, is the one we are in search of. Let us enter: turn down right and follow a long gloomy passage as far as it goes. On one side of this passage are an auctioneer's offices—stuffy, dirty, and uninviting. The door at which we have at length arrived is more interesting than the others we have passed, for it is painted a dull Egyptian red, picked out with bands of black, with a little artistic scroll work in the corners. Take the key from under the mat, open the door, and enter. A screen and curtain intercept a fuller view of the room and form a little compartment, which serves as a cloak-room. Lift aside the curtain (which, by the way, is very dirty and very artistic), and step into the student's studio. This is a large room about 35ft. square, high, and lighted by a sky-light, across which green or white blinds can be drawn at will. A matted floor and glowing fire impart an air of comfort to the apartment on this chilly and unspringlike morning. The walls are painted on the upper part a sort of gray-blue, on the lower portion is reproduced the Egyptian red of the door. Little of the walls are to be seen at present, however, for they are crowded with studies made by pupils—heads and figures of men, women, and children testifying to all degrees of talent and various stages of progress, from the daub of the beginners to the almost perfect work of the very advanced pupil. A fierce-eyed Italian brandishing a dagger, figures on a dozen canvases. Back views, side views, three-quarters, full-front. A head only, startlingly life-like, glances from one corner of the room. A more ambitious whole-length figure tries to apologise for its absence of anatomy in another. A frightful caricature of the unhappy original smirks from another. The large percentage of mediocre work, lacking originality as well as accurate knowledge or tasteful colouring we will leave out of the question. It is astonishing to what an extent these silent canvases bear witness to the characters of their absent owners. The old man's head for instance, at which we are looking, testified to an enormous amount of conscientiousness in the individual who has painted it, but also to an utter absence of imagination. Now the study next to it, a little sleeping girl thrown with graceful abandon on the ground, bespeaks a poetic and graceful fancy; there are numerous errors in detail, but the charm of innocent childhood is caught and represented with wonderful fidelity. The beauty must have existed in the young artist's mind, for doubtless the little model was a common-place child enough, a plebeian, born and bred, prosaic and unideal in all ways. The true artistic faculty is discerned by the beauty it suggests as existing in the artist's mind apart from the material means employed to express it.

"The artists' part is both to be and do;
Transfixing, with a special central power,
The flat experience of the common man, and turning outward
With a sudden wrench—half ecstasy, half anguish—
The thing he feels the inmost."

Ah! Let us pause before this study. It indicates ambition and no small degree of undeveloped talent. It is the full-length, life-size, semi-nude figure of an heroic-looking man, life-like and impressive. The young maiden who painted it must have heroic thoughts: Achilles, Æneas and Paris, or memories of some such world-famed heroes must have inspired her as she worked silently at her canvas, condensing all she thought and felt into a really good work. Faults are apparent, but they are such as bespeak a generous disposition. The lines are free, even bordering on carelessness; the colouring is rich and lavish, almost recklessly thrown on; the poise of the head is fearless and fine. We are lost in conjecturing who, of all the pupils who will presently arrive, will be most likely to speak herself, by outward appearance, the painter of this in many respects remarkable figure. Whoever she may be we predict a future for her, that is, if she has (as we fear from much slovenly drawing visible, she has not) the dogged perseverance necessary to overcome technical difficulties. Let us pass on to the next study which is a lovely little bit of landscape. This indeed indicates the true artistic feeling. In it we discern fidelity, breadth, poetry, and sentiment, in fact everything that goes to make up the true artist. The subject is a glade in a wood, showing the early morning mists dispersing before an autumnal sun. The sadness of decay breathes from the picture, mingled with a lovely feeling of peace.

Why, here is a piano a good one, too, from the tone. So these damsels are votaries of music as well as painting, apparently; we know that the Muses are often represented hand in hand. Now we pause before a little table piled up with china: cups and saucers of every conceivable pattern, design, and shape huddled pell-mell together. We can only draw one conclusion from such a spectacle. The priestesses of this temple of art evidently indulge in the cup that cheers but does not inebriate. Visions of 5 o'clock tea rise before us. "No, not possible. You never mean to say that these girls work till that hour each day, and that not as a matter of necessity?" Nay, but I do mean to say it. How could such excellent work as that which we have just been examining be anything but the result of long days and weeks of conscientious work and study? It is no hardship to these girls to pass their days working in the cause of the art they love. The frivolities of society have no claims on them; their lives are passed on a higher plane than that which ordinary society occupies. They are in constant communication with all that tends to refine and broaden the mind. Also, amongst the most select coteries of artists, men or women, there is ever that touch of Bohemianism that unfits them for the stereotyped ennui of Vanity Fair. But it strikes 10 o'clock, and the hour of their arrival is at hand. We, being invisible, will not put ourselves out of the way, but watch quietly from our corner, a day of girl-life in a London studio. LIBERTA.

THE ANGLO-AUSTRALIAN EXHIBITION.

SECOND NOTICE.

OILS (Continued).

A. Hacker, Leslie Thompson, Stanhope Forbes, T. B. Kenington, and F. Brown send some very good work out to us. Mr. Hacker's "Motherless" is a picture that bears inspection. It is honest and sympathetic. We can afford to study such pictures as this. It is subdued in tone, while at the same time it lacks nothing in force or interest. It is the work of a man who has his subject entirely in hand, and who plays no tricks to catch attention. The theme is a touching one: a shepherd returning to his home with a bairn in his arms, and another child following demurely behind. There is a sturdy dignity about the figure of the lonely man which sorts well with the general temper of the picture. The hills, the quiet air, the homely scene, are worked with genuine fidelity. There is the same honest simplicity in Stanhope Forbes's "Preparations for the Market." It is a Breton scene. A farmhouse, the yard and buildings, an old woman getting her fowls into the basket, and a young girl interested in the preparations, with a couple of figures in the background, this comprises it. The picture is not a very attractive one. It does not claim interest at once. It is too homely and sturdy in its intention. But the work is faithful, well balanced, strong, and restrained. The details are well handled and proportionate. It is scarcely likely, however, that the picture will be popular; it has not all the qualities to gain popularity. But it is good for all that. Leslie Thompson's "Brickfield, Southend," is an evening landscape of many fine qualities. The sky is mellow and serene, the common is a deep warm green, and the figures of the woman and child in the foreground are well drawn. The picture has a fine, generous tone, and there is a rare sympathy with nature in it. It is subdued, but graceful, and well-contrasted in design. T. B. Kenington's "School" is provokingly uneven. The face of one of the children is exquisitely painted. It is eloquent, luminous, and tender. There is also a fine touch in one or two of the other child-faces; but the artist seems to have spent himself upon this part of the picture, and to have lost his deftness with the remainder. He might well "throw away the worser part of it, and live the better with the other half." The theme is a sympathetic one, and Mr. Kenington has sympathy. He does not fail in design; he fails in touch and colour in places. "School" will be popular. F. Brown's "Playground" has considerable merit. Children are at play upon a public road or bridge. Two are swinging a skipping rope; one is preparing to skip, and the rest are watching her, save one little child whose attention is given to a dog, and a man who leans idly over the parapet in the background. It is impossible, in spite of the good work in the picture, to resist a feeling that suggests bareness about the scene, and the skipping-rope is an irritation; it looks rather like a seam drawn over the picture than a rope. But the figures are well arranged, and the colouring is good. We have not to go far to find far worse pictures.

Miss E. Armstrong, T. G. Gotch, R. Goff, W. Llewellyn, A. W. Strutt, T. Roussel, and J. Aumonier have pictures of varied merit on view. It must be said of Miss Armstrong that her work is eloquent, tender, and strong. She has a rare gift for colour and composition. Her "Firelight Reflections" is a little gem; and her "A Duet" and "Shavings" are not far behind in merit. There is a luminous and deep quality in her colouring, which is after its kind as good as that of Mr. King and Mr. Bromley. T. G. Gotch's "Consent" has no extraordinary claim to interest. There is some good quiet work in it, but we cannot escape the fact that the story, whatever it is, is not very well told. The girl's face is well lighted, the figures are well drawn, and the painting of the table is capital, but the picture is common-place for all that.

Mr. Goff's "Gathering in the Harvest" and "Harvest Time, Kent," are tame and mechanical. There is little stir of nature about them. They seem like study pictures—potboilers, if the term may be used. "Folkestone Fish Market" is better. The ships and houses are carefully done, but the water is wooden and heavy. There is a lack of freedom and vitality in the work. W. Llewellyn does some promising painting. He has a certain amount of freedom and originality, of warmth and sympathy. This is to be seen, however, chiefly in one picture, "Hillside and Village Green." "A Tribute to Flora" is stiff and dull and Mr. Llewellyn succeeds better at landscapes. A. W. Strutt is a faithful workman, but very conventional. "A Passing Fancy" has some good quality in colour and arrangement, and "Chelsea Prisoners" is not without merit in expression, but "There's Life in the Old Dog Yet" is a poor bit of stuff; it is mechanical and ineffective. J. Roussel is original. His "Bathers" has a Burnes-Jonesish quality. It is a dim "Symphony" in blue, in which are slightly bluish maidens well drawn and shapely. There is merit, but peculiarity, in Mr. Roussel's work, and that peculiarity might be termed, without being unjust, affectation. His portrait of Mrs. Mempes is bizarre almost. The figure of the lady, clothed in black velvet, and given a heavy shadow all round it, is placed against a deep red background. If there was a dash and brilliancy in the work this might be overlooked as the vagaries of genius: it appears to be, however, a canny attempt to gain notoriety—a notoriety which Mr. Roussel has gained in certain fashionable circles in London. Other names, such as J. S. Hill, J. Aumonier, E. F. Brewtnall, F. Bourdillon, P. Thomas, J. Huybers, T. Bramley, P. Craft, Chevalier Taylor, C. B. Yates, and H. Garston, appear here and there in the collection. Of these Mr. Hill claims, perhaps, the most favourable attention. He has had at least the modesty to send but one picture called "Leigh Essex." It has good points. Mr. Hill has a bold and free touch without having good ideas of proportion and balance. The foreground of the picture is well done, the background is dull and turgid. Freedom has degenerated here into a license, and what was meant to be firm and bold is impotent. There is good colour and genuine intention in his work, but that after all is only the beginning of an artist's work. Mr. Garston sends five pictures, which, if they are to be considered proof of his power, show him to be a fair journeyman, and not much more. "To Wait for an Answer," is quaint and genial; and "From Door to Door" has a touch of real pathos; and for the rest let there be silence. J. Aumonier's "Football" is a thing of rather more than photographic merit. There is some good colour, but the picture lacks animation and manliness. "Beccle's Suffolk" is something better. P. Thomas's "The Old Sketch Book" lies within the limits of faithful drawing and truthful feeling. J. Huyber's "A Paris Soup Kitchen" is a mechanical attempt, and C. B. Yate's "Wanted a Governess" is chiefly notable for some good decorative work. Mr. Bramley's "Weaving a Chain of Grief" might have been called "A Daisy Chain" with as much truth. It is far in effect from a chain of grief. A black dress is prepared for the lady who weaves the chain among fallen leaves, but there is nothing to denote sorrow. If the lady is sad she bears it bravely. The painting has merit in matter of colour and tone, but it does not tell the story. P. Craft might have cut out all of his picture "Dollie's Toilet," save the child's face, without loss. This face is fairly well done. But one is struck with amazement that such pictures should be brought into competition with the work of such capable artists as we have amongst us. We are not benighted enough to relish this kind of work, nor yet that of Mr. Bourdillon, who has not even the merit of being a fairly decent draughtsman. Mr. E. F. Brewtnall's "Confidences" is a bit of artificial work fit for engraving for a Young Ladies' Journal. It has nothing but pretty colour to make it endurable. Chevalier Taylor's "Not Lost but Gone Before" is an ambitious painting of some little value. It has fairly good composition, but the drawing is very indifferent.

THE WATER COLOURS.

Mr. Hood, Mr. Bromly, Mr. Weedon, Mr. Cooke, Mr. Bishop, Mr. Walton, Mr. Moore, and Mr. Ingram furnish some good water colours. Mr. Hood's "In Summer Time" is a small picture, but it has the merit of a good oil. It bears the impress of the same talent as "The Triumph of Spring"—his splendid oil. Two nude figures lounge upon the margin of a stream. There is an air of languid summer weather upon the scene and about is the moist coolness of wood and glade. There are firm graceful lines in the figures, and though the colouring of the flesh of the figures might be considered extravagant, in some particulars there can be no doubt about the fidelity of the artist. He is essentially romantic, and he has the power to carry out his ideas. The palm in water-colours must, however, be given to Mr. Bromley. His "Bettwys-y-Coed" is a most admirable thing. It has all the firm, deep, eloquent quality of an oil. It is only in the sky that there appears the lightness and the fragile quality of the water-colour. Full of rich tone and warm atmosphere the picture has a glamour which makes it popular at once. Of all the water colours it is the most attractive. His "Criccieth, North Wales" has the same fine qualities, though not a great picture; and "The Meadow Stream" and "Snowdon," though subjects far apart—the one being bright and luxuriant in colour, the other sombre—have distinct value. Mr. Weedon's "After a Shower" is a fine picture. It is almost a smaller edition of Graham's "Rising Mists" in the national collection of the Art Gallery. The artist sustains his reputation in this picture. It also has all the strength and impressiveness of an oil. The handling is confident and broad, the colour is exquisite, and the brawling stream that runs between the hills is full of life. We could well afford to keep such pictures among us. His "A Breezy Day on the Coast" is good. There is grip and action in the work, and the picture hangs well together. There is no waste of labour in it, no want of sympathy with the subject. "Loch Marie" and "On the South Coast" are not so good, but still they are not without genuine worth. Mr. Cooke sends a little thing called "The Madonna del Lasso Locarno." Slightly conventional it still has much merit. It is bright, well drawn, and effective in colour, and delicate in tone. Mr. Bishop is represented by three pictures—"Appledore Devon," "Frosty Morning, Burnham," and "Under the Birch Trees." The second has some excellent qualities. There is something more than beauty in Mr. Bishop's work, there is fine simplicity, but these pictures cannot be considered good examples of his style and merits. Mr. Moore's "Poole Harbour" is a vigorous piece of work, and possesses that confident and restrained force that characterises the one oil which he has in the exhibition. It cannot be said to be a taking picture: it is too cold for that, but it is faithfully handled, and is above the conventional. Mr. Ingram is represented by eight water-colours, the best of which are "Drift Boats fishing by Moonlight," Falmouth Harbour," and "Surf at St Ives." The last is the most forcible of the three; the second is likely to be the most popular. Mr. Ingram's work is not striking; it is consistent, careful, and genial. He does not succeed well at figure work, and there is little of the dramatic in his style. He works with a quiet, intelligent, and sympathetic hand, and he throws some generous elements into his colouring. He possesses no dash, no brilliancy, but he composes well, and his ideas are refined and poetical. Were "Falmouth Harbour" not so formal it would be a fine picture. Into the "Surf at St Ives" our artist has thrown more vigour and given more life than he has done in some other of his sea-scapes.

Mr. Symons, whose "Black-eyed Susan" possesses such considerable merit, sends one water-colour called "The Abbey Mill, Chertsey." It is fairly good stuff. It is not as well valued as it might be, but it is kind in tone and simple in treatment. The water is well handled. Mr. C. Robertson's "In the Turkish Bazaar" is an excellent piece of work. The scene is very similar to the "Turkish Bazaar" in our national collection. It, however, is not so large and not so varied and rich in colouring. Mr. Robertson is not formal. He puts freshness and feeling into his labour. Mr. Walton's work is disappointing. We know what reputation entails, but it would seem that Mr. Walton has taxed the faith of the public rather severely in his present contributions. "Barrel Rock Bude" is the best of the three he sends, but if he presented no better work for the consideration of the public he would scarcely be a worthy competitor for several among us here who have yet to win a name. His "Church Cove" is a careless and bodiless creation. Mr. Goff's "Study of a Head" is a good bit of work, but "A London Flower Girl" is better. This is a genuine and delightful thing. There is luminousness and delicacy in the tone, and the picture tells the story with much impressiveness. There is the work of an artist in the face, an artist who has feeling, refinement, and originality. Mr. Morgan sends four pictures of varying quality. "Goodbye, Sweetheart," has some wealth of colour, but it lacks in design, and the figures are without character or feeling. "A Street in Algiers" is an improvement. The drawing is good, and there is also good work in the edifices. The picture, however, wants lighting up; it is cold. "Two old Cronies" is quaint and genial and tells its story well, and there is also fairly good work in "I'm going a Milking, Sir,"—in the face particularly. Mr. Gotch's "A Cornish Shelter," is a pretty little thing, but pretty little things may be got with less of function and impressiveness than attends the launching of the Anglo-Australian Exhibition. "A Cornish Maid," by the same hand, may be reckoned after the same fashion.

Mr. Dawson contributes five pictures. If one took one's cue from "The Commissariat Department" and "A Lincolnshire Water Mill," Mr. Dawson would have short shrift. But "After the Day's Work," and "Feeding Time" show his ability in a better light. The last of them merits some praise. It is well composed, and is bright and sympathetic. While not a clever colourist, Mr. Dawson draws very well, and if he but had a faculty for telling his story he might chance upon ready markets for his wares. He makes no very strong appeal for patronage in what he has sent to this exhibition. Mr. Watson's "St. Paul's Cathedral" has merit. It is lucid even in its subdued tone, and has character. The work is carefully balanced and well set, and the colour is good. Mr. Hern is well known to Australians. His work may always be counted on as safe and genuine. He is faithful and temperate, if conventional. Lacking breadth or dignity he still has refinement and delicacy. He devotes himself to softness and harmony in colour, and he succeeds to the margin of his intention. Mr. Strutt's "More, More, More" and "The Garrotter" is neither one thing nor the other. It has decorative qualities, but it pretends to something else. His effects are fantastic. Mr. M'Intosh is a careful workman, who does not offend, but neither does he charm. His landscapes are conventional, and with that enough is said. Mr. Huyber's "Blind Boy Basket Mending" needs mending badly. Mr. Brewtnall's "Thro' the Storm" is pretty and quiet, but the storm is a myth. Altogether, it must be said that this Exhibition cannot pretend to be a great one. It is made notable by but one or two great names of the many that are familiar to all art students, and it has but one or two great pictures. Still its office is a worthy one, and we should give it cordial support.

UNIVERSITY MATRICULATION EXAMINATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Allow me to correct an error in your "analysis" of the honours gained in this examination, published in your issue of Wednesday.

You credit the Newcastle Grammar School with one classical honour—second class. We sent in only one candidate; but our representative, J. P. Pickburn, was second in the first class of classical honours.

I am, &c., H. S. MILLARD.

The Grammar School, Newcastle, April 11.

WAUGH'S Baking Powder obtained the only first-class award for highest degree of merit. Waugh's Baking Powder is the best.—[ADVT.]

FUGITIVE NOTES.

Appeals through the papers to the public for sympathy are numerous and varied, but one is seldom seen of so touching a character as that of a "Roller Skater," published a few days ago. The appellant describes himself as a good skater, and admits that he has had the pleasure of skating with many ladies; but, alas! the pleasure is marred by the fact that his hands are decorated rainbow-fashion for weeks afterwards. At one time (it is to be supposed) he wonders whether he is suffering from jaundice. At another, contemplating his palms, he feels desperately in the blues. He cannot sleep for the prismatics. Rose colour is not fashionable, and he seldom has the chance of a sensation of relief. Poor man! But, after all, he has only colourable ground for complaint. Why does he not wash and be clean? The secret of the whole matter is that while the ladies wear gloves, he does not. If he had only published his name and address he would have been buried before now beneath a heap of Pears' soap, tablets, and pumice stone. On further consideration the thought suggests itself that the real grievance lies on the ladies' side. If they stain his hands, does not he at least contribute to the spoiling of their gloves? Another correspondent has suggested that the publication of such a complaint, and the recent serious discussion about evening dress give evidence of increasing frivolity, and show that some at least of our people have not the highest aims always before them. This is true. It is impossible to over-estimate the good that many of us gain by being obliged to work for our living.

"All's well that ends well." There were storm-clouds hanging over Adelaide the other day when it seemed probable that a hitch would occur in the ceremonies for the reception of the Earl of Kintore. The question was one of precedence. Who were to go first, the Mayor and Aldermen or members of Parliament, Knights and Honorables? Happily the clouds have dispersed, and the proceedings in the Town Hall when his Excellency was sworn-in were distinguished by harmony and enthusiasm. This is not the first time in the history of the world that difficulties have arisen out of points of precedence. What is, perhaps, most worthy of notice is the cordiality of the Governor's reception. Not long ago in Adelaide, and elsewhere, the Governor question seemed likely to become a cause of trouble. No one could tell whether it would be settled without involving the break-up of the Empire. But the appearance of the Earl, like the rising sun, dispersed all mists and shadows. It is easy to see that separation would cut us off not only from the Empire, but also from the chance of getting Earls to rule over us. It is not to be forgotten that years ago, when Lord Dufferin was Governor-General of Canada, and there was a sharply-contested presidential election in the United States, he expressed some trepidation about crossing the border, because there seemed to be a danger of his being carried off and made President nolens volens. A jest, to be worth anything, must have a substratum of serious truth to rest upon; and Lord Dufferin's joke was not altogether a bad one.

The Attorney-General informed the Legislative Council a few days ago that "the impression that it was the aim of the Government in establishing country rifle clubs to aid in creating good rifle shots was not a correct one." It is pleasing to hear this. When you are out shooting with some men, it is a wise precaution to ascertain what they are aiming at, because you can go in that direction with an assurance of safety. There may be some reason for expecting the rifle clubs to contribute to markmanship, now that we are officially assured that nothing of the kind was thought of by the Government in forming them. But there remains one little difficulty to be disposed of. If this was not the aim of the Government, what was intended? There are mysteries in the official world which are unfathomable to the uninitiated. Perhaps if a correspondence were begun and followed up in the usual circumlocutory manner, it might be found before the close of the year that the action of the Government was taken with some definite purpose. Meanwhile we must rest content with the knowledge that the purpose in view was certainly not the very natural one which nine people out of ten would assume to have been entertained by the Government.

The City Council has resolved that "the convergence of roadways at Church-hill be hereafter known and called Grosvenor-square." Without an inspection of the surveyor's plan upon which the resolution was founded, it is not quite certain whether Church-hill has or has not been utterly abolished. But if it has been, is there not rather more than a trace of official vandalism in making this change? Charlotte-place we know, and Church-hill we know. We have known them of old. But what is Grosvenor-square to us in Sydney? For us the new name is without association or tradition, and the alteration of the nomenclature of a spot which by many is regarded as of historic interest is an act of obeisance to the Grosvenor Hotel, which was not in existence five years ago. Progress is one good thing; reform is another; but restless, fidgety, capricious change is not a good thing. Why obliterate old landmarks? Grosvenor-square has an aristocratic sound; but if that influenced the aldermen they made a mistake. They would have taken higher ground by cultivating "the repose of Vere de Vere."

The Natural History Association had a brave outing at Watson's Bay a few days ago. Some sea urchins and sea spiders were found, and their peculiarities described. The former appear to be—as their name, indeed, implies—veritable marine larrikins. Like the latter, they are hard to catch, and useless when caught. This is a very common characteristic of urchins, both on land and water. A curious feature about these droll creatures—the sea specimens—is that they are stuck all over with spikes, like a hedgehog, so that when they go visiting they appear as if walking on stilts. A remarkable thing that seems to run through all animated nature is that while one species devises the most ingenious plans for catching and eating its neighbours, the latter adopt methods equally ingenious to avoid being caught and eaten. As they cannot always avoid being surprised, they seem to have worked out the problem of how to surprise their captors too, by rendering themselves as indigestible as possible. This is done in a variety of ways, sometimes with sharp fins, and sometimes with bony protuberances that disagree with all but the soundest appetites. The spike development, however, possesses such obvious advantages, that in the course of ages it will probably become general. There is a certain amount of satisfaction in knowing that the chances are entirely in favour of your sticking in your enemy's throat. But in spite of the precautions taken by the sea-urchins to keep their neighbours at a distance, the sharks feed upon them with easy unconcern. One would think that these voracious fish, if they had no regard for the poor urchins' feelings, would have some for their own. But the Sydney shark will stomach anything. Not long since a 30lb. dog, with a stone of about equal weight attached, was watching the bottom at Neutral Bay, when a large shark happened to pass, and, observing that the animal had no owner, determined to provide for it. One bite was enough. Then a complication arose. The weight of the stone quickly extracted the animal from its new kennel, and necessitated another gulp. So things continued till at last the great fish was obliged to compromise matters by swallowing stone and all. To defy a monster of this kind the poor sea-urchin would require spikes as long as an umbrella.

But if the sea urchins attracted attention by their prickly panoply, the sea spiders (found also by the Natural History people at Watson's Bay) gave rise to amazement. These wee things might be called the Merry Andrews of the molecule—the clowns of the sea water-drop. Put them in a bottle and they tumble and turn, creep along the sides in counterfeited astonishment, or give hands across at the bottom and gyrate down the middle. For a time you wonder at their high spirits and unnatural buoyancy, but on reflection the conviction is forced upon you that in their line of life they require to have mercurial temperaments or ennui would decimate them. For they attach themselves to fishes' scales much as some air-breathing insects to quadrupeds. A moment's reflection will show that there must be a large reserve force of adaptability and natural gaiety in a creature that becomes parasite to a fish. Next to the sea spider in interest is the hermit crab, although no specimen of this singular creature was found at the association's excursion. Ages ago this animal found it far less convenient to grow a shell than to steal one, and has continued of the same opinion ever since. It wanders about unostentatiously at the bottom till it meets a deserted shell to its liking, when it at once enters into possession. The worst of it is that the fit is generally three or four sizes too large, so that the hermit is pretty well lost in one of the convolutions. Bear in mind, though, how this creature has to pay for the indolence of that primeval ancestor who took to borrowing shells rather than growing them. Directly he ventures out of doors he is gobbled up, having no armour to rely on. So you see that even in the very lowest walks of life there is a penalty attached to laziness. If you will insist on being a parasite you must put up with the consequences.

GOVERNMENT GAZETTE.

The following official notifications were made in yesterday's Government Gazette:—

APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. William George M'Clure, Esq., M.D., Univ. DEPUTATIONS.

THE TRAMWAY FROM ASHFIELD TO DRUITT TOWN.

A deputation consisting of the Mayors and aldermen of Enfield, Strathfield, and Canterbury waited upon the Minister for Works, yesterday, for the purpose of urging upon him the necessity for the construction of a tramway from Ashfield to Druitt Town. It was argued that the proposed tramway would not run in opposition to the railway, but would in reality be a feeder to it; it would open up a largely populated district. A number of statistics were handed in in support of the scheme. The matter had been repeatedly urged upon the Department since the year 1882. Messrs. Wilshire, M.L.A., J. Eve (Mayor of Enfield), Allan (Mayor of Strathfield), and Thompson (Canterbury) spoke in support of the proposed work, which it was argued would pay well even as a business speculation.

Mr. BRUCE SMITH said he would take advantage of the first opportunity that presented itself for visiting the district and ascertaining the soundness of the views put before him. As a matter of general principle, he could give them the assurance that he would hesitate very little when he was satisfied that the work would produce a good commercial result to the country. He would give the matter his earliest consideration, and would as soon as possible visit the place.

THE WATER SUPPLY AND SEWERAGE OF NEWCASTLE.

A deputation consisting of representatives of the various municipalities in the Newcastle district waited upon the Minister for Works yesterday with reference to the water supply and sewerage and the erection of a courthouse.

The deputation, which was introduced by Mr. Fletcher, M.L.A., pointed out that a sewer ought to be constructed from the sea beach towards Lambton, which would intersect all the watersheds and be a great relief to the Newcastle district. So far as the court-house was concerned, the building was urgently required. The present structure was erected at a time when the shipping of Newcastle amounted to 300 tons of coal in a year. There was now something like 2,500,000 tons of coal exported from Newcastle. This of itself was sufficient to indicate the progress of the district.

Mr. BRUCE SMITH said that as regarded the sewerage question, the matter rested on one consideration, and that was the capability of the different municipalities either to repay the cost of the work by instalments, or to have a board constituted so that the money to construct the works and the interest might be borrowed and the interest paid by the municipalities benefited. Providing it was clearly understood that the works were to be carried out at the expense of the municipalities themselves he was prepared to view the proposal in a favourable light. As regards the water scheme, he would do his best to carry it out—and no stone would be left unturned to bring it to a practical head. With reference to the Court-house, that would be placed in the hands of the Minister for Justice, who would be asked to consult the District Court Judge and the magistrates, and he would see that the city was provided with a court-house suitable for the wants of the town for many years to come, although he could assure them no money would be wasted upon extravagant embellishment.

THE RAILWAY FROM KIAMA TO COWRA.

A deputation from the Shoalhaven district, consisting of the Mayors and aldermen of various municipalities, and residents in the south coast townships, waited upon the Minister for Works yesterday afternoon with reference to the extension of the Illawarra railway line. The deputation, which was introduced by Mr. Morton, M.L.A., explained that they desired the extension of the railway from the terminus, one mile on the Sydney side of Kiama, to Nowra, a distance of 26 miles.

After hearing the views of the deputation, Mr. Bruce Smith expressed his regret that so many gentlemen should have come from a distance without fortifying themselves with figures and facts as to the probable result of the construction of the line from a commercial point of view. He would consider all the papers in connection with the subject—and it seemed the matter had been before the Department for some years—and before he arrived at a decision as to whether he would recommend the construction of the line to the Cabinet he would like to have some figures as to the population of the district and the probable traffic.

ADAMSTOWN ROADS.

Mr. Edmunds (Mayor of Adamstown), waited upon the Engineer-in-Chief for Roads and Bridges yesterday, with reference to the road from Hamilton to Lake Macquarie. He pointed out that the Government had promised £300 towards putting the road in thorough repair. This subsidy had not yet been paid, and it was urgently required.

Mr. BENNETT stated that there was no money available at present, but as soon as the Estimates were passed the money would be paid.

LAMBTON MAIN ROAD.

The Mayor of Lambton (Mr. Thornton), introduced by Mr. Ninian Melville, M.L.A., waited upon the Engineer-in-Chief for Roads and Bridges yesterday, with respect to the condition of the main road running through Lambton. This road, it was explained, had been accepted by the council from the Government in 1885, when they received a subsidy of £410 towards the cost of making it. They had received nothing since, but had expended £375 out of the rates. The tramway people had cut up the road, and had left the tramway 18in. above the level.

Mr. BENNETT promised that an officer would be sent to report upon the matter, and an answer would be given at an early date.

WARATAH ROADS.

Mr. Melville, M.L.A., introduced a deputation from the Waratah council yesterday, with reference to the roads running through the municipality, which were stated to be in a bad state of repair in consequence of the municipality not having received any subsidy, and being unable to maintain them out of the rates.

Mr. BENNETT promised that the representations which had been made to him would be reported upon and considered.

DEPUTATION TO THE WATER AND SEWERAGE BOARD.

A deputation from the Master Plumbers' Association, introduced by Alderman G. W. Lander, waited on the president of the Board of Water Supply and Sewerage yesterday. The president of the association (Mr. Bain) said the object of the deputation was to bring under the notice of the board certain matters in connection with the metropolitan water bylaws and the plumbers' regulations, which they considered were harsh, not on them as plumbers but on their clients the general public. The president said that in regard to the matter of an increase in the size of the service-pipes he admitted the reasonableness of the request. The pressure would be about the same, but there must certainly be more water in a 1in. than a ¾in. pipe, and a greater body of water acting upon the tap, and if there was any carelessness there would be a greater waste, but he certainly thought that if a 1½in. was allowed across the footpath in the city it should also be allowed in the suburbs. He thoroughly understood the matter, and would consult with the board engineer with regard to it. With respect to the issue of licenses to journeymen he was always under the impression that they were only granted to plumbers who had business premises, but he would remind them that all applications for licenses to be signed by three master plumbers, so the remedy was with them.

POSTAL REQUIREMENTS AT HURSTVILLE.

Yesterday morning a deputation, consisting of Messrs. Wheeler, Hutchison, and Wilshire, Ms.L.A., and nine residents of Hurstville, waited on the Postmaster-General, and asked for the removal of their post, office to a more central position near the railway station. Several members of the deputation supported the claims of the district to increased postal and telegraphic communication, and it was pointed out that about two-thirds of the postal business which should be done at Hurstville was forced to Sydney. There was a room at the railway station seldom used, which could be utilised as a temporary post-office, but the residents would prefer the erection of a post and telegraph office in some central position.

Mr. O'CONNOR, in reply, said he fully recognised the requirements set forth by the deputation. Their representations appeared to be fair and reasonable, and they would receive his attention. While in office, be the time brief or long, he would make it his aim to personally inspect the post-offices and districts. Having had a business training, he knew something of the requirements of business men, and he knew that first amongst these were postal and telegraphic facilities. One day next week he would be visiting Kogarah, and he would at the same time take the opportunity of visiting Hurstville and see for himself what really was required.

Mr. Wheeler thanked the Minister for his courtesy.

ARNCLIFFE PUBLIC SCHOOL.

The Minister for Public Instruction was yesterday waited upon by a deputation, consisting of the Mayor of Rockdale and Aldermen Thomas Price, Jeeves, and Godfrey, accompanied by Messrs. Wheeler, Wilshire, and Hutchison, members for Canterbury, with regard to Public school matters at Arncliffe. It transpired that some years ago a Mr. Hannam bequeathed some land at Arncliffe for Public school purposes, and that it was now sought to have the site utilised. It was stated that, although there was a Public school within a mile of the spot, children had in some cases to travel two or three miles to get there, and had to pass over the railway line. The land in question had, it was pointed out, already been fenced in by the department.

Mr. CARRUTHERS replied that seeing that there was a public school only a mile distant, and that the inspector's report was against the proposal made, he could not view the project in a favourable light. He would, however, inquire into the matter, and if he thought it necessary, he would call for a further report. He was determined that every child in the community, as far as he was able, should have the benefits of education.

A DANGER ON THE ROCKY POINT-ROAD.

On the conclusion of the interview held yesterday with the Minister for Public Instruction in reference to the Arncliffe Public School, an informal meeting was held at the Department, at which the four members for the electorate of Canterbury were present. Alderman T. Price, of Rockdale, introduced the subject of the condition of that part of the Rocky Point-road in the vicinity of the Rockdale Railway Station, and just below the goods shed. He pointed out that drainage from the railway passed down by the side of the road, and that the constant flow had formed a channel which varied in width from 2ft. to 5ft., with, in places, a depth of 6ft. People were even beginning to drain their property into it. The ground was in the newly-annexed portion of the municipality. The road itself was a Government road, and it was hoped that the Government might be induced to remedy the evil. In its present state the road was very dangerous, and accidents had resulted.

Mr. CARRUTHERS stated that the sum of £500 figured on the Estimates for repairs to the road, but he was not sure that, even if the money had not already been absorbed, any portion of it could be utilised for the purpose spoken of. The matter should be looked into.

POSTAL REQUIREMENTS AT GRANVILLE.

Yesterday morning a deputation, including Messrs. F. Farnell, J. Nobbs, J. Ritchie, and R. Linsley, waited upon the Postmaster-General and asked for increased postal and telegraphic facilities for Granville. It was explained that during the past six years additional accommodation had been requisite, and as time went on these facilities became the more urgent. A new post and telegraph office was absolutely necessary to cope with the growing business of the district.

Mr. O'CONNOR, in reply, said that when holding office on a previous occasion he recommended the resumption of a certain piece of land as a site for a post and telegraph office. A departmental report should be laid before him on the present position of affairs, and in addition to this, in keeping with a resolution to which he meant to adhere so long as he remained in office, he would visit the place and personally learn what was actually required for the district. From past experience he knew the deputation had a good case, and he would not hesitate to submit it to his colleagues in the Government.

LIVERPOOL COURT-HOUSE AND POLICE QUARTERS.

A deputation consisting of Alderman Taylor (Mayor of Liverpool) and Aldermen Clyde and Peate, introduced by Messrs. Farnell and Ritchie, Ms.L.A., waited upon the Minister for Justice yesterday morning and brought under his notice the dilapidation and want of accommodation at the court-house and police quarters, Liverpool. The Mayor explained that the building was in an advanced state of decay, out of plumb and likely to tumble down at any moment; it having been in use for 40 or 50 years.

Mr. GOULD, in reply, stated that he had called for a report in reference to the matter, which would receive early consideration at the hands of the Government. He promised to bring it under the notice of his colleagues without delay.

The deputation referred to the fact that a court-house had been erected at Campbelltown at a cost of £20,000, and the Minister gave his assurance that he would not sanction any extravagant expenditure on court buildings in any part of the colony such as had taken place in the past.

ELECTION OF BISHOP.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Your information of 9th instant, that "Archdeacon Dawes, of Brisbane, will be consecrated a bishop by the Primate and other assisting bishops at St. Andrew's Cathedral on the 1st May," is rather significant, inasmuch as Archdeacon Dawes is "a member of the English Church Union, and if possible worse still, a member of the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament." In the same paragraph we are told "his election to the office by synod is not required." Is this really the case? If so, cannot the Primate find such another, and get the bishops generally to consecrate him assistant to the Bishop of Sydney? If such a man is acceptable by the Australian bishops for Brisbane, why not for Sydney? And synod need not be troubled. Moreover, when Congress is established, perhaps the bishops will try to abolish synod, and, eventually, to oblige the bishops, this may be accomplished. Years ago in synod, two leaders of the opposite parties moved and seconded that Moore College should be removed, with or without the intention of one section that the college should be snuffed out; and the obliging synod effectually used the extinguisher, for the motion was carried nem. con. Moore College was too Protestant for the puerile "sacrifice at the altar" party, who turn to the East and sympathise with the Bishop of Lincoln's nonsense, and so the last Principal was chosen, but the laity were Protestant enough to cause him to receive the coup de grace, and we are now without Moore College, because the trustees prefer not to appoint another Principal, and the college is in process of removal, while students are being distributed, one to Bowral, and another to the Rev. Mervyn Archdall's care, and thus is Moore College disintegrated.

But it is from that college which, under the late Bishop Barker, did such good work, we ought to look for even bishops; and the question is forced upon the Church generally, how much longer will bishops be imported? To my mind, the first essential is that bishops should be Australian, not necessarily by the accident of birth; for in politics I know some Australians by birth are traitors to their country, and so, no doubt, are others to the religion they profess, or are supported by.

I do trust synod will not be led away from the path of duty by desire to oblige, or be beguiled therefrom by the charm of splendid ability; for Shakespeare has said:—

"So may the outward shows be least themselves;
The world is still deceived with ornament.
In law, what plea so tainted and corrupt,
But being season'd with a gracious voice,
Obscures the show of evil? In religion,
What damned error, but some sober brow
Will bless it, and approve it with a text,
Hiding the grossness with fair ornament? . . .
This ornament is but the gulled shore
To a most dangerous sea; the beauteous scarf
Veiling an Indian beauty; in a word,
The seeming truth which cunning times put on
To entrap the wisest."

STRINGHALT IN HORSES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In Victoria I understand that this disease remains a mystery still. I commenced investigations some weeks ago, and this is my final report. You will see by it that the cause and cure are both solved. I have named it an epizootic rheumatic fever:—(1) Because the primary symptoms are identical with rheumatic fever; (2) because both are identical in their progressive development as to secondary manifestations; (3) because the autopsy revealed the fact that in some animals the spinal cord or membranes were inflamed; (4) because the reflex form had been repeatedly cured with external remedies alone. If the disease had been due to parasites, this sequel could not occur—neither could it occur from dandelion, for where that is green no disease exists. Cause: All short, withered dandelion are covered with the eggs and debris of various forms of microscopic life, which insects are sheltered and fed on this plant; these little creatures are very varied and very numerous; some resemble the mange acari, some are like bugs, some resemble spiders, &c. The leaves of this bastard dandelion are destroyed like the leaves of the orange tree when diseased from red or black scale. When the little creatures settle on a leaf, they bleed it, and a sweetish gum is exuded; by-and-bye this becomes acrid, as the leaf gets covered with insect debris; this of course changes completely the character of this feed from a sweetish-bitter to an acrid, sugarless form of feed, and absolutely these insects and these eggs debris and acrid leaves are taken up as the principal feed. The causes are threefold, and, strange to say, the disease itself naturally assumes a threefold aspect—1st form, there is paralysis of motor nerves, in which the spinal cord and nerve-roots are diseased; 2nd, there is reflex rheumatic arthritis, in which the periphery of nerves is primarily affected, combined with secretions of debris in muscular tissue, and absorption of same; 3rd, paralysis of the sympathetic ganglion, in which heart and lungs are involved. I may add that in the last two animals examined only one worm was found at the autopsy. I am aware that Mr. Stanley has found the animals he examined full of parasites, excessively so; but, again, in animals on this farm which have died of stringhalt no worms have been found. My experience has been that all grass-fed animals have worms, but as the disease advances in intensity the worms die a natural death. In obedience to a universal law it follows that chemically-created disease destroys worm life. Of course, the great practical questions are—1. Can it be prevented? 2. Can it be cured? Several means will prevent it. An abundance of rain will give us abundance of dandelion and worms, but it will detroy the cause of this disease. In very wet seasons there will be no stringhalt. Then cattle are fond of this feed. They can prevent horses taking the disease. Then, again, paddocks sown with salt and nitre will destroy this form of life; so will soluble kerosene. Further, the system of animals may be rendered proof either by inoculation, hypodermic injection, or any remedy which neutralises acidity of the blood.

The question of curing is, in the reflex form, simple when taken at once. In the paralytic and heart form it is not; and when the malady has gone so far as to destroy tissue, then the cure must be as slow as nature. It will take you six weeks to fatten a pig, it takes quite as long to re-form tissue. So that a cure in the latter never can imply the re-formation of tissue; this is nature's business. Any good febrile remedy may at once arrest the disease, and any good external oil to loins or lungs or muscles will aid. But, of course, if you mean a cure, then remove the animal from the cause. A man will never get sober if he drinks day and night. These animals are worse than a drunkard. He can choose his feed and drink, but they are shut in with poison.

J. POTTIE, Veterinary Surgeon.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.—FRIDAY, APRIL 12.

In Equity.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice OWEN, Chief Judge in Equity.)

MARSINCOVICH V. HASSAN.

Mr. H. Manning appeared for the plaintiff, and moved for an injunction to restrain the present defendant from further proceeding in a District Court action against him to recover the sum of £150, which she alleged she was entitled to under her late husband's will. Mr. Lingen appeared for the defendant, and submitted that the injunction was demurrable, as an injunction could not be obtained to restrain a party from proceeding with an action at law where the defence was a good one in law.

His HONOR said the application must be dismissed, with costs. There was clearly no reason at all why the Court should interfere. The case set up was entirely one at common law, and could be dealt with by the District Court just as well as it could be by this Court, and, therefore, there was no reason why the District Court action should be restrained.

Application dismissed, with costs.

BELL HOLE SILVER-MINING COMPANY.

Mr. Davies applied for an order winding up the above-named company, on the petition of Messrs. Robberds and Sons, solicitors, who claim the sum of £157 7s. for law costs incurred on behalf of the company, and not paid.

Order made as asked. Frederick F. Cox, formerly manager of the company, to be appointed official liquidator on giving security to the satisfaction of the Master.

GEPRELS V. TWEITMEYER.

On the motion of Mr. Street, who appeared on behalf of plaintiff, the statement of claim was dismissed, and the injunction which had been granted pending the hearing was dissolved.

HAWKESBURY RIVER AND BROKEN BAY STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.

On the motion of Mr. Hanbury Davies, a petition for the winding up of the above company was granted, the amount of the petitioning creditor's claim being £77 2s. 7d., which was undisputed and unpaid.

SYDNEY SAFE DEPOSITORY COMPANY AND THE COMPANIES ACT.

Mr. H. Simpson, instructed by Mr. Godfrey, appeared for Mr. Canedell, and applied for an order setting aside the order winding up the company, and that all proceedings in relation to the winding-up of the company might be stayed.

Mr. Davies and Mr Rolin, instructed by Mr. Parkinson, appeared to oppose the application, and Mr. Davies took the preliminary objection that the application was substantially the same as another application which came before the Court on the 26th February. Mr. Canedell then appeared in person and moved exactly the same motion as Mr. Simpson had moved to-day. That application was dismissed, and the costs which had been taxed and certified at £73 had not been paid. He submitted that the Court would not hear the application until the previous costs had been paid.

His HONOR did not see how he could be called upon to set aside his own order.

Mr. Simpson said that if there were facts which ought to have been brought before the notice of the Court, but which were not brought before the Court by the applicants on the previous occasion, although they knew perfectly well about them, his Honor would not have made the order.

Mr. Davies pointed out that by the Equity Rules every order or judgment of the Court was binding until set aside upon appeal.

Mr. Simpson said that under section 142 of the Companies Act it was laid down that the Court might, after a winding-up order had been made, and upon applicant proving to the satisfaction of the Court that such proceedings should be stayed, grant a stay of proceedings until such time, and subject to such conditions as the Court might deem fit. On the 26th February Mr. Canedell appeared practically to move under that section, but his Honor held upon a preliminary objection that he had no locus standi, and his Honor refused to hear him. He maintained that the winding-up order was obtained improperly by omitting to bring certain facts before the Court.

After hearing further argument, in the course of which Mr. Simpson applied for a stay of proceedings, after his Honor had intimated that he could not set aside his own order,

His HONOR said it appeared to him that the proper course would be to appeal from his decision granting the winding-up order, and the applicants could then bring before the Full Court the grounds which they alleged had not been brought before him. The winding up order was made on the 12th October last, and Mr. Canedell, alleging himself to be a contributory of the company, some few months afterwards made application to the Court, under the 142nd section of the Companies Act, for a stay of proceedings under the winding up order. As he did not on that occasion admit that he was a contributory, he dismissed the application with costs. A few days after that order was made Mr. Canedell was placed upon the list of contributories, and he now made an application to the Court in the first place to set aside the order which he (his Honor) made winding up the company, and also for a stay of proceedings under that order. He pointed out in the course of the argument that it appeared to him that he had no power to sit in appeal upon his own order and reverse it, and it was then contended that if he could not make that order he could make an order granting a stay of proceedings. In point of fact the order then asked for was for the purpose of obtaining the same thing, namely, to set aside the up winding order. There was no mention in the affidavits, as he understood, or in any of the documents, that the order for a stay of proceedings was intended for the purpose of reconstructing the company or for any temporary purpose. As he read it, it was to effect indirectly the setting aside of his order winding up the company, which he held he had no power to do. Now he was quite satisfied that where the ground for the proceeding was that the debt upon which the company was being wound up was non-existent, the proper proceeding was to move to set aside the order winding up the company, and not to move to stay proceedings. For this reason, that if the debt was non-existent the creditor upon whose application the company was wound up had no locus standi at all, and if that was so the Court would have refused the winding-up order, and therefore the subsequent orders in reference to calls, and the settlement of contributories would have to be set aside also, whereas if they merely applied for a stay of proceedings under the winding-up order, they left that order standing. The order which, by evidence before the Court, might be shown to be invalid, was left to remain as a valid order, and yet respondent asked to have the proceedings under it stayed. Therefore he was of opinion that the proper course of procedure where the debt was proved to be invalid was not to stay proceedings, but to set aside the winding-up order itself, and as he could not entertain an application to set aside his own order, this application must fail.

Application dismissed, with costs between party and party.

SISTRUM V. MONK AND OTHERS.

This suit was on the application of plaintiff dismissed as against all the defendants, with costs, but without prejudice to any other suit which plaintiff might think fit to bring.

In Chambers (Equity).—(Before his Honor Mr Justice OWEN.)

JENNINGS AND OTHERS V. BLUNT AND OTHERS.

Mr. A. H. Simpson, instructed by Messrs. Want, Johnson, and Co., appeared for the plaintiffs, and moved for an order directing that the issues in the suit should be tried before a jury. Mr. Lingen appeared for the Agricultural Society of New South Wales, the real defendants. The plaintiffs, who carry on business under the title of Jennings, Pickering, and Co., sued Frederick Blunt, the younger, and the Agricultural Society of New South Wales, and in their statement of claim they asked that defendant Blunt may be decreed, to specially perform a certain agreement for the assignment to them of all moneys payable and to be paid by the defendant society for work done by him under certain contracts for the erection of a grand stand and other buildings on premises at Moore Park, in the occupation of the society. They also prayed that the usual account should be taken, and that if it should appear that defendant Blunt had received a sum equal to more than one-half of the profits arising from the contracts he might be decreed to pay such amount to the plaintiffs; also, that the defendant society might be decreed to pay the balance of any moneys due to the defendant Blunt to the plaintiffs, and that if it should appear that plaintiffs have, after payment of such balance, received more than half of such profits, the excess should be paid to defendant Blunt; further, that the defendant society might be restrained from paying over to the defendant Blunt, and defendant Blunt from receiving, any further moneys due, or to become due, to him under his contracts until the rights of the parties were determined. Plaintiffs it appeared supplied certain goods to defendant Blunt, and became bondsmen for him in consideration of an agreement made between them that the plaintiffs should receive all moneys payable by the defendant society to defendant Blunt under the contracts, and of two irrevocable orders entitling plaintiffs to receive such moneys, which orders were accepted and retained by the defendant society's representative. By their statement of defence the defendant society alleged that there was nothing due to the defendant Blunt by them; that the defendant Blunt so unskilfully performed the contract that a great part of the building fell down and had become useless; that defendant Blunt fraudulently omitted portions of the work under the contract, and did not provide timber of the description or quantity stipulated for, but less timber and of smaller dimensions; that he had charged for things as extras which he did not do or for which he had already been paid, and for certain other extras he had charged outrageously excessive prices; that the certificate granted by the architect could only have been granted mala fide, or that the defendant Blunt obtained the certificate by concealing from the architect such omissions and defects, and by making a false statement to such architect of certain specified work which had not been done in accordance with such architect's instructions.

His HONOR thought the case was one which should be tried by a jury and a common law jury. The case was one embracing a great number of details, and the charge was that the certificate of the architect was obtained by fraud or collusion, or that the architect himself was deceived by the fraud of the defendant Blunt. It appeared to him that it was a case eminently suited for determination by a jury, and that it came within the decision of the Full Court in the case of Blunt v. Terry, where the Court stated that in questions of such a complicated character as were involved in that case the proper tribunal was a jury, and they accordingly sent down that case for trial by a jury. There could be no question that there were complications in Blunt v. Terry, and complications were likely to arise in this case. He supposed that the case of Blunt v. Terry was one of the most complicated cases ever tried, and in the present case he thought the proper course was to send it down to be tried at nisi prius. Plaintiffs would have to pay the costs of the application, for he was of opinion that the application ought to have been made promptly, whereas the matter had been allowed to stand by until a few days before the case was to come on, and therefore if any expenses had been incurred, those costs unquestionably would have to be paid by plaintiffs.

Order accordingly; case to be tried before a jury, and the issues to be settled by counsel for the parties.

In Chambers (Common Law.)—Before his Honor Mr. Justice OWEN.

EXPARTE ROWLAND.

Mr. Levy appeared on behalf of Edward Paul Rowland, of Coonamble, and moved for a rule nisi for a prohibition directed to Sarah Carey and certain justices of the peace at Gilgandra to restrain them from further proceeding upon a judgment obtained by Sarah Carey as agent for her husband, Wm. Carey, for the sale and delivery of certain chaff and bags. The respondent, Sarah Carey, appeared in person. It appeared that plaintiff in the action sued the defendant Rowland who is a mail contractor, to recover £7 8s., balance of account for 16 tons 17cwt. of chaff and £5 9s. for the bags in which the chaff was delivered to the defendant. A verdict was given for the amount claimed in each case, and defendant now wished to have the judgments set aside on the ground that plaintiff had split the amount claimed in order to bring it within the jurisdiction of the Small Debts' Court. Respondent stated that the sale of the chaff and the sale of the bags were entirely separate transactions, but as she had filed no affidavits the case was adjourned until Monday next to enable her to do so.

ROWAN AND ANOTHER V. AARONS (BANK OF AUSTRALASIA CLAIMANTS).

Mr. Levy appeared for the execution creditors (plaintiffs), and Mr O'Connor for the claimants. This was an application to settle the issue to be tried between the execution, creditors, and claimants. It appeared that Rowan and Co., upon a judgment obtained against Joseph Aarons for the sum of £88 14s., for goods sold and delivered, issued a writ of execution, in pursuance of which the sheriff entered upon the defendant's land, known as Nanima, near Wellington, and took possession of a stack of hay. The claimants, however, allege that the seizure by the sheriff was illegal, inasmuch as the land was held by them as security to cover an advance to the defendant of £60,000, and that at the time of the seizure the bank were in actual occupation.

His HONOR directed an issue to be tried by the Court, claimants to be plaintiffs, and the execution creditors defendants, and that the goods in question should be sold by the sheriff, and the proceeds paid into Court to abide the result of the trial. All questions of costs reserved.

In Bankruptcy.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice DEFFELL.)

ADJOURNED PUBLIC EXAMINATION.

Re Maitland Edwin Smedley Whysall, examination of bankrupt. Whysall, in the course of examination by Mr. Meyer (on behalf of Mr. Levien, a creditor), deposed that at first he carried on the business of a produce merchant, but more recently that of a stock and sharebroker; as a produce merchant witness received produce from various persons; it was part of his duty to sell the produce, receive the money, deduct his charges, and account to the person who sent him the produce to sell; between the months of September and December 1887 he received from Mr. Levien (trading as Hitch and Co.) a quantity of produce to be disposed of in the way he had described; he sold that produce, and after deducting all charges there was a balance of £197 3s. 5d.; his reason for not paying that sum to Mr. Levien was that there was a general account between them: during Mr. Levien's absence from the colony he paid moneys on account of that gentleman to the extent of £212; so far as they were concerned neither of them was ever particular whether the balance was on one side or the other; in respect to the transactions between the months of September and December, 1887, the balance was on the side of Mr. Levien; he had never paid Mr. Levien that particular debt; he had delivered to Hitch and Co. account sales with reference to some of those goods.

Mr. Meyer: Now, sir, have you not since then gambled in the share market to the extent of some thousands of pounds?

Witness: I have not "gambled."

His Honor: What you mean to say is that you have operated with respect to shares, buying and selling, to a very large amount?

Witness: I have, your Honor.

Mr. Meyer: When did you commence dealing in shares?

Witness: In January or February, 1888.

Mr. Meyer: Immediately after the sale of those goods?

Witness: No; not immediately.

Mr. Meyer: Now, during the year 1888 how much silver stock did you buy?

Witness: I could not say. The transactions were very numerous.

Mr. Meyer: Did you buy £20,000 worth?

Witness: No, I do not think so.

Mr. Meyer: Will you swear you did not operate to the extent of £15,000?

Witness: I could not swear to the exact amount. It might have been £15,000.

Mr. Meyer: How much did you lose upon those shares?

Witness: I lost a considerable sum. I do not know how much.

His Honor: Thousands?

Witness: I did not lose thousands. Roughly speaking, I should think about £1000.

Mr. Meyer: Have you any means of ascertaining how much you lost on this share business?

Witness: I have not.

Mr. Meyer: Am I right in saying that you have kept no accounts in your books of these transactions?

Witness: I have kept accounts of the amounts, but not of the particular transactions; there would be five or six transactions in the day.

In the course of further examination, the witness said that this statement (produced) contained an account of all the money he had received and paid away in respect of shares; he could make up an account showing the gross loss he had made upon those transactions.

His Honor: Does that appear in the account (produced)?

Witness: No, your Honor.

The witness, in the course of further examination, said that he had at various times received accommodation from various persons, including Mr. Joseph Turner, who was a fruit merchant in York-street, and he had at times granted them accommodation; witness's life was insured for £800; one of the policies was at the Mutual Provident Society, and the other was in his possession; about a week ago he obtained a loan from the A. M. P. Society on one of the policies; the policies were not mentioned in his schedule; Levien issued a writ against witness for the recovery of £220. His Honor directed the bankrupt to hand over his life assurance policies to the official assignee, and declared that the bankrupt had passed his public examination without prejudice to any further examination that might be found necessary.

APPOINTMENT OF OFFICIAL LIQUIDATOR.

Re the Australian Powder and Explosive Manufacturing Company, Limited, and in the matter of the Companies Act. Mr. Watkins appeared in support of an application for the appointment of an official liquidator in place of W. J. Green, resigned. His Honor said that the late Mr. Durham was first appointed official liquidator, and subsequently Mr. Green was appointed in his place. The question of making any fresh appointment would be considered on the 17th instant. Mr. Green had taken certain action, and he would have to accept the responsibility of what he had done. He (his Honor) was not going to discharge him instanter. He had chosen to assume a responsibility; and simply because he was about to leave the colony was not a sufficient ground upon which to exonerate him instanter from the consequences of his own actions. It would be monstrous to discharge a person merely because he wished to go away. Mr. Watkins said he did not ask that Mr. Green should be discharged without any terms. His Honor observed that if Mr. Green left the colony before a successor was appointed he would have to take the risk and responsibility of doing so. For him (the Judge) to take suddenly an application which was ex parte would be most unjust and contrary to all the laws of jurisprudence. Mr. Watkins said that Mr. Green had taken a passage ticket for Europe via the outgoing San Francisco steamer. Would his Honor tell him (Mr. Watkins) whether it would be necessary for Mr. Green to be in the Court on the 17th instant? His Honor declined to advise counsel as to what Mr. Green should do in the circumstances, adding that it would be a most flagrant violation of the principles of English jurisprudence if he were to make an order relative to the appointment of an official liquidator without the persons interested having an opportunity of showing whether they had any objection to the proposed course of procedure. The application would be adjourned until Wednesday next. The usual notices must be published in the Herald and Telegraph of Saturday.

APPLICATIONS FOR CERTIFICATES.

Re Arthur Albert Devlin, application for certificate of discharge. The further hearing of application was adjourned to the 10th March.

Re George Frederick West. The hearing of this application was adjourned to the 15th instant.

(Before the Registrar, MR. ARTHUR HENRY.)

Re Augustus Horatio Clark. The bankrupt, in the course of examination by the official assignee, deposed that on March 8th last he received a letter from Corbin and Nicolle, intimating that they were going to close the shop; he sequestrated his estate on March 7th; Corbin and Nicolle and Goodlet asked him to take charge of two shops, and they agreed to pay him £2 10s. per week; he used to buy goods for the two shops and carry on business to the best of his ability; he received a cheque for £80 from Mr. Goodlet and placed it in the Commercial Bank to his (witness's) credit; he spent all the money he received except his salary in replenishing the stock; he did not have to pay any rent for those two shops; the goods for the Christmas trade were bought on credit; he might have mentioned to some of his creditors that he was backed up by Corbin and Nicolle and Goodlet; Corbin and Nicolle knew that he had bought some goods on credit, because they gave him a cheque for £11 16s. with which to pay for goods purchased on credit; witness kept the books of the business; on several occasions they were examined—sometimes by Mr. Corbin, and sometimes by Mr. Nicolle; Mr. Corbin obtained the keys from witness's wife, and took away the books on March 9. The further examination of the bankrupt was adjourned to the 26th instant.

Re Howard Ignatius Moffatt. The bankrupt in the course of examination by Mr. Lloyd, official assignee, deposed that he started the Guide in October, 1886; he had two partners, Arthur M. Walcott and W B. Smith; their interests were one-third each; subsequently, D. C. Bell came into the partnership in place of W. B. Smith; witness left the "Guide" in April 1888; he sold his interest to James Muller; the consideration was £315; the furniture now at witness's house was settled on his wife before marriage; Mr. Phillip and Mr. Stephan were the originators of a company formed to float the process known as the Phillip-Stephan process of photo-lithography; the money was found by Bell, Davis, and Miller, but witness did the work in connection with obtaining negatives to show the nature of the process, work which was most essential to the process; Bell was personally to have given witness 1000 shares, but declined to do so; witness sued him and got a verdict for £266; witness subsequently compromised that debt by accepting £50.

Re John Charles Dunlop. The bankrupt, in the course of examination, deposed that he purchased of the business which he had been carrying on from Glen Boyle three years ago; he gave £1165 for the lease, license, and goodwill; he paid £1000 in cash, and gave a promissory note for the balance; he had £500 of his own money, and he borrowed £1000 from Tooth and Co. under a bill of sale and securities on property belonging to his wife; for the first six or eight months he was in business he did fairly well, and his takings amounted to between £75 and £80 a week; after that his business fell off to next to nothing.

Re Joseph Endor Pombart. The bankrupt was examined by Mr. Morris, official assignee, relative to an action he brought against Mr. Bolton for the recovery of commission on the sale of certain property. Pombart deposed that he lost the suit because he was unable to pay counsel whom he engaged his fees, and that barrister then took a brief from the other side; witness gave Mr. Fisher a rent order over his furniture; the consideration was money lent by Fisher to witness.

Re Henry James Lyons. The bankrupt deposed that part of his premises was let to his son, Sydney Lyons, and the stock that was there at the date of his sequestration, belonged to his son; all witness possessed was some furniture; witness had no property except what he had entered in his statement; his son had the pony and cart; the family sociable witness gave to Mr. J. Hoare; a certain gold ring and keyless gold watch belonged to witness's cousin, Charles Webb. The further examination of the bankrupt was adjourned to the 26th instant.

Re Charles M'Kew.—The bankrupt intimated that he desired to amend his statement of affairs, by adding to it a debt due to the estate amounting to £12 8s.

Formal examinations were held of C. M. Bennett, Thomas E. Atkins, James Leslie, William Johnston, William Daniels (of Balmain, carpenter), Philip Farmer, and John Taylor.

The examinations of F. J. Piggott, M. D. Kilkeary, and Won Sung Ling were adjourned to the 26th instant. The examination of H. M. Caldwell was adjourned to Wednesday next.

PROOF OF DEBT.

Re Maddocks. The Registrar gave his decision in respect to a claim of £300 propounded by Mrs. Jane Cozens as executrix of the will of Richard W. Cozens, and grounded on a promissory note of the bankrupt, dated 8, September, 1886, and payable on demand. The claim was disputed by the bankrupt, who alleged that he owed only £100, having paid off £200 in various sums and at various times. The only payment the bankrupt spoke of with certainty was one of £60. Mr. Henry reviewed the evidence before him, and admitted the claim at £240.

SEQUESTRATION ORDERS ON PETITIONS OF DEBTORS.

Thos. Steele Donald, of Middle Harbour and Alfred-street, North Shore, formerly coachbuilder, now out of business. Mr. A. Morris, official assignee.

Charles Herbert Battye, of Balmain. Mr. E. M. Stephen, official assignee.

Annie Riley, of 125, Bullanaming-street, Redfern, saleswoman. Mr. L. T. Lloyd, official assignee.

Michael Breen and George Rheinberger (trading as Breen and Rheinberger), of Bega, blacksmiths. Mr. A. Morris, official assignee.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.

FRIDAY.

First Court.—(Before Mr. District Court Judge WILKINSON.)

LITHGOW COLLIERY COMPANY V. M'KENZIE.

This was a case in which the Lithgow Valley Colliery Company sought to recover the sum of £44 7s. 6d. from G. B. M'Kenzie, of Grafton Wharf. The plaint set forth that the defendant represented to the plaintiff company that a certain self-acting steam hammer that he had for sale was almost new and in splendid going order, and was to be sold extremely cheap, owing to his having insufficient storage room to keep it, and acting on these representations plaintiff bought the machine for £25. After the steam hammer had been removed to the colliery works and was being tested under a low pressure of steam, several very bad defects were discovered that rendered the machine practically useless. The plaintiff then sought to recover the money paid for the property, together with the expenses the company had incurred in repairing and refitting it. The defendant emphatically denied that any promise or guarantee as to the condition of the machine was given. His Honor gave a verdict for the defendant.

Second Court.—(Before Mr. District Court Judge M'FARLAND.)

WILLISON V. BAKER.

In this case Bertram Willison and his wife, Constance, sued one Margaret Baker for the sum of £200 damages for alleged slander, whereby the plaintiff was injured in her reputation. John G. Herbert appeared for the plaintiff, and F. B. Freehill for the defendant. After hearing the evidence, his Honor expressed his belief that certain slanderous insinuations had been used by the defendant, and he then gave a verdict for the plaintiff for £30.

M'SULLEN V. COKER.

This was an action brought by Patrick M'Sullen, of the Maitland and Morpeth Hotel, Sussex-street, against William Coker and his wife, to recover £200 for alleged illegal distraint. A verdict for the plaintiff for £10 was entered by consent.

WAKELEY V. NIGHTINGALE.

This was a case in which Andrew Wakeley, of Ashfield, sought to recover from John Nightingale, also of Ashfield, the sum of £200 damages for alleged slander. Defendant put in a plea of not guilty, and his Honor gave a verdict for the defendant.

BANCROFT V. DOWNES.

In this action Edward Bancroft, residing at Randwick, claimed from S. Downes, of Drummoyne, the sum of £100 for alleged illegal distraint. His Honor entered a nonsuit against the plaintiff

SAYWELL V. MUTCH.

This was an action in which F. W. Saywell, trading as "F. W. Saywell and Co.," claimed £19 16s. 2d. from Mutch for goods sold and delivered. Defendant pleaded not indebted.

His Honor nonsuited the plaintiff.

GLYNN AND ANOTHER V. RUSSELL.

In this case John Glynn and his wife, living in Cumberland-street, sought to recover from John Russell, of Cumberland-street, the sum of £200, for alleged slander reflecting upon the moral character of the plaintiffs, whereby they had suffered in their reputation. Plaintiffs were nonsuited.

GIBSON V. PLOCK.

This was an action instituted by Margaret Theresa Gibson (through her nearest friend William Gibson) against Charles Plock, residing in Bates'-lane, off Sussex-street, to recover the sum of £30 7s. for injuries received. For the plaintiff it was alleged that she was playing with some other children in Bates'-lane one morning when the defendant's dog, a ferocious animal, rushed at her and bit her causing a severe wound that necessitated medical attendance, and the plaintiff was put to considerable expense. A verdict for the plaintiff for £20 was given.

WALSH V. ANDERSON.

This was a case in which John Walsh, of Annandale, sued Joseph Anderson, residing at No. 66, Cleveland-street, to recover £53 for alleged breach of agreement with reference to the purchase of a horse, van, and harness. A verdict for the plaintiff for £18 was given.

METROPOLITAN QUARTER SESSIONS.

FRIDAY.

(Before Judge BACKHOUSE).

Mr. W. L. Merewether prosecuted for the Crown.

PERJURY.

Alfred Henry Haddon, a young man, was charged with having committed perjury on the 12th February last, in a case then tried before Mr. Justice Stephen. The indictment was that the accused falsely swore that he was continuously in the company of Michael Kelly (who together with another man named Whalen was charged with attempting to break into a dwelling-house at Redfern, with intent to commit a felony), from half-past 10 o'clock on the morning of the 26th January, at the Randwick racecourse, until 5 o'clock in the evening, excepting for a period of five minutes during that time. This false statement, it was charged, was sworn on an occasion when the truth of the same was material. A number of witnesses for the Crown were called, and also for the defence, who gave evidence of a somewhat contradictory character as regarded the identity of Kelly. After almost five hours' deliberation the jury found the prisoner guilty. There was a previous record of convictions and the prisoner was remanded for sentence.

ALLEGED MANSLAUGHTER AGAINST A BOY.

William Porter, a boy of colour, was charged with feloniously slaying a child named Agnes Vaughn, on the 2nd March last. Mr. Richards defended. On the day mentioned it appeared that the accused was driving a fruit cart along High-street, Redfern, belonging to Henry Newman. The child (a daughter of Michael Vaughn, and aged 1 year and 9 months) was crossing the road at a turn as the cart came up, and was knocked down, run over, and killed. For the prosecution the evidence was that before reaching the part of the street at which the accident occurred Porter drove slowly, as Newman was hawking fruit from door to door. Newman got some distance ahead of the cart, and then the accused whipped up the horse until, when the accident occurred, it was going at considerable speed; and after the accident, Newman and the accused drove rapidly away. The jury acquitted the accused, and asked that a severe censure might be passed upon Newman for his conduct in driving away.

FORGING AND UTTERING.

James Ray Dutton was indicted for on the 28th January forging a cheque for the payment of £36 10s., and under a second count he was charged with uttering the same. Mr. Richards defended. It appeared from the evidence that the accused was in the employ of William Henry Murrell, who trades under the style of the London and Sydney Tea Company, as salesman on salary and commission. On the 28th January, in making his sale returns, the accused gave a cheque for £36 10s. upon the George-street branch of the Bank of New Zealand drawn in favour of J. R. Dutton, and signed by a person named Buddle. He received £10 from the prosecutor, but never came back for the balance due to him. On leaving the shop he said he was going up to Singleton. He was not discharged, but he never returned to business, and the next prosecutor heard was that the accused was in Melbourne. When apprehended the accused said, "I received the cheque from a man named Buddle for money which I lent him in New Zealand; I got a blank cheque from a publican named Evans; I filled it up, and Buddle signed it." On prosecutor presenting the cheque at the bank he was refused payment because no such person as Buddle was known there. It was maintained in defence that prisoner had received the cheque as stated, and the unfortunate absence of Buddle was attributed to his having committed a criminal offence. After a brief consideration the jury found the prisoner guilty, the foreman adding a recommendation for mercy. Several prior heavy sentences for forgery and uttering (the latest seven years, penal servitude in New Zealand) were recorded. The prisoner was remanded for sentence.

SENTENCES.

William Mitchell and Henry Hunter, convicted of assault, with intent to rob, were brought up for sentence. The Judge, in passing sentence, said both men belonged to a bad class, though they had not been found guilty of the more serious offence—that of garotting—with which they were charged. He sentenced them for the crime of which they had been found guilty. In doing so, he certainly ought to make a distinction. Mitchell, having been the more active and more brutal man of the two, he sentenced to eight years penal servitude; Hunter he sentened to six years penal servitude, refusing, unless in the event of new facts coming to light, permission to petition.

CASES FOR MONDAY.

Sarah Conroy, arson; George Thomas Price, forgery and uttering; Joseph Myers, perjury.

POLICE.

Mr. G. O'Malley Clarke, S.M., presided in the Charge Division of the CENTRAL POLICE COURT. Ellen Stephenson, 41, was fined 20s., with the option of 21 days' gaol, for assaulting George Godden. George Parry, 18, labourer, was sentenced to 14 days' imprisonment, on a charge of stealing the sum of 4s. from his employer, Frank Wilson. John Black, 35, fish-dealer, charged with cruelly illtreating a horse by working it in an unfit state in St. John's-road, was mulct in the penalty of £5, with the option of two months' gaol. David Lyons and William Sampson, on remand, were charged with stealing two boxes of tobacco, value £18 10s., the property of the Railway Commissioners. It appears that on the 4th instant, at about 12.30 p.m., they were seen in a car at the Redfern railway station near the place where two tobacco boxes, together with some other goods, were stored. At about half-past 1 the boxes were missed. On the same date Lyons called a man named Michael Roche out of Gleeson's tobacco shop near the Haymarket and offered him a box of tobacco at 2s. or 3s. per lb. Roche saw the prisoner Sampson in a cart near where they were standing. It was agreed that Roche should buy the tobacco (about 60lb.) for £9. Lyons and Roche then got into the cart with Sampson and drove away. The next morning Lyons went to Roche's house and told his wife that the box was not all right. After some further conversation, Lyons took the box away. When Lyons and Sampson were asked on the Thursday night about the tobacco boxes, they said they knew nothing about them. Accused, who reserved their defence, were committed for trial at the next Court of Quarter Sessions.

Mr. A. M. Fisher, S.M., presided in the Charge Division of the WATER POLICE COURT; and Mr. G. W. F. Addison, S.M., dealt with a large number of cases in the Summons Division. Patrick Flynn, 22, no occupation, was ordered to be imprisoned for two months, with hard labour, on a charge of stealing a waterproof cape and a quantity of dress material, value £2 10s., the property of Carl Riemenschneider. For having five keys in his possession which were reasonably suspected to be stolen, accused was further sentenced to one month's imprisonment, with hard labour. Edward Mahoney, 28, 'bus-driver, was fined 30s. and 21s. costs, or one month to gaol, for cruelly illtreating two horses in William-street by working them whilst they were in an unfit condition. Thomas Fleury, 36, bookmaker, and Mary Ann Fleury, 34, married, were remanded until Tuesday next on a charge of having several articles of jewellery in their possession which were reasonably suspected to be stolen. Ishmael Whitley, on remand, was further remanded until Thursday on a charge of obtaining the sum of 15s. by means of false pretences, with intent to defraud; and also, on another charge, that while being the bailee of a sample bag, value 15s., the property of William H. Murrell, he did fraudulently convert the same to his own use, with intent to defraud. Julian Portels, 35, a French labourer, appeared in answer to a charge of stealing from the P. and O. steamer Ballaarat, lying at the Circular Quay, about five dozen pipes, value £20, the property of Messrs. Heyde, Todman, and Co. It was shown that the prisoner had sold a number of the pipes in question to a hairdresser and tobacconist named George Vincent, carrying on business in George-street. The manager for Messrs. Heyde, Todman, and Co. said five dozen pipes were missed from a case which formed part of a shipment received by the firm per the Ballaarat. The accused was committed to take his trial at the next Court of Quarter Sessions. Louisa Smith, 20, no occupation, charged with fraudulently appropriating £1, the property of Alfred Cox, residing at Rockdale, was fined 40s., or 21 days' gaol. Lily Dyer, 28, married, was charged with attempting to commit suicide by throwing herself into the waters of Woolloomooloo Bay. Constable M'Kay said he proceeded to Cowper Wharf on Thursday afternoon, where he saw the accused lying in a small boat; she appeared to have been in the water; he asked her why she had thrown herself into the bay, and she replied, "I did it because my husband treated me so cruelly; it is no use for you to arrest me—I shall do it again;" she appeared to have had drink, but was not intoxicated; her clothing was saturated with water; witness took her to the police-station, and charged her with attempting to commit suicide; in reply she said, "I wanted to do away with myself." George Simpson, a fruit-hawker, deposed that he saw the woman near the Domain on Thursday afternoon; she bought some fruit from him and said, "I am going to do away with myself, so if you hear of anyone being drowned, my name's Dyer;" he advised her to do no such thing, and told her to go home; later on she left his stall and jumped over the edge of the wharf into the water; the woman was subsequently rescued from drowning by some onlookers. The accused, who said she had no recollection of what had occurred, was committed for trial at the Quarter Sessions. She was allowed bail, herself in £20, and one surety of £20. Four persons, named respectively John Donohue, Thomas Jones (alias M'Carthy), Sarah Green (or Russell), and Emily Canham, on remand, appeared in answer to a charge of being concerned one with another in breaking and entering the dwelling-house of Allen Morrison, No. 5, Short-street, and stealing therein, his property, a gold ring, gold necklet and locket, silver albert, two diamonds, and a number of other articles, valued in all £23. When the case was called on the police stated they had no evidence to offer against the woman Canham, who was discharged. Senior-constable George Brown and Constable George Goulder gave evidence as to the arrest of the accused persons. When Donohue was searched two studs (produced), said to be the property of Morrison, were found in his possession. The woman, Emily Canham, was then put into the box. She gave evidence on behalf of the police. The prosecutor, who is a plasterer, said that he remembered the night of the 30th ultimo; he left his house at an early hour, but before doing so fastened the place securely; on returning about 9 o'clock "he found the front door open and the house turned upside down;" he missed a number of articles, value about £23; the articles produced were his property, and formed a portion of the stolen goods. The three prisoners, who reserved their defence, were then committed to take their trial at the next Court of Quarter Sessions. Bail was refused. Thomas Fleury, 36, bookmaker, and Mary Ann Fleury, 34, his wife, were charged with having the undermentioned valuable articles in their possession, some of which are suspected to have been stolen:—An American chronograph hunting keyless watch; a curb pattern double gold albert, with gold locket, with square and compass set with small diamond, gold pencil-case attached; an open-faced silver watch; gold horse-shoe pin, set with 29 pearls; round gold pin, set with diamond in centre; gold pin, round shape, black enamel, set with pearls, surrounded with small diamond sparks; cluster diamond ring, set with sapphire in centre; gold amethyst ring, flat band; two diamond studs; lady's silver hunting geneva watch; lady's gold albert, twisted wire pattern, with tassel; pair gold earrings, set with large opals; pair old-fashioned gold earrings, blue enamel, with small pearl in centre; pair gold earrings, set with five small diamonds and four small rubies; gold brooch, crescent pattern, filagree work, set with 15 pearls; pair gold solitaires, three gold rings, a gold brooch, and a pair of earrings. The accused were remanded.

Mr. Marsh S.M., disposed of the business of the BALMAIN POLICE COURT. Charles H. Ferguson was charged with having given an unstamped receipt for £3. Defendant was ordered to pay £2 and 4s. 10d. costs, levy in distress, or seven days' imprisonment.

MAGISTERIAL INQUIRY.

DEATH FROM OPIUM POISONING.

Mr. W. T. Pinhey, J.P., held a magisterial inquiry at the Kent Hotel yesterday afternoon relative to the death of a woman named Johanna O'Shannessy Ah Moy, who died that morning at her residence, No. 5, Goulburn-place, off Goulburn-street, without having been seen by a doctor. The deceased was 26 years of age, and was given to drink and opium smoking. Dr. H. Sinclair made a post-mortem examination, and found that death was due to coma, consequent upon opium poisoning. Mr. Pinhey found that death was due to an overdose of opium, which was self-administered.

THE CHARGE OF CONSPIRACY.

At the Water Police Court yesterday, before Mr. G. W. F. Addison, S.M., three young men, named respectively Ernest John Arthur Wells, Albert Doyle, and John M'Dougall, on remand, were charged, by warrant, with having, in company with each other, conspired together falsely to charge and accuse one Robert Kuntsman of forging a promissory note for the sum of £500 on the Commercial Banking Company, Sydney, purporting to be signed by John Rae, the late Under-Secretary for Works.

Mr. C. Bull appeared to prosecute; Mr. W. Roberts, senior, appeared on behalf of M'Dougall; Mr. W. J. Hill for Doyle, and Mr. Lusk watched the case on behalf of Wells.

At the previous hearing of the case some days ago the prosecutor, who is an architect and engineer, carrying on business in Sydney, gave evidence as to the alleged conspiracy. Kuntsman was then cross-examined at considerable length by Mr. W. Roberts, senior, in order to test his credibility.

Yesterday Kuntsman was further cross-examined by Mr. Roberts, and admitted that he had been insolvent 12 years ago, and that he had been in pecuniary difficulties since then; had had dealings with Mr. John Rae, and had given him a promissory note for £100 as security; during his (Kuntsman's) illness M'Dougall was not authorised to transact business for him.

Cross-examined by Mr. W. J. Hill, Kuntsman stated that he had had no judgment given against him in Victoria or New Zealand, and had everywhere and at all times borne the same name.

Mr. Lusk then cross-examined Kuntsman at some length, after which the further hearing of the case was postponed until Thursday next. The accused were allowed bail, Wells (who had attempted to evade apprehension) having to find £500, and Doyle and M'Dougall £400 each.

THE CENTENNIAL FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir.—With much pleasure I read "A Subscriber's" courteous but excellent reply to our deeply respected Primate's letter upon the above. But I was sorry to observe that in calculating the amount per head required to make up the £200,000 desired by the Primate, "A Subscriber" resorted to that exploded fallacy of reckoning the members of the Church of England upon the basis of the census, which most absurdly includes as members of the Church of England all those who do not professedly belong to any other denomination. Every churchman knows, too, that hundreds of people who never enter a church at all, or at most only upon the occasion of a marriage, a formal christening, or a funeral, are included as members of the Church. Surely no reasoning person will really acknowledge such as bona-fide adherents of the Church, from whom any support might be expected. Any appeal of the kind to hundreds of such would be laughed to scorn. Fully one-half of the numbers accredited to the Church may well be struck out, but nevertheless the tax upon the other half would not be a very heavy one if there were not other causes besides mere indifference at work. A "Subscriber's" last paragraph struck the right key. The contradictory nature of the teachings of the two extreme parties in the Church is the opposing factor in the matter, and there are hundreds of Church people who have resolutely resolved to support neither the Centennial Fund nor the Church Society while they feel uncertain whether their money will be applied to the dissemination of what they believe to be pure gospel truth, or to that of deadly error. The matter should be fairly looked in the face. At present the Church is a house divided against itself, and we know what is predicted of such a house. The Nonconformist bodies set a noble example of unity among themselves, and so do the Roman Catholics, and hence their success. Would that our churchmen would follow their example, and instead of quarrelling over unscriptural and unnecessary ceremonies, positions, and millinery, unite in one common cause for the promulgation of true religion, and the raising the masses of their own professed adherents from practical atheism and profanity. Then there would be no need for the unseemly public begging, and complaints of niggardliness now so rife.

NEW SOUTH WALES LOANS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As a matter of public interest I quote the following remarks from a private letter I recently received from Mr. H. C. Burdett, Chief Secretary of the London Stock Exchange, relative to the figures that are from time to time published in England on the colony's position, the material inaccuracies of which, Mr. Burdett states, must, if it continues, have a prejudicial effect on the price of our Stock. Mr. Burdett says:—"If you have any influence on the authorities of New South Wales, you would do your colony good service if you could cause them to have accurate and precise figures issued concerning their position. It is a remarkable fact that we hardly ever get a precise figure from New South Wales, and the returns received contain many material inaccuracies which even a casual examination brings to light. This should not be, and if it continues it must have a very marked effect upon the price at which your stock will stand in the market. It is a marked contrast to the figures issued by the colony of Victoria, which sets an example to the whole British Empire, and leaves absolutely to be desired in the way of accuracy and fulness."

Whilst on this subject I might add that when I was in England some time ago, and conversing with Mr. Burdett, he adversely criticised the modus operandi of floating New South Wales loans and pointed out that the expensive machinery of the Bank of England in the operation, and syndicates of avaricious London brokers might be well avoided. He said the genuine investor was under no delusion that the Bank of England was any guarantee to him, and he knew quite well he must rely on the security of the colony only, that the colony in resorting to bringing out loans under the wing of the Bank of England tended rather to create doubt as to the goodness of their security. And, as to the part the brokers played, it was a decided disadvantage first in practically controlling the floating of the loans—dictating when a loan should or should not be floated—and subsequently as the holders of large parcels of Stock, at one time forcing it on the general market, and at another "making the market" to suit themselves, with the result that the New South Wales Stock did not bring the price that it should, comparing it with minor colonies and countries. Mr. Burdett's idea is that the authorities in New South Wales could obtain better prices and avoid heavy expenses by issuing their debentures gradually through their own London bankers selling in a natural way to the bona-fide investor, and that the colonial Government and its local bankers would find the system more convenient that the present one of having large sums of money suddenly thrown on their hands, which can only gradually be employed. Mr. Burdett being one of the ablest authorities in England on this subject, the views he expresses cannot fail to be interesting to the public.

MEETINGS.

ST. PETER'S TO LIVERPOOL LOOP-LINE.

A meeting of gentlemen interested in the construction of the proposed loop-line from St. Peter's to Liverpool was held in Tattersall's-chambers yesterday afternoon, the chair being occupied by Mr. W. W. Taylor.

After some remarks from the chairman,

Mr. A. HUTCHISON, M.L.A., said he believed the line was one which should be constructed; they were now called upon to show their case. Their best course was to get the matter before the Parliamentary Committee on Public Works, and thus properly before the House. One of their leading arguments had been that the proposed line would be a great relief to the present congested traffic between Granville and Sydney. They should not run in the teeth of the Railway Commissioners. He believed that the Ministry were in favour of the line, but they were not now able to give effect to what they favoured.

Dr. BENNOW referred at length to the negligence of the House in not appointing a Public Works Committee.

Mr. LOVELL DAVIS moved,—"That a deputation be appointed to wait on the Minister for Works, asking that tenders be called for the construction of the line to the eight-mile peg, in accordance with the report of the Commissioners."

Alderman SMITH moved as an amendment,—"That the members for the districts interested be asked to press the Government to lay the St. Peters-Liverpool loop-line before the Public Works Committee." In his opinion, they should endeavour to have the whole of the line constructed.

Both motions were duly seconded, and after considerable discussion, Mr. Davis (with the consent of the meeting, withdrew his, Mr. Smith's amendment standing as the resolution.

Mr. L. DAVIS then moved as an amendment,—"That the members for Canterbury and Central Cumberland be asked to press the Government to submit the proposed loop-line from St. Peters to Liverpool, or so much of it as they may think prudent to construct at present, to the Public Works Committee."

Alderman MOVES seconded this, after which a desultory discussion ensued between the two parties (apparently representing Canterbury and Liverpool), the point at issue being whether the meeting would accept Mr. Smith's resolution or Mr. Davis's amendment thereon. The amendment was ultimately carried by a large majority.

SYDNEY CITY MISSION.

A tea and public meeting in connection with the Chippendale branch of the Sydney City Mission was held in the Baptist Church, Harris-street, on Wednesday night last. Mr. J. P. Walker, a member of the Sydney City Mission committee, was the donor of the tea. About 400 people did ample justice to the viands provided, of which there was abundance. About 450 attended the public meeting, Mr. J. C. Taylor (member of the Sydney City Mission committee), presided. The following gentlemen were on or near the platform:—Revs. R. Taylor (Baptist), and B. Stephen (Church of England), Messrs. J. P. Walker, D. D. Graham, J. Young, G. D. Taylor, J.P., W. Broom, E. Chamberlain, A. T. Munro, and Messrs. Seddon, Hague, and Main (missionaries). The missionary, Mr. Seddon, read the report for the year:—Number of visits, 2600; meetings, 299; average attendance, 160; temperance pledges, 325; read and prayed with, 1794; poor families relieved, 307; medical aid provided for, 65; professed conversions, 131; gave 20 blankets and 30 parcels of clothing to the poor, and 35 Bibles to those who had none. A mission Sunday-school has been started, conducted by Mr. J. Abbott, at which 50 children attend. The usual votes of thanks and the Doxology brought the meeting to a close.

SONS OF TEMPERANCE.

The business of the annual session was resumed on Thursday morning. The following officers were present:—M.W.P. M.W. Scribe, M.W. Chaplain, and M.W. Conductor. Discussion on a motion to raise a fund for the support of a regular paid lecturer and organiser ensued at some length, when the motion was withdrawn. Bro. Box (Victoria) gave an address, and thanked the members for their cordiality. It was resolved that the next annual session be held on the first Tuesday in May, 1890, at Newcastle. It was agreed "That it be a recommendation of this National Division to all grand divisions that, in order to meet difficulties that may be presented, subordinate divisions be requested to provide for the attendance of the W.P., F.S., and treasurer to receive contributions, quarterly night excepted." Resolved,—"That the question of revision of the constitution be referred to the Executive." The session then adjourned, and after dinner the representatives, with a few friends, had an enjoyable trip up the Parramatta and Lane Cove Rivers, and down the harbour. After a social tea, business was again resumed. Resolved,—"That this National Division pledges itself to full local option, without compensation." "That the thanks of the National Division be presented to the retiring officers for their zeal during the past year (especially to Bro. C. Cousins), also to our visiting brethren from Victoria and South Australia." Brothers Gale, Past M. W. P., Fraser, Dominey, Reid, and Cousins responded appropriately. Resolved,—"That the good of the order committee, as instituted last year, be continued." A hearty vote of thanks was awarded to the country members, which was responded to by Bros. Jenner, Purshouse, and Russell. During the evening the business was suspended to enable official visits to be made from kindred benefit societies. These were made by the juvenile branches of the order, the Order of Rechabites, Local Option League, and Order of Good Templars. All were welcomed, and a vote of thanks passed for their kindly visit. Rev. Bro. Asher, Mr. F. A. Morgan, Mr. A. Hutchison, M.L.A., and Mr. G. Clark responded on behalf of the various organisations. Rev. Mr. Beale and W. L. Dash also responded. There being no further business, the session was closed with prayer by the M.W. Chaplain.

FREE TRADE MEETING AT WATERLOO.

Last night a meeting of the Waterloo branch of the Free Trade Association of New South Wales was held in the Foresters' Hall, Botany-street. Alderman Anderson occupied the chair, and there was a representative attendance. The object of the meeting was to elect officers of the branch. After preliminary discussion it was moved by Alderman Foskett,—"That the boroughs of Waterloo and Alexandria form one branch of the Free Trade Association of New South Wales." The motion was seconded by Mr. G. C. Taylor, and supported by Alderman Berry, Mr. W. Stephen, M.L.A., and carried. The election of officers resulted as follows:—President, Mr. Alderman Anderson; vice-presidents, Alderman Foskett, Alderman L. M. Williams, Mr. J. C. Taylor, and Mr. W. Setchell; treasurer, Alderman Harden; and secretary, Mr. Clark. It was also decided that all members enrolled form the general committee. A number of members were enrolled during the evening.

THE STEAMSHIP OWNERS' ASSOCIATION OF AUSTRALASIA.

The ordinary monthly meeting of the S.S. Owners' Association was held yesterday afternoon in the rooms of the association, 5, O'Connell-street, Mr. James Burns (A.U.S.N. Company) being in the chair. The secretary reported that three months' notice had been received to the effect that the Melbourne Wharf Labourers' Union intend to nullify the agreement entered into on 15th January, 1886, between the Union and the S.S. Owners, and that it is supposed this action is a preliminary step to another strike. The secretary drew attention to the fact that an Employers' Liability Act Amendment Bill to amend the Act of 1886 is about to be brought forward in the House of Assembly. The matter of claims against the Government for overpaid shipping office fees was reported, as also claims against the Postal authorities for the carriage of forward mails.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

A meeting of the council was held yesterday, Mr. F. B. Kyngdon in the chair. An offer was received from Messrs. Anthony Hordern and Sons, of the Palace Emporium, Haymarket, of four prizes, of the value of £5 each, either in money or cups, as special prizes at the forthcoming show. The thanks of the society were accorded to Messrs. Anthony Hordern. A specimen of Stink Wort was received from Mr. C. J. Coates, secretary of the Royal Agricultural and Horticultural Society of South Australia, with an enquiry whether the council had any knowledge of the plant or its properties. The matter was referred to the consideration of Mr. J. H. Maiden, Technological Museum. A resolution was passed relative to the terms for using the ground by the Sydney Driving Park Club, confirming the usual charge, together with an additional 5 per cent. on sales of horses. The following motion, proposed by Mr. James Martin, M.L.A., seconded by T. L. Peate, was carried unanimously:—"That it is desirable that this council be represented at each meeting of the Sydney Driving Park Club by a number of its members to act as stewards equal in number to those nominated as stewards by the Sydney Driving Park Club." The date of the show has been fixed for the 18th, 19th, 20th, and 21st September next.

On Wednesday evening last the St. Leonards Literary and Debating Society held its weekly meeting in the East St. Leonards Town Hall. The senior vice-president, Mr. S. Gordon-Robey, occupied the chair. Mr. R. S. Nettingham, on behalf of the "Ministry," gave notice that, on the next meeting night, he would move that leave be given to bring in a bill to amend the electoral system of New South Wales. Mr. Butchar ("Premier") moved,—"That in future no question of a personal political character be introduced into the society." Mr. C. F. Garvan seconded pro forma. An amendment to omit all the words after "that," in order to substitute the following, "this House declines to curtail the discretionary power of the 'Ministry' in its choice of subjects of debate, being satisfied with the present arrangements," was proposed and carried in the usual way. Mr. Leonard Taylor, editor, assisted by various members, read the usual monthly "Critic," which was well received, and warmly criticised.

The William-street Mutual Improvement Association held their usual weekly meeting in St. Peter's Schoolroom on Thursday evening, the business being "Impromptu Speeches." The usual mode of distributing the subject papers by ballot was adopted, the following being the subjects discussed and by whom:—"That the action of Sir Henry Parkes in the Chinese difficulty was ridiculous," Mr. Capell; "Is Sir Henry Parkes a statesman?" Mr. H. Bush; "Sir John Robertson's proposed return to the political arena," Mr. Wilson; "Are trades unions a failure," Mr. Flowers; "That Mr. M'Millan's financial statement was worthy of a Parkes Government," Mr. O. Bailey; "Suicide," Mr. Wright; "Should Sunday concerts be prohibited," Mr. Hawkins; "Abolition of capital punishment," Mr. Benning; "Should property-holders be entitled to a vote as such," Messrs. Coates and Brierly. Most of the subjects were well discussed, considerable benefit being derived by the members present.

The monthly meeting of the Charity Organisation Society was held on Wednesday, Mr. E. Fosbery presiding. There were present Messrs. F. C. Griffiths, C. B. Fairfax, A. H. Maxwell, and the secretary (J. Sidney). A letter was received from Sir Alfred Roberts expressing regret at his inability to attend. A report of the society's work for the month was read, showing that during March 264 persons applied for relief, an increase of 38 over previous month and 104 over corresponding period of 1888. This number comprised 126 married couples, 42 widows, and five deserted women, with 439 children depending upon the above; three single women and 88 single men, of the latter the majority being outdoor patients at the Infirmary, and unable to work.

At a public meeting held at Ryde on Wednesday evening, the Mayor (Alderman Lovell), Alderman Jordan and Forsyth, were appointed a deputation to call upon the members for Central Cumberland, to ask their intervention with the Minister for Works, with regard to Mr. Smith visiting the Ryde district during the recess. Accordingly, the deputation met the four members on Thursday, and those gentlemen afterwards interviewed the Minister, who fixed upon Friday, May 10, for projected visit. Other members of the Ministry will probably accompany him.

"HIS EFFORTS FAILED."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Eulogies are sometimes sincere, oftener not so, but always cheap; both kinds generally abound at what are called valedictory meetings, especially to clergymen, many of whom are sufficiently discriminating to estimate the flatterers and their flatteries at their true value, and to know when the latter are nothing more than a verbose lip-atonement for the absence of true sympathy and co-operation, the presence of which, at the proper time, would have helped to make their ministry both successful and pleasurable. I observed in your issue of Tuesday the report of a valedictory meeting held at the Bourke-street Wesleyan Church, at which the retiring minister stated that, "he was a receding figure, and as such no doubt his virtues were much magnified, and his defects minimised." An epigrammatic and philosophical deprecation of the eulogies of the speakers who preceded him. But the speech of the rev. gentleman deserves attention, inasmuch as it referred boldly and wisely to a subject of more than merely local or even denominational importance. He said, "He sympathised with the remarks previous speakers had made regarding his efforts during his Bourke-street pastorate to make the church as far as possible a young man's church. He did not believe that the Methodism of the old land of 50 years ago would do in Australia. Methodism of the ancient English type was not compatible with the climate and instinct of the Methodist Churches developing in New South Wales. They would be mistaken if they thought they could grow and increase on the old lines when in the early days the great bulk of Methodists were those who had come from the old land. The bulk of the Methodists of to-day were native-born, young men and women who had been reared under very different conditions to those of the land and race from which they sprang, and if they were to keep their churches together, and make them vigorous, they must adapt themselves to the different conditions, and secure the best services of their younger men. When entering the circuit he did so with the determination to make Bourke-street the centre of circuit work, the great aim of which would be to secure the young men of the neighbourhood. His efforts failed. Two years were not a sufficient length of time for a man to repeat experiments, and that his first had failed was a matter for deep regret to him." The report gives no indication of the causes of failure, though a fuller explanation would have been acceptable. It would have been interesting to know what the efforts comprised. Were there obstructive influences to be found in the system of its government? Were they due to the doctrinal theology of Methodism? Were they due to the minister himself, on the square-peg-in-a-round-hole principle? Were the efforts themselves impracticable? Were they, being based on the convictions expressed in the above excerpt, regarded with disfavour by those who abhor anything like innovation, no matter how rational, and who "cling to the past, with all the doggedness of ignorance, as though progression were a deadly sin." Or was the dismal confession, "his efforts failed," due to the hateful, miserable jealousy towards the new methods and workers on the part of those who enjoyed a monopoly of official power under the old and ineffective regime? On these points the public are left unenlightened. That obstacles of an insurmountable character were present to render absolutely nugatory for two years this clergyman's progressive work for the young men of his district, is evident from the closing lines of his speech. "He had experienced so many difficulties and disappointments that he wished to go elsewhere where he might be more successful. When in Brisbane he would endeavour to get a church in which the young men's influence would be a vital power." It may be hoped that in the Northern capital this liberal-minded and clear-seeing clergyman will meet with more success. But his speech opens up the discussion of a very important question, viz., the attitude of the churches to the rising manhood of these colonies, and vice versa. The clergyman quoted above, Rev. R. Dyson, stated his deliberate conviction to be that the "Methodism of the old land of 50 years ago would not do in Australia," &c. How far is this shared by the majority of the body of clergymen to which he belongs? Do the younger ministers show greater sympathy with the adoption of the new lines, suggested by Mr. Dyson, upon which Australian Methodism should go, if it would be fully successful among the young people? What about the "vigour" of that Church which Dr. Dale has praised in his notes on these colonies? Is it the "vigour" commensurate with the prosperity and growth of these colonies, or simply the vigour that invariably flows from prosperity and growth? Nor need these inquiries be exclusively confined to one Church. What of the others? Are they, too, in their subservience to English precedents and old-time methods, failing to exert their fullest influence, and so losing that grasp upon the youthhood of these fair lands which they might possess under newer and more congenial conditions? A young man told me that at an evening service in a suburban Church of England, a few Sabbaths ago, he was struck by the meagre attendance of young men, only 29 being present in a large congregation! And this meagreness of attendance is not confined to one denomination only; it extends to the others. Is the church life here not compatible with the climate and instinct of the manhood developing in the colonies? Rev. Joseph Cook, of Boston, in his lecture at Pitt-street a few years since on the future of Australasia, included the climate as one of the things likely to have a deleterious effect, both physically and morally. Is the climate so enervating as to tend to mental indolence on the part of young men, robbing them of the moral wholesomeness which activity of thought induces? Are the words of the celebrated American preacher already receiving their fulfilment in the moral declension of the manhood of these colonies? Is the attitude of that manhood to the Churches one of antagonism or indifference, because the tendency of Church teaching is corrective of their moral delinquencies? Then, what is the "instinct" of Australians? Essentially that of freedom. They know no hereditary nobility, no State-subsidised church of ancient establishment, no inherited abuses, no legacies from the bygone centuries, no traditions. They have no monuments of the struggles that won their freedom, civil and religious. They are contemporaneous with their country's institutions; no buildings, hoary with antiquity, throw shadows upon them to help the development of the reverential. Democratic in civil government, autocratic church government does not accord with their aspirations. Liberal in politics, shaping their own national destiny, stately conservatism in church observances and administration is irksome, and religious methods adapted to their own progressive condition are looked for; not those that find their origin and power in State patronage, hoary precedents, or successful revivalism in other lands, and under a totally different environment. I have very diffidently touched upon this subject, but it is one important enough to engage the devoted study of those who control Church life here, and who, by the agency of that Church life, aim to shape and elevate the character of the rising manhood of Australia.

WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—By to-day's news I see that the Land Nationalisation Society have given Mr. Garland, M.P., letters of introduction to prominent Americans. Would you kindly allow me to inquire what address they gave for that famous champion of liberty, William Lloyd Garrison, as I notice he is mentioned among others. According to the best authorities William Lloyd Garrison died on the 24th May, 1879, in his 74th year, and the late Professor Denton published a readable pamphlet shortly after Garrison's death, entitled "Garrison in Heaven," being a detailed account of the reception of so great and good a man as seen by him (Denton) in a dream. I hope Mr. Garland will come back to us in the body, or perhaps—well let me end there.

REVIEWS.

John Francis, Publisher of the Athenaeum: a Literary Chronicle of Half a Century. Compiled by JOHN C. FRANCIS, with an introductory note by H. R. FOX BOURNE. Two volumes. London: Richard Bentley and Son, 1888.

We find it necessary to repeat the title page of these two volumes, for if any reader should imagine that this work is a biography of John Francis, he would be mistaken. Nor would he be more correct in supposing then that it was a history of the Athenaeum. It is neither, but a chronicle, not always literary, of half a century from 1831 to 1882. A third volume is promised, in which the biography of the soi-disant subject of the present two volumes will be completed; we would say, taken in hand. However, those who are content to take what the diligent compiler gives them in 1144 octavo pages will perhaps not greatly miss what he does not give. For here will be found such a mass of information, assorted only in the chronological connection, as would need to be sought for in hundreds of volumes. There is hardly a man of letters, or science, or politics, or war, or, indeed, of eminence in any of the many walks of English modern life, who does not figure in one or other of these presentable volumes. Curious little bits of anecdotal history, criticism, biography or autobiography, miscellaneous information upon a wide miscellany of subjects, can be found by opening the books almost at random; while a consultation of the indices reveals much that a reader would not hope to find here. Notes of the rise of the great publishing houses and their members, their authors, their clients, their friends, their enterprises, and successes and failures; out-of-the-way bits of political information such as the literary pensions of Sir Robert Peel's civil list; reminiscences of journalists and scholars, politicians and poets, investors and travellers, some forgotten, some eminent; descriptions of mechanical wonders of the days before telegraph and steam—all and much more is to be found in this omnium gatherum, where the valuable and the trivial jostle on the one page, and the step is often wanting that separates the sublime from the ridiculous. It is all accomplished by the simple process of going through 40 years' files of the Athenaeum, and clipping, sometimes judiciously, sometimes, as it seems, at random excerpts from its columns, and transferring them, with all the approved apparatus of index, side-notes, chapter summaries, footnotes, themselves side-noted, into "copy" for Messrs. Bentley's printers. And it all results in absolutely one of the most interesting books that the publishing season of 1888 has given us. As far as Francis himself is concerned, we just get enough information to discern that he was a man of the stamp of "antique service," zealous, faithful, and exact to his employer, unpretentious, of old-fashioned piety, and earnest service to his church, the Baptist—just one of those Englishmen that Wordsworth commends in his famous sonnet. It is a glimpse that would have justified his son is preparing a real and not a nominal biography. With that, however, the present volumes do not deal, and it is for the reviewer to notice the contents of this compilation as they stand.

Certainly the volumes are proof of how sensitive and exact a record of the national life and movement a great paper is. The Athenaeum was started for a particular service in literature, which was for independent criticism on books, art, and music—the belles-lettres, as this province of the mental republic used to be called. Before the Athenaeum was issued the criticism in the daily or weekly press was advertising under another name. Buckingham, the founder of the Athenaeum, carried on in spite of much positive and negative opposition. Mr. Dilke, who bought out Mr. Buckingham, continued the independent course of the paper and extended its scope and power. Under a succession of really "able" editors, and with the help of a great deal of the literary power of England, the paper became in its own sphere very highly influential, and influential for the best purposes. By its reviews, its independent articles, its contributions, it was enabled to invade most provinces of popular (and unpopular) interest and importance. It declared with emphasis the claims of the outcast and homeless or ill-housed classes, it urged every social improvement, whether sanitation or the founding of penny banks, the institution of ragged schools (protesting against the name), Birbeck or Mechanics' Institute; and the first International Exhibition of 1852, the Franklin relief expeditions, and other national aims had in it a stanch and persistent advocate. And it is precisely because the Athenaeum was so much, and touched the national life of Britain at so many points, that Mr. Francis's compilation is so interesting. Without the pretence and bombast of history, or the minute and wearisome detail of biography, we get here the succinct histories of men and events that cannot lose interest for this century. We get out of the evenly chronological connection of the compiler a perspective in which to view many aspects of the changes of our time. These unstudied bits of criticism, bearing the impress of the date when they were given to the world, are full of interest now, when the subjects and the author of that criticism have alike passed out of our region. And a perhaps not unsalutary lesson may be taught in the fact that while this world revolved in London for half a century, the references to Australia in both these big volumes may be numbered within the fingers of both hands. Britain has added the fifth great division of the world to the possessions of her children, and all that one of the leading British organs finds to comment upon in the matter can be summarised in a few lines. Thus (vol. I., p. 243): "The Australian papers report that the first railway on that continent has been commenced. It is to begin at Sydney—but to go whither, no man is rash enough to predict. The direction, however, is not along the coast, but into the interior of the country. A century hence, such is the wondrous growth of the colony, it may possibly cross that vast desert which no traveller has yet been able to explore." That is in 1850; the third part of the Athenaeum reviewer's century had not passed before New South Wales and Victoria had not only tapped the desert, but actually rivalled the most progressive commercial nations in the proportion of railway mileage to population. Amongst Mr. Francis' references to our colony does not appear the pathetic appeal of our Kendall to the arbitrament of the Athenaeum as to the merit of some of his poems, now no longer needing apology, and known in his volume Leaves from Australian Forests. It was his one revolt; ever after he was content to trust to his countrymen, he that was too modest to trust to himself.

Out of Mr. Hatton's Journalistic London the general reader will look in vain for so much condensed information about some of the great London journals as he is here presented with. That is what makes the book a veritable treasure trove for the man who wants to see behind the scenes of London. All sorts and conditions of men are here, their deeds and words, how they lived and how they died, when and where. The career of an adventuress and that of George IV. are not too small or too high for the wonderful impartiality of the compiler. Eccentrics like Beckford of Fonthill and Lord Eskgrove, and anecdotes of their whims, meet the reader here and there. And by the deaths within the half-century of eminent men of the pre-Victorian era the list of condensed biographies is extended to many an exalted personage who does not belong to the story by its dates. The character then of these two really valuable and most interesting volumes which Messrs. Bentley have sent out, may be easily stated. A compilation, quite unsystematic except for the chronological sequence of the Athenaeum, but generally amusing, has secured for us the cream of personal and intimate knowledge upon a wide range of men and affairs. As a repertory of names, dates, and events of the whole Victorian era it has a merit that is almost unique. For the irony of the situation is, that while the book is out of court as a biography, which is what it pretends to be, it is a success as a lengthy epitome of things in general, which it does not pretend to be. No one can read the book without interest, and no one will be so oblivious to the singular merit of the compilation as to regret what Mr. Francis has made out of his father's biography. But as a biography of Francis, or a history of the Athenaeum, it is not a failure, because it really does not make a serious attempt at either.

The Economic Interpretation of History. (Lectures delivered in Worcester Hall, Oxford, 1887-8.) By JAMES E. THOROLD ROGERS, Professor of Political Economy, University of Oxford. London: T. Fisher Unwin.

The professorship of political economy in Oxford has nearly always been fortunate in being in good hands, and the foundation of the chair was really a notable fact in English history. Mr. Rogers certainly maintains the reputation of the best of his predecessors, and he shows himself flexible to the spirit of the age by doing his best to keep the study as scientific as possible. In other words, he tries to base his teaching on an extensive and careful collection of facts, and not on theories of human nature; and in these lectures he gives everywhere proof of original and laborious search in the facts of social history. The consequence is that the book is not only singularly interesting as a sample of the food on which the students of the great English University are reared, but as a great repository of facts, and as suggestive of the conclusions towards which those facts tend. Two things, he says, have discredited political economy—the one its traditional disregard of facts, the other its strangling itself with definitions. Yet if the economist is to be anything, he must be practical; and to be practical means that he must always be in touch with the social side of industrial life, and that he should not use the words of the common people and argue from them logically unless they are defined with an accuracy that will stand that logical treatment. The only fault that is to be found perhaps with Mr. Rogers's own method is that he is occasionally a little too dictatorial and bitter. He is an iconoclastic as well as a constructive teacher, and he hits out without mercy at those whose opinions he knocks over. This belligerent style is exceedingly interesting to young men, but it is hardly the philosophical attitude for one who is to train them to the supreme love of truth. The lectures cover a very wide range, yet the animating spirit of them all is a desire to show that much of history which has hitherto been treated as if it were political is really economical, and that it cannot be understood unless we understand the commercial conditions of the age. One point which he notices at the beginning is particularly interesting in connection with maritime discovery, one result of which was the final discovery of Australia. In the 12th and 13th centuries, when men were content with existing routes, and were not enthusiastic about geography, eastern produce came mainly overland, and was shipped at Selencia or Trebizond or Alexandria. The Venetian and Genoese traders mostly passed it on to European ports, where it again took a land journey over the passes of the Alps to the Upper Danube and the Rhine. What stopped all this tedious land traffic was not its slowness or costliness, but the destroying Turk, who blocked Central Asia by his conquests, leaving open only the route by Alexandria, and threatening even that. "It was, therefore, the object of the most enterprising of the western nations to to get if possible in the rear of these destructive brigands by discovering a long sea passage to Hindostan." The object of Columbus was to find a passage to Hindostan over the western sea. This is the way in which good grows out of evil, for the discovery of America and of the Cape of Good Hope route was due to the necessity under which Europe lay of finding a way to India which the Turk could not control. When the new routes were opened up, the whole course of trade was altered. Before they were discovered the price of all Eastern products rose enormously, because of the risk of transit. After they were discovered, the prices fell again. The change was largely injurious to many of the European cities that had previously been on the trade route; but other seaport towns grew in importance.

Mr. Rogers touches very frequently and at different angles, the great question of landlord and tenant, but his final conclusion is totally adverse to the theories and policy of Mr. Henry George. He quotes, as fairly suggestive, the Duke of Argyle's comparison between the hire of agricultural land and the hire of a musical instrument, because it illustrates the great fact that rent is the result of two forces—first, the natural powers of the soil; and secondly, the acquired power of the tiller. He gives many instances of the enormous service English landholders have done to agriculture when they have been improving occupiers, and have set the best examples, and led the county or the country; and then he gives the reverse of the picture, and shows how much mischief they have done when they have simply been exactors of rent and have squeezed the tenant till he could be squeezed no more. For all that, he does not wish to see landlords abolished. "I cannot dispute the claim of the landowner to the rent which he receives. I think the theory which would deprive him of it by law is unjust and odious. I hold that to have bought him out when Mr. Mill first ventilated the doctrine of the unearned increment would have been ruinous, as I insisted to that distinguished person when he advocated it, and as to the nationalisation of land, by which I suppose is meant the violent acquisition of it by the State, I must have a far better idea of any human administration than I have ever been able to form before I hesitate to conclude that such an expedient would be the beginning of a series of perpetual and nefarious jobs. Land was nationalised under the Roman Republic, and we all know what became of it, and of the Roman republic too." English landowners did not give up farming because they were tired of it or grew lazy, they gave it up because for a certain period they could not make it pay; and the reason why they could not make it pay was the rise in labour, and that was due to the Black Death, which first and last destroyed nearly a third of the population. It was better to let the working man take the land on his own account and pay a rent than for the owner to employ him on wages.

Mr. Rogers goes at great length into the labour legislation that followed the Black Death. The rise in the price of labour so completely upset all the calculations of the upper classes that law followed law in the attempt to knock wages down to what was considered the correct standard; and the struggle between these laws, and the hard facts of life is a bit of history which is full of instruction. It may interest many persons to be told that from the accession of Edward III. to the end of the 16th century England produced annually two and a-half million quarters of wheat for the same number of people, and the rate of produce ranged between six and nine bushels an acre.

There was a time when England had almost the monopoly of the production of wool, but when it had to send it abroad to get it manufactured. Yet the quality varied extraordinarily, certain Leominster wool being eight times as dear as that from Suffolk. The part that the Low countries played in manufactures is very fully given by Mr. Rogers, and the effect that international commerce had upon our politics as connected with the relations of the two countries. He also gives most interesting information as to England's indebtedness to the Protestant exiles who found refuge from the ecclesiastical persecutions of Europe, and who gave a political as well as an industrial element to England that had the greatest influence on her subsequent development. Now that the British flag covers the ocean, and that we do the carrying trade for the world, it may be interesting to look back to the time when "the Baltic, the Flemish towns, and the French seaboard were the limits of English maritime enterprise." Yet that was the case up to near the end of the 15th century. Indeed, there was a time when England seemed as if it were never going to have a manufacturing history, and never a maritime history, so dark do the potentialities of a nation sometimes lie.

Mr. Rogers has many interesting pages on taxation, and it may perhaps surprise some of our modern protectionists to be told that the old-fashioned English taxation was almost all direct, and, indeed, it would have been almost impossible to have had it any other way. He gives a good deal of exceedingly useful information as to how the old property taxes were levied, and how it was that the collection of customs at the ports gradually superseded them. It may also interest some of our readers to be told that Mr. Rogers, as a result of his analysis, has arrived at the conclusion that the modern income tax is inequitable.

We have not space to refer to a tithe of the instructive matter which this volume contains. There is not a lecture in it which is not good, and though many readers will resist some of the conclusions, the argument is always fair. The book should be read by everyone who wishes to keep himself abreast of the march of political economy as a science, and will be especially interesting to those who, when weary of the theories brought down from the skies, like to dwell for a time with those who can tell the truth about actual facts.

THE MAGAZINES FOR MARCH.

The Century Magazine relies chiefly on what may be called its "stock pieces"—the "Life of Abraham Lincoln," the article by its Siberian correspondent, who this month describes his visit to the Grand Lama of the Trans-Baikal, and the excellent series of papers on English Cathedrals. York Minster is the subject of the latter, and the illustrations are really beautiful work in draughtsmanship and engraving. Du reste, an article on "Christian Ireland" is readable and well illustrated, and some funny things are said in "Amateur Theatricals."

Mr. Walter Besant's serial in Longman's Magazine will not rank with the best of his novels. It is disjointed, and many readers will lose from month to month the thread of the plot. Magazine poetry is seldom noteworthy, but there is much originality and a soupcon of real power in "A March Howl," by Nina F. Layard. Mrs. Deland, the authoress of "John Ward"—the novel which has made more sensation in America than any published since "Uncle Tom's Cabin"—contributes a short story, called "At Whose Door?" It is well written, but gives no adequate idea of the writer's abilities. There are some quaint touches of Dorsetshire country life in "A Country Day-School Seventy Years Ago," by P. H. Gorse, F.R.S.

Looking at its past history, we sincerely trust that the Cornhill Magazine is not in a state of decadence, but this month's number is very dull and lifeless indeed. There is, however, one article which somewhat makes amends. This is a paper on "Desert Sands," which is at once scientific, instructive, and amusing. The writer—probably Mr. Grant Allen—makes us understand the desert as few of us have understood it before. Here is a bit on the cactus which will show his method:—

"Quaint, shapeless, succulent, jointed, the cactuses look at first sight as if they were all leaves and had no stem or trunk worth mentioning. Of course, therefore, the exact opposite is really the case; for, as a late lamented poet has assured us in mournful numbers, things, generally speaking, are not what they seem. The true truth about the cactuses runs just the other way; they are all stem and no leaves, what look like leaves being really joints of the trunk or branches, and the foliage being all dwarfed and stunted into the prickly hairs that dot and encumber the surface. All plants of very arid soils—for example, our common English stone-crops—tend to be thick, jointed, and succulent; the distinction between stem and leaves tends to disappear, and the whole weed, accustomed at times to long drought, acquires the habit of drinking in water greedily at its rootlets after every rain, and storing it away for future use in its thick, sponge-like, and watertight tissues. To prevent undue evaporation the surface also is covered with a thick shiny skin—a sort of vegetable macintosh, which effectually checks all unnecessary transpiration. Of this desert type, then, the cactus is the furthest possible term. It has no flat leaves with expanded blades, to wither and die in the scorching desert air; but in their stead the thick and jointed stems do the same work—absorb carbon from the carbonic acid of the air, and store up water in the driest of seasons. Then, to repel the attacks of herbivores, who would gladly get at the juicy morsel if they could, the foliage has been turned into sharp defensive spines and prickles."

"Illustrated Journalism in England," "Netsuke's" (these are little carved ornaments from Japan), and "Graeco-Roman Portraiture in Egypt" will be found the three most interesting articles in the Magazine of Art, but the whole number is good, though the illustrations are, perhaps, not as attractive as usual.

Blackwood is well provided with a good serial, "Lady Baby," and a brilliant short story called "Minnicog," and the writer of the "Old Saloon" always has something to say, and says it well. In an article on "National Defence" the Government is urged to concentrate its efforts on the navy, disregarding coast defence, except for coaling stations.

"Marooned," by Mr. Clark Russell, in Macmillan's Magazine, grows more and more exciting. This is one of the best of his nautical stories. "My Son Tommy" has been suggested by Bret Harte, but the writer manages to carry it off with an air of tolerable originality. Mr. Goldwin Smith has much to say about "Prohibitionism in Canada and the United States." He pronounces it to be a complete failure, and urges the British Parliament, before it commits itself to prohibitive legislation, to send a commission of inquiry across the Atlantic.

The Universal Review (February number) has several articles of interest. The editor comments on Sir John Millais's celebrated "Isabella Supper," and his paper is illustrated with a reproduction of the original pen and ink design—a wonderful example of delicate and thoughtful drawing. Mr. Samuel Laing, writing on Trade and Finance, sets forth a bold programme. He would heavily tax unearned income for local as well as imperial purposes; he would increase and equalise the succession duties; and he would raise a loan of £50,000,000 in order to put the defences of England on a reasonably sure footing. The "Population Problem of France," by Mr. Robert Donald, is a remarkable paper. The writer avers that the French are physically degenerating, and that in consequence the country is being gradually filled with foreigners. The figures he quoted lend some colour to this surprising proposition. In 1872 the native and the foreign population of France was 35,362,253 and 730,844 respectively; in 1886 the numbers were 37,103,689 and 1,115,214. Apparently Mr. Donald's arguments are directed against Malthusian doctrines. The beginning of a new story—"An Unfinished History"—by Mrs. Lynn Lynton, and an article on "Greek Textile Decoration," should also be mentioned. Moreover, there is a stirring nautical ballad by Mr. Lewis Morris.

There are plenty of exciting stories such as boys love, and of amusing illustrations in the Boy's Own Paper, besides some capital articles on skating. Apparently girls do not want so much fun as boys; at any rate they do not get it in the Girl's Own Paper, but there are always useful articles on dress, cooking, and art, and also two serial stories. The tales, long and short, in Little Folks, are exceedingly good—better than in any other child's magazine—and the "pages for very little folks" are always welcome in a household where small boys and girls are for ever demanding a "pretty story." In The Leisure Hour will be found many good things, especially a short biography of Count Tolstoi, and a paper on medical work among the fishermen of the North Sea. The Sunday at Home contains an article on "Irish Sacred Literature" which should not be missed, and the whole number is quite up to its usual standard. Professor Church's tale of the early Christians, "To the Lions," is the chief attraction in the Quiver, and with this month's instalment a striking drawing of a martyr being executed is given. Cassell's Family Magazine is always a pleasant guest in the household, and its peculiar merit is that everybody may be either amused or instructed by some part of it. "The Fish Caves of New South Wales" are described in this month's number. In Chamber's Journal there is the most exciting and tragic lion-hunting story we have ever seen. To say that Mr. Palmer Cox resumes his history of the "Brownies" in St. Nicholas's Magazine is equivalent to saying that everybody, young and old, will make a rush for this number.

A banquet was given in the Kaiserhof at Berlin, under the auspices of the Literary Society, to Friedrich Spielhagen, the novelist, in honour of his sixtieth birthday. The company numbered over 200, and included all the chief representatives of literature, journalism, and art in the capital.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

THE TURF.

The Hawkesbury Autumn Meeting will be continued and concluded to-day, and, with every prospect of a continuance of fine weather, a large gathering may be expected to witness the sport at Clarendon. The railway arrangements will be similar to those in vogue on Thursday, the first-class specials leaving Redfern at 10.5 and 10.25 a.m., reaching Clarendon in ample time for the first event, which is set down for 12.45 p.m., and tickets of admission to the grand stand can be procured during the forenoon, at the central booking office, George-street, and at Redfern Station. Business will commence with the Shorts Handicap, for which the weights were issued yesterday, with Paddy, 9st. 10lb., at the head of the list, but even that impost should not prevent the son of Anteros from giving a good account of himself. Golden Crown follows with 8st. 8lb., a burden that was earned by his victory in the Rowley Mile, but which should steady him for this event; but Pet Girl with the same weight, should she be sent for this instead of the Autumn Handicap, should be very hard to beat. On his Warwick Farm performance Dalley reads particularly well, and with Paddy and Melody should form the first flight as they pass the winning post. Of the quintette engaged in the Selling Plate, Re and Manola are the most likely to fight out the battle. An interesting race may be anticipated for the Autumn Handicap, and as Yabba, who is in good form, will have the benefit of B. Colley in the saddle, whatever beats the son of Melbourne should win; while Pet Girl and Aberdeen may be the most dangerous of the others. In the absence of Pet Girl, the Disposal Stakes should go to Creeper, who may be escorted home by Lady Lovel and Sentence; and the places in the Sportsman's Handicap may be filled by Pet Girl, Hengist, and Steel Arrow. The programme is published in another part of this paper.

The secretary of the A. J. C. has made arrangements with the Railway Department for a special train to leave Albury for Sydney immediately after the arrival of the 4.55 p.m. train from Melbourne, on Saturday, the 20th instant. This will enable Victorian sportsmen, as well as those hailing from the southern districts of this colony, to visit the A. J. C. Autumn Meeting without incurring the loss of time involved by ordinary travelling, as the visitors will arrive in Sydney on Sunday forenoon.

Grandee was struck out of the A. J. C. Champagne Stakes, and Lincoln out of the St. Leger, yesterday.

The usual racing permits were granted to the Grenfell, Warkworth, and Koorawartha sporting authorities by the A. J. C. yesterday.

The racehorse Carbine arrived by rail from Melbourne yesterday, and the son of Musket is now located in his new quarters at the A. J. C. Hotel, Randwick.

Word comes from Melbourne to the effect that Mr. W. L. Tredrea, the well-known Riverina sportsman, has leased the stables attached to the Ascot Vale Hotel, Flemington, where he has already located Royal Pardon, Millewa, Sincerity, and Karuma, and the remainder of his string will shortly follow. Mr. Tredrea has been prominently identified with the turf in Deniliquin for many years, and his loss will be greatly felt in sporting circles right through Riverina.

The bill of fare issued by the Canterbury Park authorities for their inaugural trotting and race meeting on the 20th instant met with good support from owners and trainers, no less than 129 entries having been received for the half-dozen events, distributed as follows:—Handicap Pony Race, 14 hands and under, 22; Maiden Trot, 19; Pony Selling Race, 14 hands and under, 6; Galloway Handicap, 26; Inauguration Time Handicap Trot, 41; Galloway Selling Race, 15. The adjustments for the handicaps are promised on Monday next.

Nominations for the A. J. C. Place Handicap will be received up to 4 p.m. on Wednesday next, a fixture that owners and trainers of racehorses should bear in mind.

The Rock sportsmen hold their annual races on Monday, and the usual railway facilities will be afforded to visitors from the Wagga and Albury districts to witness the sport.

Racing men should note that nominations for the Royal Stakes and Birthday Handicap, the leading items to be discussed at the Queen's Birthday meeting of the Sydney Turf Club, close with the secretary, Mr. T. S. Clibborn, on Wednesday next.

Acceptances for the Balranald handicaps are due on Monday next.

The privileges connected with the Autumn Meeting of the A. J. C. will be offered for public competition by Mr. Geo. Kiss, at his Bazaar, Pitt-street, on Monday, at noon.

A fair amount of business was transacted at Tattersall's rooms yesterday on the principal events of the Autumn campaign, but the Hawkesbury Autumn Handicap almost monopolised the attention of speculators. The friends of Yabba gave him consistent support for that event, and 5 to 2 was the best price at the close of the evening. Plutarch remained firm at 4 to 1, but Wycombe hardened down to 5 to 1, while Aberdeen and Willeroo had admirers at 8 to 1. Pet Girl received a good deal of attention, and the best price obtainable at the finish was 10 to 1, while 20 to 1 could be got about Keith and 25 to 1 about Lady Lyon.

PIGEON MATCH AT BRIGHTON.

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

A pigeon match was fired to-day on the Brighton grounds, for 100 sovs. a side, between L. Clarke and J. C. Smith, prominent members of the Melbourne Gun Club. The conditions were each 50 birds at 30 yards rise. The weather was calm and favourable, and some good shooting was done. Clarke won, killing 46, his misses being 19th, 33rd, 40th, and 48th birds. Smith killed 42, his misses being 3rd, 12th, 16th, 28th, 36th, 40th, 43rd, and 48th.

COURSING.

A meeting of the committee of the N. S. W. Coursing Club was held on Friday afternoon at Messrs. Clark and Rowley's office. Mr. Morgan occupied the chair. The following new members were elected:—Messrs. W. Eagle, R. W. Pearce, J. Page, C. B. Dawson, W. Gesper, Jas. M. Dickson, P. Bayley, H. Tange, H. Dawson, J. Smith, W. Clark, Jas. Webster, W. R. Solly, J. Mahoney, and Dr. Lamrock. The following gentlemen were appointed stewards:—Messrs. Weir, Clark, H. M'Quade, Peterson, Morgan, R. Brannon, and P. A. Lamb. It was decided that members be not allowed to run a dog until all subscriptions and other fees be paid up. The May fixture was agreed to, as follows:—Derby, for 32 dog puppies; Oaks, for 32 bitch puppies; and the Rosehill Stakes, for 32 all ages. It was announced that all the stakes for the April meeting had filled. The meeting then adjourned.

FOOTBALL.

The ninth annual meeting of the New South Wales Football Association was held on Friday evening at Milthorp's Hotel. Mr. G. Crisp occupied the chair, there being about 30 members present. The annual report stated that during the season the play of the associated clubs presented a noticeable improvement. Two new clubs—the University and Balmain—were affiliated, and three new school clubs were formed. The Melbourne Club played against the association team on the 23rd of June, the visitors winning by two goals to 1. The inter-provincial match was played at Newcastle; the association was not strongly represented, and the Northern districts obtained a victory; a match has been arranged against the Maori team on the Association Cricket Ground, on June 29; there will also be two matches against the Port Melbourne club on July 4 and 6; a skating carnival was held on June 21, in aid of the funds of the association; Mr. W. J. W. Richardson had been elected secretary, the position having become vacant; Mr. A. Flanagan had presented to the association a silver cup, to be competed for by the associated clubs; the rules of the game had been revised at a recent conference of delegates; the thanks of the association were due to Messrs. Levy and Scott, the trustees of the Association Cricket Ground, the press, Messrs. Shepherd, Burton, A. Flanagan, and S. Burdekin, for various services rendered. The report was adopted. There was no balance-sheet laid before the meeting, owing to the absence of the treasurer in North Queensland. The following office-bearers were elected:—Patron, Mr. S. Burdekin, M.L.A.; president, Mr. P. Sheridan; vice-presidents, Messrs. F. J. Smith, M.L.A., J. Wilkinson, M.L.A., Hon. Bruce Smith, G. N. Griffiths, E. W. O'Sullivan, A. Flanagan, T. Playfair, G. A. Crisp, C. Beal, W. C. Hinwood, S. E. Lees, M.L.A., and E. H. Buchanan; secretary, Mr. W. J. W. Richardson; treasurer, Mr. M'Namee; auditors, Messrs. H. Fattorini and Corti. The consideration of the revised rules of the constitution of the association was then proceeded with. A proposal to reduce the number of club delegates from that fixed in the rules was negatived. Rule 10 was altered so as to do away with any difference being made between paid up and honorary members when clubs were sending in their list of members to accompany the appointment of delegates. A proposal to alter rule 12 so as to limit the number of vice-presidents to six was negatived. Rule 17 provided for the punishment of a player for impugning the decision of the umpire, using foul language, or rough play, or striking a player. A fine of not more than £2 is provided for the first offence and disqualification for the second. The following new rule was agreed to:—"That at a convenient date, after the annual general meeting of the association, the secretary of the association shall call a meeting of secretaries of the different clubs affiliated to the association to arrange dates for the ensuing season, and that all dates arranged previously with the affiliated clubs shall be cancelled." A vote of thanks to the chairman then closed the meeting.

The Cammeray Football Club will hold its annual meeting in the School of Arts, St. Leonard's, probably on the 24th instant.

The annual meeting of the Arfoma Football Club will be held on Tuesday evening, at Milthorp's Hotel.

CRICKET.

The most interesting match this afternoon is doubtless that which takes place upon the Association Cricket Ground between the Melbourne Cricket Club team and the Sydney Club. Attention to this match has already been called in our columns, and it is one in which a great deal of interest is being taken, especially as in all probability it will be continued next Monday, and should this prove to be the case, the interest of the match will be greatly increased. The Melbourne team will arrive at noon to-day by the express, and arrangements have been made for a drag to be in attendance to drive them to their hotel, and afterwards to the grounds. It is anticipated that many gentlemen interested in cricket will be present to receive the visitors.

SYDNEY HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS.

The fourth annual meeting of the Sydney High School Amateur Athletic Club will be held on May 15, on the Association Cricket Ground, Moore Park. A liberal programme of events has been provided for the occasion, including a 220-yards strangers' race and a three-miles bicycle race.

PEDESTRIANISM.

The Sir Joseph Banks proprietary announce their long-distance races, to be run on the 1st May. They will comprise the 440 Yards Handicap of 50 sovs., and the 250 Yards Handicap of 30 sovs. The latter race is substituted for the 880 yards, originally intended to be run. The conditions are also published to-day for the next Sir Joseph Banks Grand Handicap (the 20th), which is to be run early in June next, the prize money being 525 sovs., divided. In September the 21st Botany Grand Handicap, of 525 sovs., will be run off; and in December the Botany Gold Cup, of 1000 sovs., will be decided.

The running in the first round of the Carrington Handicap commences to-night.

LAWN TENNIS.

A tennis match was played recently between the B teams of the Balmain and Devonshire Clubs, and it resulted in a win for the latter, as follows:—

Druce and Shultz	v.	Chapman and W. Rice	8-10

Results: Balmain, 0 sets, 32 games; Devonshire, 17 sets, 106 games.

In the second round of the Sydney Lawn Tennis Club Handicap Doubles, Messrs. H. S. Fox and E. Fitzgerald owe 15, have beaten Messrs. C. Weigall and L. Whitfeld ½ 15, by three sets to one set; the scores being 3-6, 8-6, 6-4, 6-3. The round will be completed this afternoon by the match R. D. Fitzgerald and J. R. King owe ½ 30 v. A. H. Huntly and G. H. Liebius being played. Play will commence at 2.30, and the match will be decided by the best of 5 sets.

Practice for the Intercolonial Match and Open Tournament which commences on the 4th of May has been in full swing during the week. Players are rapidly getting into form, and we should be able to place a strong team in the field against Victoria. We understand that the entries are likely to be very numerous this time, especially in the ladies' matches, and it is believed that there will be several competitors from the sister colony of Victoria. Mr. H. Crossman, a country player, who has for the last two years won the championship of the northern districts, will make his first appearance on a metropolitan court to-morrow, and will practise at the Association Ground during the afternoon. Mr. Crossman is chosen to practise for the intercolonial match. Messrs. J. R. King and Dr. Shewen have been chosen to select the intercolonial team.

LACROSSE.

The third annual meeting of the New South Wales Lacrosse Association was held at Rainford's Cambridge Club Hotel on Friday night. Mr. F. W. Sim occupied the chair. There was not a quorum present, but the business was transacted pro forma to be dealt with at a general meeting later on. The report stated that the month of May was devoted to exhibition matches, and the season was opened by a tournament. Exhibition matches were played at Riverview, Manly, Balmain, and Parramatta. Two new clubs had been formed, viz., Mohican and Kirribilli. an attempt was made to form a club at Richmond, but it failed. The tournament was held on the Domain on May 26, the Kirribilli being the winners of the trophy presented by Mr. J. H. Rainford. The trophy presented by Messrs. Holdsworth and Co. was won by the Iroquois Club from the Kirribilli (17 points each), third place being taken by Redfern with 12 points. Challenges were received from the Victorian and South Australian Associations for matches to be played in those colonies, but at the last moment the offers were declined. A letter was received from the Queensland Association with reference to the formation of that body and the death of the well-known goalkeeper, Mr. C. R. Finlay. A concert was held in August at the Y. M. C. A. Hall, for the presentation of prizes, and to officially close the season, when the Rainford and Holdsworth trophies were presented to the respective winners. The balance-sheet showed that the balance in hand for the year was £3 9s. 3d. After some other business had been transacted, the meeting adjourned.

A meeting was held recently for the purpose of forming a lacrosse club at Paddington, and a large number of members were enrolled. Mr. C. W. Naylor, late of the Iroquois Club, was elected captain.

CYCLING.

The Speedwell Bicycle Club have decided to hold their Easter tour through the Illawarra district with the Sydney B. C.; the Lithgow tour having fallen through owing to the Lithgow B. C. postponing their race meeting. Leaving Sydney on Good Friday morning the route determined on embraces Waterfall, Clifton, Bulli Pass, Wollongong, Kiama, Jamberoo, Fitzroy Falls, Moss Vale, Mittagong, and Campbelltown, and thence by rail to Sydney. The Speedwells have also decided to hold a smoke concert at Rainford's Cambridge Club Hotel on Friday, May 3rd.

NEW SOUTH WALES ROWING ASSOCIATION EIGHT-OAR RACE.

To-day will see decided the most interesting event that has taken place on our waters—that is, so far as amateur races are concerned. The prizes will consist of nine silver medals of the value of those that have provoked some scores of the highest-class races in the old country. Iron Cove is a perfectly straight sheet of water, stretching from Leichhardt Bay to the Parramatta River, in length about three miles. Within fifteen or twenty minutes steaming of the Sydney wharfs, it can be approached at intervals of a quarter of an hour, and affords every opportunity for practice in the lightest craft afloat, in almost any weather; in fact, an eight can be pulled over the entire course any day that the same class of boat can be taken over the championship course. This was the reason for its selection on this particular occasion, as it was intended to attract attention to the advantages it offered for increased eight-oar pulling. The Association has received six entries, a thing unprecedented in the history of amateur aquatics in New South Wales.

The Sydney Rowing Club send as their representatives—W. B. Smith (bow), 10st. 6lb.; A. Green, 10st.; T. P. Macdermott, 10st.; W. F. Kloster, 11st. 4lb.; F. J. Payne, 11st 12lb.; J. E. H. Kennedy, 12st. 8lb.; S. A. Tiley, 10st. 6lb.; C. Thomson (stroke), 10st. 4lb.; coxswain, G. B. Foster; colours, light blue. Under the able tuition of Mr. J. N. Oatley they have made great progress, presenting a more uniform appearance than any of the other competing crews.

Next in order of seniority come the Mercantiles, who are confident of taking the red and white to the front with the following selection:—W. P. Berry, bow, 10st. 8lb.; A. C. Hollingworth, 10st. 2lb.; G. G. M'Gill, 11st. 6lb.; F. A. Styche, 11st. 4lb.; W. A. M'Donald, 12st.; W. C. Freeman, 12st.; N. J. M'Donald, 10st. 8lb.; John Thomson, stroke, 9st. 7lb.; coxswain, J. Blackman; colours, red and white. Take the crew as a whole, they certainly put power and life into their work, two important ingredients in a winning crew.

The Glebe Rowing Club will pull in a cast-off of the New South Wales Rowing Association, built by Donnelly for the 1883 crew, and, with alterations to her fittings, she has turned out a regular clipper, thoroughly pleasing her crew, who are seated in her as follows:—T. J. Mahony (bow), 10st.; C. E. Kraegan, 9st. 12lb.; W. A. Walker, 10st. 12lb.; L. J. O'Rourke, 10st. 5lb.; J. F. Leeds, 11st. 2lb.; C. M. Garrard, 11st. 10lb.; C. G. Wilson, 10st. 5lb.; J. G. Robertson (stroke), 11st. 3lb.; coxswain, E. A. Boyle; colours, dark blue, white sash. They are most uniform, but unfortunately uniform in one serious fault, missing the beginning of the stroke.

After East Sydney the North Shore Club are the lightest crew entered, scaling as follows:—A. Thomson (bow), 9st. 12lb.; C. Coggins, 10st. 4lb.; D. Bergloman, 10st. 6lb.; H. Horniman, 10st. 8lb.; C. Heron, 10st. 12lb.; V. Horniman, 11st.; E. T. Jones, 10st. 4lb.; James Thomson (stroke), 9st. 10lb.; coxswain, N. Jones; colours, dark blue. Stroked by their captain, Mr. J. E. Myers, the East Sydney men have been training from their quarters in Woolloomooloo Bay. They are seated in the boat as follows:—E. L. Quist (bow), 8st. 5lb.; W. Jacobs, 9st. 10lb.; L. J. Pooley, 10st. 3lb.; J. M'Ivor, 10st. 8lb.; G. W. Nash, 10st. 5lb., A. W. Boshell, 10st. 10lb.; J. A. Smith, 10st. 8lb.; J. E. Myers (stroke), 10st. 11lb.; coxswain, A. Steele; colours, blue and white.

The Balmain men will be represented by the following crew:—G. Martin, bow, 11st. 4lb.; F. Hooker, 12st.; C. Fraser, 12st. 2lb.; W. Belbridge, 12st.; F. Belbridge, 11st. 12lb.; W. Martin, 12st 8lb.; J. Quirk, 11st. 2lb.; J. Fraser, stroke, 12st. 8lb.; coxswain, R. S. Thompson; colours, black and yellow. They will use their old Clasper. Of their rowing it is difficult to say anything, as they have been on the water once only, i.e., on Wednesday.

The race will be started at 4 p.m. punctually, against a flood tide, from moorings off the head of the cove, by Mr. M. L. Zollner, captain of the Glebe Rowing Club, after which the boats will be in charge of Mr. F. J. Smith, M.L.A., as umpire, the position of judge being filled by Mr. H. Giltinan.

AQUATICS.

PRINCE ALFRED YACHT CLUB.

A race between the two six-tonners Iolanthe and Assegai will be sailed this afternoon for a prize of £10—over the usual Manly course—the condition being owners up. This may be altered, and the yachts may start best and best, in that case they will probably be sailed by Dick Hellings and Captain Dudley respectively. If under the latter conditions, a good race should be the result.

PORT JACKSON SAILING CLUB.

The boats of this club will sail a handicap race over the usual club course (round Manly) this afternoon for the Boat Proprietor's Trophy. The following are the boats entered, and their handicaps:—Idothea, 24ft., scratch; Lavinia, 24ft., 5 minutes; Wilfred, 24ft., 7 minutes; Iolanthe, 24ft., 8 minutes; Scylla, 24ft., 9 minutes; Irene, 22ft., 9 minutes; Atalanta, 22ft., 9 minutes; Imogene, 22ft., 10 minutes; Rosalind, 22ft., 10 minutes; Liberty, 20ft., 10 minutes; and Rossmore, 22ft., 12 minutes. The steamer Leveret will leave No. 2 Jetty at 2.30 p.m. to follow the race.

NELLIE VERSUS VICTOR.

In our report of the above race in yesterday's issue it was reported that the winner was sailed by her owner; it should have been Mr. Chris. Webb.

At a committee meeting of the Prince Alfred Yacht Club, held at Aaron's Exchange Hotel yesterday afternoon, it was decided that the closing ceremony (instead of the usual dinner down the harbour) should take the form of a picnic up the Hawkesbury River on the 4th of May next; the club steamer to leave the quay at 9 a.m. on that date, and proceed to Broken Bay. Those unable to go by sea will be picked up at Peat's Ferry, and then proceed up the river for a short distance, and are expected to arrive back in town by 6 p.m.; the Commodore and ex-Commodore to be the guests. Given fine weather, this should be more enjoyable than the usual formal luncheon.

GAMBLING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I desire through your columns to draw attention to the above subject, and to point out that the law for the suppression of betting-houses is almost a dead letter. Our main thoroughfares swarm with tobacconist shops and hair-dressing saloons doing a roaring trade, not in the legitimate business, but as betting shops pure and simple. Can nothing be done to arouse the authorities to take measures to cope successfully with this growing evil? Occasionally the police take action and secure a conviction, with what result? A man who is making hundreds out of the gullibility of the public is fined by the sapient stipendiary a paltry £10 and goes on his way rejoicing.

The facilities for betting are now so great, and the gilded bait held out by the human sharks who run these swindles so tempting, that all classes are infected with the fever. Newsboys, factory-girls, shopmen, clerks, et omnes genus homo, are found putting their money into consultations or backing their fancy on the totalisator, in many cases pilfering the money to do so; men deprive their wives and children of the common necessaries of life that they may have the means to indulge their gambling propensities. How many families are ruined annually by these human parasites can only be guessed at.

In the sister colony of Victoria all these swindles have been put down with a strong hand, but our fair city is overrun with a lot of scum—the refuse of Melbourne and other towns where their nefarious occupation has been prohibited—who neither work nor beg, but live in luxury on the earnings of others. Few of these wretches have any principle. They only pay when obliged, and I know of cases where a man, having made a good round sum by running a "place consultation," found it inconvenient to disgorge any of it, even to pay his legitimate debts, but sought fresh fields and pastures new, leaving behind a host of sorrowing creditors and too-confiding clients. Instances can be cited ad lib. to prove the pernicious influence these consultation swindles have on the community. Again, legitimate traders are being crowded out by these betting shops. Many respectable tradesmen have been obliged (against their own inclinations) to start totalisators and place consultations in connection with their establishments, merely to save themselves from ruin. It is well known that a man who runs a profitable betting business, and is not dependent on the profits arising from the sale of his stock for a living, will undersell legitimate traders if only as an additional bait to his trap. Much more could be said on this subject, and I hope some abler pen than mine will take it up.

Among all our legislators is there not a man who will introduce a measure to deal with this curse, and effectually stamp out the betting-shop evil? Apologising for taking up so much of your valuable space,

I am, &c., A VICTIM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Are the authorities unable or unwilling, which is it, to put down gambling and Sunday trading? It has been suggested to me, and it is also my opinion, that the shameful disregard of the law evinced by the keepers of gambling dens and some of the publicans of Sydney would not be tolerated if the police did their duty and did not connive at, but take cognisance of, those degrading and Sabbath-desecrating practices, and the proper course for their suppression. It is not my object to particularise here the manifold evils arising from the wilful violation of the law by publicans and gamblers, for they are legion, but to point out what appears to me to be either the culpable indifference or inability of the powers that be to successfully cope with these baneful and oftentimes fatal sources of allurement to debauchery and crime. Gambling—the social curse—is carried on with bold impunity daily and nightly, Sunday not excepted, in the gambling hells owned by some of the so-called tobacconists of this city, in some of which it has been discovered that a trade in sly grog-selling was, and probably still is, actively cultivated. Some of the publicans of Sydney openly violate the law by selling after legal hours, and on Sundays also, the breach of which is punishable by fines and loss of license, but the fines inflicted and the licenses forfeited are absurdly small in proportion to the number of offences and offenders, and Sunday is acknowledged by some of those illegal traffickers to be by far the most lucrative business-day of the week. It is an obvious fact that some of the proprietors of tobacconists' shops in Sydney could not live on the legitimate business of their shops, but depend on the proceeds of their gambling operations for support.

It is high time, sir, that the strong arm of the law improved this undesirable state of things out of existence. For why should those social parasites be allowed greater privileges than other traders, and be permitted to prey upon, degrade the morality, imperil the honour, and work the ruin—which they unfortunately too often do—of their dupes, with bare-faced effrontery and no compunction of conscience for their nefarious and wicked misdeeds.

THE SYDNEY LAND NATIONALISATION LEAGUE AND LAND VALUES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Looking over Mr. Meggy's letter of Saturday last, for the second time, in search of something worth answering, I discovered not what I sought, but that he is the secretary of the "Sydney Land Nationalisation League." As such it would be uncharitable, at least to the League, to ignore him. He may be one of its teachers; then to bring that portion of my subject with which he finds fault within his comprehension, may lead to the enlightenment of his whole school. He, unwittingly evidently, actually cuts away the mainstay of his party's platform, and in few words, he says—and, truly, it is all he does say—"I thought every man, woman, and child in New South Wales knew by this time that the essence of the Georgian proposal was contained in the formula 'to tax land values irrespective of improvements.' I thought also that every man, woman, and child in New South Wales knew by this time that the essence of the Government method of dealing with the Crown leases was contained in the formula 'to tax improvements irrespective of land values.'" If "single tax," land nationalisation, "unearned increments," and the rest of it mean no more than is here set down, I go a long way with Mr. Meggy's league, stopping short only where it begins to confiscate thrifty people's savings, and thus discourage settlement and the noblest aspirations of mankind. I would, however, as I said in my former letter, have to wait a very long time on this earth for land values, at least in this colony, to so ripen that George's theories could be put in operation; and this is well borne out by what Mr. Meggy admits, and expects every child we have to know. If he and his followers know that three-fourths of the land of this colony is not worth a rental of 1½d. per acre per annum, they must know, that is if they know anything whatever of their subject, that the State has already received a price far in excess of the true value of the land it has sold. This being so, what becomes of the Georgian proposal to tax land values irrespective of improvements? Fictitious values have, I admit, been given to land by bringing borrowed money into the colony, but this must some—soon—day cease, and when it does, down will go all things to their true level, i.e., to a level based upon what the land (the colony) actually earns.

CITY RAILWAY EXTENSION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As one of your constant readers I have noticed a number of letters on the above subject, and am much surprised that no mention has been made of the railway improvements now being carried out on the western side of the harbour. I have been credibly informed that it is the intention of the Government to extend the railway to the end of the two jetties now advancing towards completion, and as this should take but a very short time to complete our railways and shipping would shortly be working alongside each other. I fail to see why the railway should be taken to Circular Quay for cargo when there is such a large available water frontage within a stone's throw of the present terminus, and in the centre of population. His Excellency the Governor, in replying to a deputation of the unemployed the other day, alluded to the prospect of better times bringing employment and encouraging private enterprise; but unfortunately the Government do not seem disposed to encourage its development. Some little time ago a very large undertaking was announced on the western side of the Harbour, involving the expenditure of at least a quarter of a million, and the work was started under the impression that the Government would extend the railway and encourage such a vast undertaking. What is the result? After the projectors have spent during a period of 12 months over £30,000 the railway is as far off as ever, private enterprise is stifled, and the ranks of the unemployed increased.

THE SYDNEY MAIL. THE LARGEST ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY NEWSPAPER PUBLISHED IN AUSTRALASIA.

THE ISSUE FOR APRIL 13 contains, amongst other illustrations, the following:—THE RECENT CALAMITY AT SAMOA. SEVERAL EXCELLENT ENGRAVINGS of the DISASTER TO THE ENGLISH, AMERICAN, and GERMAN MEN OF WAR, occasioned by the RECENT HURRICANE AT SAMOA, are published in THIS WEEK'S SYDNEY MAIL.

A FULL-PAGE ENGRAVING, showing H.M.S. CALLIOPE STEAMING OUT OF THE HARBOUR AT APIA IN THE TEETH OF THE HURRICANE. This is a very effective picture, by the Sydney Mail's own artist, and gives a faithful portrayal of the fury of the storm, and of the helplessness of the vessels that were anchored in the harbour.

THE WRECKED GERMAN STEAMER ADLER. This is a fine picture, showing the German man-of-war Adler as she lay on her port broadside on the coral reef, on to which she was lifted like a cork by the force of the storm waves.

THE SCENE AFTER THE STORM. This picture, drawn from a photograph, represents the scene in the harbour of Apia after the storm. Four or five vessels are represented—the Vandalia, the Trenton, and the Olga—in their disabled and shattered condition. The Vandalia is seen partially submerged right in front of the Trenton.

THE HARBOUR OF APIA, and THE POSITION OF THE SHIPS. This excellent plan, from a drawing by one of the officers of H.M.S. Calliope, shows the positions of the coral reefs in the harbour of Apia and the positions occupied by the vessels immediately before the storm came on.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE CROWN PRINCE OF AUSTRIA. This picture shows the coffin containing the dead body of the late Austrian Crown Prince in the Court Chapel. The Emperor is seen kneeling by the coffin with the Monks and friends of the late Prince standing around. We also give an illustration of the Chateau of Meyerling, where the Crown Prince Rudolph shot himself.

ARCHDUKES CHARLES LOUIS AND FRANCIS FERDINAND OF AUSTRIA. In this week's MAIL we publish portraits of Archdukes Charles Louis, brother to the Emperor of Austria, and who has resigned his succession to the Throne in favour of his eldest son; and Archduke Francis Ferdinand, son of the Archduke Charles Louis, and present heir to the Austro-Hungarian Throne.

"WHEN JACK'S AT SEA." This is, as most of our readers know, a quotation from "Nancy Lee," perhaps the most popular of all sea songs, which of late years have been so numerous. In our splendid full-page illustration under the title of this quotation, the heroine, who has evidently plighted her troth to a manly sailor is seen leaning against a capstan, gazing longingly out to sea watching for the well-known ship to bring her Jack back again.

THE TENTS OF SHEM. The chapters of this story this week are accompanied by a portrait showing Meriam learning to write.

The evening lecturers on classics and mathematics at the University, and the Registrar of that institution, were entertained the other evening by the graduates who had recently passed the examination for the B.A. degree after attendance at the evening classes. The occurrence is worthy of notice as a graceful recognition of services rendered, and of kindly treatment, and also because it gives an opportunity for directing attention to what is certainly not the least interesting portion of the work of the University. The gentlemen whose cordiality of feeling took this form of expression the other day were the first graduates under the evening lecture system, which was brought into operation five years ago, and the success they have achieved is to be regarded as its first fruits.

The origin of the evening lectures may be traced to a letter by Dr. Badham, published in 1883, sketching the outlines of the scheme which was afterwards carried into effect. The letter was referred by Mr. G. H. Reid, then Minister for Public Instruction, to the Senate of the University for consideration, and ultimately, as the University had no funds to devote to the purpose, the system was started by means of a special vote obtained by the Government. The number of students who entered in 1884 was 36, of whom 26 matriculated with the view of proceeding for a degree. Since then the average attendance has been about 34, but latterly a tendency upwards has shown itself. Last year there were 33 matriculated students; this year there are 42. The system was established with the main purpose of enabling studious persons who wished to graduate at the University in a regular way, but whose engagements prevented them from attending the ordinary lectures, to use their evenings for the purpose. Two points were aimed at, first that they should prepare themselves for examination by attending regular courses of lectures within the University, and next, that the degrees when obtained should be in no way distinguished from those gained by the other students. The same standards were adopted, and the candidates at both morning and evening lectures passed through the same tests. The original idea was that the evening students would necessarily require a longer time to do the same amount of work, and the system was founded upon the basis of a minimum course of five years' attendance. That is the reason why the first results of the system in graduation are only now made known. The bylaws, however, were altered in 1886 so as to make the system more elastic, and to accommodate it to the varying circumstances of the students, all of whom, probably, encounter more or less of difficulty in combining attendance at lectures with their ordinary business or professional pursuits, and some of whom have had to make a sacrifice in doing so. By allowing the students to choose the order in which they attend the various courses, and either to compress the maximum of work within the minimum of space, or to spread out their attendance over a wider period, it is made possible for them to go up for a degree at the end of the third year, or to delay the test for double that period. They must pass an examination and obtain a certificate in each course of lectures, and when they have obtained certificates in all, whether they have taken a longer or a shorter time about it, they are eligible as candidates to be examined for the degree. And whether they spend a longer or a shorter time, the cost incurred in lecture fees remains the same. This arrangement enables each student to regulate his studies by his circumstances, and to give as much or as little time each week to the prosecution of his undertaking as his health and strength and command of leisure will allow. This element of adaptability is much appreciated, and should be more so in proportion as it is more widely known.

The number of graduates at the late examination from evening lectures was six. One took second class honours in mathematics, and the others average passes. It may be thought by some that these results are small and disappointing. We are not prepared to take that view of the matter. It is fair to observe that this is only the beginning, and that in the nature of the case, whilst all the students had probably some special difficulties to contend against, a considerable number of those who entered at the outset may have done so under the influence of hope and enthusiasm, rather than with a clear idea of the work before them, or much fitness for undertaking it.

But one point in connection with the late examination is worthy of particular notice. Of the six graduates, five were Public school teachers who attended the evening lectures, and devoted themselves to the accompanying study, although they were actually engaged during the day in the work of their schools. We have here cause for congratulation and encouragement, for this beginning, though it be small, may open the way to desirable results. Who can tell but that in the course of time these evening lectures may bring about a closer approximation and more helpful relations between the University and the Public schools. This is an end to be promoted by almost any effort; and the more so, because in the past it has too frequently been overlooked. But now, as we understand, matriculation at the University opens the way of entrance into the Training School. Students at the Training School during the two years' curriculum in that institution are allowed exemption from University lectures, and may go up for the University examinations for the first and second years. Passing these they may, after leaving the Training School, obtain employment under the Department during the day, and by attending the evening lectures at the University prepare themselves for taking a degree. We have here in theory a scheme which would operate beneficially upon the character of our Public schools. Whether practice will adapt itself to theory in this matter depends upon the management of the Training School rather than upon the conduct of affairs in the University. If students in the Training School are to be treated practically as students at the University, and are to appear at the University examinations with a fair chance of success, their training must be of similar quality, and must proceed on corresponding lines. If that should fail the whole course of the University evening lectures still remains open, and the example set by the five teachers who have just graduated may be followed by many more, especially if, other things being equal, such meritorious devotion to study is favourably recognised within the Department itself.

What are "the sports that kill"? Some of our correspondents have been trying to answer the question by making roller-skating one of the blacklist. It is called a curse to the rising generation, it is described as ruinous to health and pocket to many, and as tending to consumption and rheumatism. This is a heavy arraignment. How much truth is there in it? That would be difficult to tell. It is, however, worth while looking at the sport, or amusement, whichever we choose to call it, with an eye to discover how far it meets the demands of a legitimate and healthy exercise. Before doing so it might be well to premise our considerations with some remarks upon criticism of sports generally. If anyone cares to read the records of the Puritan days of the time of CROMWELL and thereabouts he will find some excellent examples of vigorous criticism. It did not spend itself in the columns of newspapers, but was heartily administered by the pious Roundheads in quite another fashion. The England that had once loved tilting, archery, bull-baiting, and quarterstaff under the Normans; that had revelled under the Plantagenets, and is revelling even to this day, in quoits, cockfighting, and football; that under the first of the Stuarts had varied warfare and Court scandals with hawking, bear-baiting, tennis, pall-mall (the origin no doubt of the modern game of croquet), and Christmas mumming; under the rule of the Protector became laborious, solemn, severely decorous, and prosperous. It lost the art of enjoyment, it longed to be free-and-easy once again, and it became so under the Second CHARLES. But the iron criticism had its fling, and the effects of it remain until now. The rigid Puritan spirit that cut a man's ears short for wearing his hair long; that regarded the violin as the special property of the Evil One, and dancing the dissipation of the outcasts from grace, not only found exercise in England, but was transported to America with the Pilgrim Fathers. It still holds its own to some extent there, and even in Australia, though we have somewhat blithely disacknowledged it as a powerful influence in the choice of our sports.

A great change has passed over the English-speaking world in the matter of amusements. It is not so many years ago that good people of certain denominations, like our Puritan ancestors, regarded dancing as a sin, and even saw the machinations of "Auld Hornie" in the innocuous game of croquet. Time was, a little back, when the theatre was regarded as "a sink of iniquity" by most people who pretended at all to be decent Christians. The "poor player" was considered scarce fit for Christian burial. And the prejudice is far from being extinct, but it is not eruptive just now. Prejudice takes strange freaks. In the time when the Houses of York and Lancaster were ruling, England miracle-plays were initiated by the clergy, and played in the churches. One historian very naively says, however, that though "they were intended to teach the lower classes the history of the Bible, they seem to have been very profane." Still they were popular. But the miracle-plays had to give way to "moral plays" which the same historian says were a "great improvement on the miracles." The miracle-plays were acted by the clergy, the moral plays by laymen. It seems to be still the custom to count the ordinary play as "moral" in comparison with the scriptural, or miracle, or "Passion" play. It is only a few years since SALMI MORSE came to grief in New York with his "Passion Play," brought from Ammergau. The people would have none of it. They called it "profane," while at the same time they tolerated "The Black Crook" and gave up an old historic church edifice, something fallen to decay, to the manager of a negro-minstrel show.

Criticism is a peculiar thing and it has exercised itself in peculiar ways in regard to sports and games. There are perhaps those yet who would countenance "forfeits" with the varied penalties thereof to a game of billiards or a game of lawn tennis; there are also those who would denounce roller-skating as being wicked per se, and many others who would condemn it on the basis of the mysterious "what it leads to." There is no wickedness in roller-skates themselves. There is nothing eerie or sinful in the innocent wheels. It may be taken for granted that the old theory of the personal supervision of the arch-fiend in these little things is abandoned. But what does roller-skating lead to? Bad health, empty pockets, consumption, and rheumatism say some, and others add something in its indefinite horror worse still. As for the morality of the amusement it ought to satisfy prudish folk more than dancing, and it is not very expensive of itself. But the real question is, and it is the only important one, "Does roller-skating fall within the requirements of a healthy and rational amusement?" It must be acknowledged that by comparison it has less to recommend it than many other popular and fashionable amusements of the day. It is not like ice-skating—natural. It is carried on indoors, not out of doors: in this particular lawn tennis, boating, cricket, and the rest are superior. There must always be a certain amount of dust swallowed where so many people are skating on wooden floors. The air cannot be invigorating; it cannot be entirely pure. But the strongest argument against it seems to lie in the great noise created by the skates. In a large rink the clatter is painful, and there must be considerable irritation to the nerves in such a case. This irritation tends to run down the system. A system not properly toned is liable, not only to consumption and rheumatism, but to other diseases as well. This factor ought not to be omitted in the general discussion of this subject, and physicians have acknowledged the part it plays. Of course the objection to roller-skating may not be absolutely conclusive, still, experience has shown that the roller rinks do not hold their own for any great length of time; a few years play them out. This is not the case with lawn tennis, cricket, &c. A natural sport or amusement has no unnatural effects. It is not clear that roller-skating is a natural sport. If it is not that, it then is "a sport that kills."

The Russians are determined to kill the CZAR. ALEXANDER III. has had many narrow escapes from assassination, always getting off without injury, and one more must be added to the number; but this time he has been wounded. The weapon used was a bomb, thrown by an officer of the Guards at the Gatchina Palace. It was the explosion of a nitro-glycerine bomb, it will be remembered, which caused the death of the present CZAR's father, ALEXANDER II., rather more than eight years ago; and if it had not been for the vigilance of his attendants ALEXANDER III. would probably have been blown to pieces two years ago, when an assassin was caught almost in the act of throwing an infernal machine. Soon afterwards, on March 20, 1887, the CZAR was fired at by an officer in the Gatchina Palace, but without effect. The railway catastrophe from which the CZAR and CZARINA escaped almost by a miracle, will be fresh in people's recollection, and there are strong grounds for the suspicion that the so-called "accident" was wilfully caused with the view of destroying the ruler of the Empire. The Government of Russia has been described as "despotism tempered by assassination," and the aptness of the saying must be allowed. The CZAR never stirs abroad without feeling that he may at any moment encounter an assassin, and if he remains in his palace he is equally insecure. In the present case the man who sought his Sovereign's life was a trusted servant, like the officer who fired the shot at Gatchina two years ago. It would seem, in fact, that there is more mischief near at home than far afield in the case of Russian sovereigns. Disaffection is always at work, and it is possible that it has become more active of late in consequence of the CZAR's insistence upon Count TOLSTOI's proposal to set aside the rural district councils, which are elective, in favour of sub-prefects, who will be invested with practically absolute power over all agrarian affairs. This measure, we are told, has greatly irritated Liberal society in St. Petersburg, besides some very high personages, including three grand dukes, and it may have intensified the feeling against the CZAR in some quarters. But there is always disaffection in Russia, and if one plot fails another springs from its ruins.

The unsatisfactory ending of the unpleasant case which has been under investigation in the Coroner's Court during the last few weeks might have been allowed to go without comment, but for the discredit which the inquiry has brought upon an important public institution. It appears that a young woman was admitted to the Sydney Hospital for treatment, and died there. It was certified that death was the result of natural causes, and she was buried. Subsequently it was reported to the police that the cause of death was criminal malpractice, and the body was exhumed. An examination was made with the view of discovering whether there had been any malpractice or not, but it was rendered futile by the absence of a portion of the remains, for the disappearance of which no one has been able to account. At the first post-mortem examination, that is to say the examination which was made previous to interment, this part of the body was not examined, and there was therefore no evidence as to its condition to place before the jury. Nothing could have been more unfortunate. There was indirect evidence regarding the treatment of the deceased before she entered the hospital, but, as the CORONER pointed out, it proved nothing, whereas if the missing part of the body could have been found, the question as to whether the deceased had been maltreated would in all probability have been set at rest. Supposing there to have been no malpractice, the suspected persons have been deprived of the opportunity of establishing their innocence, while to the memory of the deceased an undeserved stigma is attached. On the other hand, if there was malpractice, evidence which would have proved the case has been destroyed. The extraordinary and unaccountable disappearance of that part of the body which was most wanted for the purposes of the inquiry is a serious reflection upon the institution, and fully justifies the censure of the jury. It may be necessary in the interests of science or justice to remove portions of the bodies of persons who die in the hospital, but when anything of the sort is done it should be done with proper authority, and a record should be kept of the transaction. In this case, however, there must either have been carelessness of an extraordinary kind, or unauthorised persons must in some way have gained access to the body. The evidence taken before the CORONER, though it places the institution in a very unenviable light, fails to show upon whose shoulders the blame should be placed. It is not desirable that the matter should be allowed to rest here. Strict inquiry should be made as to the irregularity which has been permitted, and measures should be taken to prevent the occurrence of anything of the sort in the future.

His Excellency the Governor of NewZeal and (the Earl of Onslow) and Lord Carrington will leave Sydney this evening on a visit to the Jenolan Caves. The party will return to Sydney on Monday.

THE newly-appointed Governor of New Zealand, the Earl of Onslow, who is at present spending a few days in Sydney, prior to leaving for New Zealand, had a conversation yesterday with a representative of this paper, during the course of which he freely expressed his opinions of the colonies, and also gave his views on the questions of Imperial and colonial federation, the Australian Naval Squadron, and other matters. The more important portions of Lord Onslow's remarks will be found embodied in an article which appears in another portion of this paper.

A SPECIAL meeting of the Executive Council was held yesterday to consider the case of the prisoner John Dick, who was sentenced to death by his Honor the Chief Justice at the last Mudgee Assizes, for having wounded, with intent to murder, James Jenkins at the Mudgee gaol. The jury found the prisoner guilty, but recommended him to mercy. After lengthened consideration, it was decided that the death sentence should be commuted to 14 years' imprisonment, first three years in irons.

WE have been requested by the Free Trade Association to draw attention to the fact that to-day is the last day for making claims to be placed on the electoral roll for 1889-90. For the convenience of freetraders the office of the association will be kept open until 10 p.m.

WE have been shown a handsome illuminated address which is to be presented to Sir Alfred Stephen by the trustees of the National Art Gallery on his retirement from the presidency of the board. The address, which bears the signatures of the trustees, is as follows:—"We, the trustees of the National Art Gallery of New South Wales, beg to express to you our deep and sincere regret at your having resigned the position of president of our board, which post you have so ably filled since it was instituted. We desire to offer you our cordial thanks for having so efficiently presided over our deliberations during a period of 14 years, and to testify to the valuable services you have rendered to the colony at large in your active endeavours to promote the growth of art-culture in the community."

A PLEASING ceremony took place at the Sydney School of Arts on Thursday evening. It was the outcome of a resolution passed at the annual meeting of the members in February last. It was the presentation to Mr. James Dalgarno of an illuminated address. Mr. Dalgarno had for many years taken a very active interest in the affairs of the School of Arts; for 18 years he held a seat on the committee the last three years holding the position of president. In consequence of the pressure of his official duties he was compelled to relinquish the office. A number of the members assembled at the School of Arts, and the new president (Mr. Richard Teece) presented the address, and bore testimony to the ability and firmness of purpose which were the distinguishing characteristics of Mr. Dalgarno, and which had so often stood him in good stead during the time he had held the office of president, and had on many occasions been so useful to the institution. The address was in book form, beautifully scribed and illuminated, and bound in morocco, the text being the resolutions passed at the annual meeting of the members of the School of Arts on February 4, 1889. It was signed by Mr. Richard Teece, president. The whole was surrounded by beautifully-painted native flowers and birds, and was surmounted by a well-executed picture of the School of Arts. The work was done by Messrs. John Sands and Co., of George-street. Mr. Dalgarno, on rising to reply, was greeted with great applause. He said he would always esteem the memento of his connection with the management of the Sydney Mechanics' School of Arts, and was certain his family would likewise appreciate this mark of generous recognition of the time and labour he had bestowed, in combination with a number of hard-working colleagues, in advancing the interests of the institution.

THE members of the Parliamentary reporting staff (Hansard) assembled at the offices of the Legislative Assembly yesterday afternoon to bid a formal farewell to one of their number, Mr. J. W. Roberts, who is leaving the staff to take up a journalistic position in Melbourne. Mr. Roberts is one of the original members of the Hansard staff, which was established in 1879, and the high estimation in which he is held by his colleagues, on account both of his personal qualities and of his qualifications as a member of his profession, was manifested by the cordial manner in which the little ceremony of leave-taking was conducted. Mr. Roberts's health was drunk in bumpers of champagne, and the warmest wishes for his success in his new sphere of labour were expressed. The chief of the staff, Mr. Charles Robinson, in proposing the toast, referred in highly complimentary terms to the ability, zeal, and conscientiousness with which Mr. Roberts had always discharged his duties, and to the regret which he in common with the whole of the staff felt, on learning that Mr. Roberts was about to terminate his association with them. Mr. Roberts, in replying, alluded with some pride to the circumstance that during the 10 years he had been a member of the staff, and amidst the trying circumstances in which their labours had frequently to be performed, he had never had the slightest disagreement with any of his fellow-workers. In addition to the toast, a prominent incident of the gathering was the presentation to the guest of a handsome spirit stand, bearing a suitable inscription, "as a souvenir of friendship and esteem."

THE Easter encampments at National Park and Middle Head will begin on Friday next, and terminate on the 27th instant. The bulk of the Volunteer Artillery and the partially-paid Submarine Miners will be located at Middle Head, under the command of the officer commanding the artillery forces. Fully 750 men will go to Middle Head. The forces at the National Park will reach something like a total of 3000 men, comprising the field battery of Volunteer Artillery, the New South Wales Artillery and Permanent Mounted Infantry, the Engineer Corps, and Volunteer Infantry (mounted and foot), under the command of Major-General Richardson. The Permanent Submarine Miners and the other batteries of the New South Wales Artillery will go to Middle Head.

AN event of considerable importance in the aquatic world takes place to-day, viz., the New South Wales Rowing Association's eight-oar race, which will be rowed over the Iron Cove course this afternoon. Six crews have entered, and the Sydney, Mercantile, Glebe, North Shore, East Sydney, and Balmain Rowing Clubs will be represented in the contest, which seems likely to prove exciting. Mr. F. J. Smith, M.L.A., will umpire the race, and suitable steamers will follow the crews from the start to the finish.

THE pipe-organ ordered some time since for the Petersham Congregational Church, from the celebrated builders Messrs. Lewis and Co., Limited, London, reached here per Edinburgh, 20th ultimo, and is now being erected by Mr. C. Richardson. It is believed that this is the only organ manufactured by the above firm at present in the colony.

SIGNOR SANI has just completed a massive piece of sculpture which is intended to relieve the façade of a building now being erected in Elizabeth-street. The figure, carved in Pyrmont freestone, stands 7ft. high, and is an allegorical representation of "Plenty." A vigorously-modelled female, whose head is girdled with a diadem of stars, the artist has made to typify Australia. With the left hand she protects the riches of the earth; with the right she offers of her bounteous stores. The subject is carefully worked out, and should prove a welcome addition to the rapidly-increasing architectural beauties of the city.

RESPECTING the statement which has been published, to the effect that it was the intention of the Minister for Works to put an end to the system of day work at Shea's Creek, Mr. Bruce Smith says that day work was rendered necessary at first because the surveyor had not then had time to lay out the work. As soon as this was finished the men would be taken on upon the cutty gang system. In consequence of the difficulty referred to-day wages for the first ten days were unavoidable. In order to remove any possibility of complaint in the future, Mr. Bruce Smith intends to call for tenders for all subsequent works.

AMONGST recent visitors to Australia are Mr. John M. Cutter, general manager of the Elgin National Watch Company, and Mr. Frank M. Avery, son of the president of the company, Mr. Thomas M. Avery. These gentlemen are visiting our shores partly on a pleasure trip and partly with the view of obtaining information upon any points affecting the interests of the watch trade. The company at present find work for 2600 employees: one month's pay-bill amounts to something like £25,000. They turn out an average of 1500 watches a-day. At the Melbourne Exhibition just closed the American Elgin Watch secured two gold medals for excellence of manufacture, and Mr. Cutter is justly proud of the distinction his company gained.

MR. EDMUND SAGER, secretary to the Board of Health, informs us that the public health authorities having been apprised that the steamer Guthrie, from China to Sydney, via ports, and which is due this morning, has cases of suspected small-pox on board, instructions have been issued by the Board of Health for her detention in quarantine. She has 57 officers and crew consisting of 12 Europeans, 10 Chinese, the remainder being Lascars or Malays. Mr. Quong Tart is a passenger, and it is also stated, though not definitely known, that Mr. J. H. Want, M.L.A., is also returning to the colony by this ship. Instructions have been given for the making up of a special mail at the General Post Office, to be despatched to the Quarantine Station as soon as practicable, in order to permit of the friends of passengers or others on board communicating with them. A telegraph operator has also been sent to the station, and thus telegraphic communication is ensured.

DURING the past week several cases of typhoid fever have been reported to the authorities at Burwood, and four patients have been removed to the Little Bay Hospital. In one case the patient was a country visitor.

ON Thursday evening a presentation of an illuminated address, in book form, was made to Mr. J. Dalgarno, at the Sydney Mechanics' School of Arts, to mark the occasion of the retirement of that gentleman from the office of president of the institution. The presentation was made on behalf of the members by Mr. R. Teece, who spoke in high terms of Mr. Dalgarno's services.

AT a meeting of gentlemen interested in the construction of the proposed loop-line from St. Peters to Liverpool, held at Tattersall's-chambers yesterday afternoon, it was resolved "that the members for Canterbury and Central Cumberland be requested to press the Government to submit the proposed loop-line, or so much of it as they may deem prudent to construct at present, to the Public Works Committee."

THE Hospital Bazaar and Village Fair, under the patronage of his Excellency the Governor and the Hon. Lady Carrington, will be held in the Exhibition Building in September, his Worship the Mayor having kindly granted the use of it. An executive committee in connection with the above was held at the Town Hall on Thursday, 11th instant. The members of the stallholders' committee were present. It was decided that all the ladies connected with the stalls should wear the dress of hospital nurses, and those in attendance at the flower pavilion, refreshment-rooms, side shows, &c., to adopt the dress of English peasants, as the centre of the Exhibition will be arranged with booths and Gipsy tent as an old English village fair. There will also be a large art union in small subscriptions with valuable articles as prizes, most of the leading merchants having kindly contributed.

TO-DAY is the last of the exhibition of the Art Society.

IN the law matriculation examination published on Thursday, the name "K. Bowden" should read "Eric K. Bowden."

THERE was a slight inaccuracy in the report of the speech delivered by the Attorney-General in the Legislative Council relative to the trial by Jury Bill. The sentence referred to should read: He knew of only three instances where prisoners were put upon their trial the third time.

SECOND EDITION.

ARRIVAL OF THE LUBECK.

NIPSIC AND OLGA FLOATED OFF.

The North German Lloyd's steamer Lubeck arrived at 2 a.m. to-day, and has brought some of the crews of the men-of-war; also later particulars of the disaster.

The Alameda called and took some of the wounded to Auckland.

The following passengers arrived by the Lubeck:—Captain Fritze, commander of H.M.S. Adler, Commodore; Lieutenant Paloese, H.M.S. Adler; Lieutenant Zeedeke, H.M. gunboat Eber, the only officer saved from this ship; Mr. H. Bernard, reporter; Captain Matthiasen, master of the sunken Danish barque; Mr. Mesmarts, his first mate; Mr. Thomson, his second mate; Captain Möller, master of the German barque Peter Godeffroy (sunken); Chief Engineer Golze, I.M.S. Adler; Engineer Dahl, I.M.S. Adler, purser's mate, and some petty officers whose names could not be made out.

SAMOA, APRIL 2.

Since I last wrote affairs have been very quiet generally, nothing of importance having transpired. The U. S. S. Nipsic and German ship Olga have been floated off. The former is badly damaged, and it is feared will never be able to sail for home again. The Olga is not much hurt, and leaves here, I believe, for Sydney in a day or two. I have been informed that all German troops are to be withdrawn, with the exception of 60 men and officers, who will be left to protect German property here. The Alameda called here last Saturday, and, although already crowded, took away some 10 cadets and about 30 of the sick and wounded of the Americans. An American officer has gone to Auckland to cable to the Navy Department for instructions. It is considered probable that he may be instructed to charter some of the Union Company's vessels to convey the majority of the wrecked Americans home. It is, however, intended in any case to leave a sufficient guard here to look after American interest in the Islands.

Our little town has all the appearances of a military camp, from the number of officers in uniform, sentries, &c., to be seen about. The Americans are wisely maintaining very strict discipline on shore amongst the large body of men, who, as usual with U. S. men-of-war crews, are a rather motley crowd, from all parts of the world.

A large number of the bodies of those drowned have been recovered and buried. The total number lost is 143. Very great damage has been done throughout the whole group, and it will be fully two years before the place recovers. In the meantime all here, more especially the natives, will feel the hard times severely.

THE STATE SCHOOL SYSTEMS OF EDUCATION.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

The education officials, Messrs. J. Main and C. A. Topp, who visited South Australia and New South Wales to inspect the State school systems and compare them with the Victorian system, have furnished the Minister of Public Instruction with their report, detailing the result of their inspections. The report deals very fully with the subject in all its branches. The result of their observations shows that in New South Wales children are pushed on more rapidly and taught more subjects than those of Victoria and South Australia, but the knowledge is less thorough and accurate. The incentives for pupils to work in the forms of exhibitions, scholarships, and prizes are most numerous and valuable in Victoria, and least so in New South Wales, in proportion to population, South Australia occupying a middle position. The methods of instruction in large schools in the three colonies are nearly equal in merit. In the country schools Victoria has a superiority of method of examination, but the system of South Australia seems on the whole to be freer from defects than that of New South Wales or Victoria.

He lunched with the Chief Justice, and in the afternoon drove to the vice-regal residence at Marble Hill.

The Agents-General unanimously agreed to ask Sir Graham Berry to prepare a joint letter to Lord Knutsford asking the Government to deal with the question this session. Sir Charles Mills urged all the colonies to follow the example of the Cape in passing an address to the Queen, praying Her Majesty to sanction legislation upon the lines of colonial wishes.

THE QUEENSLAND SUGAR INDUSTRY.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION.

THE CAUSES OF THE DEPRESSION IN THE INDUSTRY.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE COMMISSION.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

BRISBANE, FRIDAY.

The members of the Sugar Commission, after holding several meetings, were unable to agree upon a report, the chairman, Mr. W. H. Groom, dissenting from the conclusions of the other members, Messrs. King and Cowley. It was, therefore, decided to bring up two reports. These were presented to the acting Governor to-day. The majority in their report submit the following recommendations for the improvement of the condition of the sugar industry. 1. We recommend the Government should make an inquiry in Java and Borneo about the qualities of cane of which small quantities were imported by the Colonial Sugar-refining Company and the Mourilyan Sugar Company, and if satisfied that it is as valuable as represented, should procure a shipment of plants sufficient to plant 20 or 30 acres of land in a nursery, which, to avoid all danger of importing any disease, should be established on one of the islands on the northern coast. 2. We recommend your Excellency's advisers should open negotiations with the colonies of Victoria and South Australia for the purpose of ascertaining on what terms and conditions, if any, those colonies could admit Queensland sugars duty free. 3. We recommend that assistance should be given either to public bodies or individuals to enable them to provide means for irrigating all cultivated lands in localities where a sufficient supply of water can be obtained. 4. We declare it our opinion that if all coloured labour be withdrawn from the plantations, the extinction of the sugar industry must speedily follow, and we therefore recommend that the introduction of Polynesian labour be permitted to continue, at all events for some years longer than the period now limited, for the purpose of encouraging the development of tropical agriculture and fruit growing in the Northern districts. They offer the following recommendations:—1. That the Legislature should be invited to pass an Act of Parliament defining the responsibility of public carriers, and declaring null and void all conditions inserted in bills of lading or other contracts whereby they may seek to evade the responsibility which, in the opinion of the Legislature, should properly attach to their business. 2. That if possible arrangements should be made for the conveyance of northern mails by special fast steamers which should carry only mails, passengers, and fruit, such steamers to be properly fitted for the carriage of fruit, and run from Cooktown to Melbourne in eight days. 3. That an experienced tropical agriculturist be appointed to supervise experimental farms at Cairns and elsewhere in the north, with instructions to pay visits periodically to the principal cultivators of tropical products in the northern district for the purpose of observing their progress, conferring with and advising them, and to report to the Government from time to time on the progress of the industry, and bring its requirements under notice. 4. That negotiations be opened with the Governments of Victoria and the other Australian colonies with the object of obtaining the admission into those colonies of Queensland fruit duty free, as we admit their fruits.

Mr. Groom, the chairman of the board, in his minority report, thinks the want of confidence now manifested by the banks and monetary institutions in the sugar industry has not been caused by the passing of the statute by which the importation Polynesian labour is absolutely prohibited after 1890, but the fall in the price of sugar, the enormous increase in the quantity manufactured from beetroot, and the heavy losses occasioned by the drought, are the chief reasons for the lack of confidence.

Mr. Groom deals at length with the remedies suggested by the various witnesses for the amelioration of the condition of the sugar industry, and states that if the question is Queensland able to do without the sugar industry except on the basis of white population, is answered in the affirmative, then undoubtedly a very large portion of the coast districts of the north would not be cultivated, at all events for some time to come, and from four to five millions of capital which has been vested in the sugar industry would be wiped out of existence. He believes that irrigation applied to sugar plantations wherever practicable would go a long way to assist in relieving the industry of its present depression. The Central Mill system, in his opinion, contained within it elements of success if properly applied, and one of the solutions of the sugar question. He summarises the cause of depression in the history as follows:—1. Unnecessarily large areas held by planters compared with the small area actually cultivated, and the consequent payment of interest on a large unproductive area. 2. The action of the mills is quite disproportionate to the area of cane under cultivation. 3. The sudden and continuous fall in the price of sugar, arising from the keen competition of sugar produced from beet root; the financial embarrassment of many of the planters, owing to their working on borrowed capital, bearing a high rate of interest, which with working expenses is entirely chargeable to the small area of cultivated land. 4. The disastrous drought of the last two years, which has seriously diminished the production, the sugar export for 1888 being not more than half what it was in 1887, and the prospect of an equally diminished output for the present year, owing to the continued drought, rain having come too late to ensure a full crop for the coming season. 5. General want of confidence on the part of the monetary institutions in the sugar industry, arising from the foregoing circumstances, and the probability of keen competition of beetroot sugar continuing for some time to come.

Mr. Groom expresses the opinion that a great deal of capital invested in the sugar industry, and which has come from places outside Queensland, will necessarily be lost, and all that the Legislature can do to assist the planters will not prevent it. Many plantations, he says, are hopelessly encumbered. The report also deals with the question of tropical agriculture, banana preserving, &c.; and one of the measures suggested to foster and develop the trade is to subsidise one or more steamers for a period. The opinion is also expressed that two or more experimental farms should be established in the Northern districts, in charge of thoroughly practical men. The quantity of sugar reported from the various ports of Queensland from the 5th January to the 31st March was 1168 tons, making a total of 17,832 tons since the 2nd June last. It is estimated that the output of sugar in the Cairns district this year will be 2100 tons, as against 2000 tons produced last season. The area of cane under cultivation is 1600 acres, or 100 acres more than last year. In the Cooktown district there will be no crushing this year, but seven acres are under cane. Last year the area under cane was 450 acres, and the output of sugar was 580 tons.

Esmonde also spoke, and all professed themselves surprised and delighted by the wonderful heartiness and unanimity of their reception. Afterwards a resolution was carried at the instance of Messrs. A NEW COLONIAL GOVERNOR.

LORD ONSLOW ON AUSTRALIA.

It is always interesting to learn at first hand the views which the many distinguished strangers who pass through our city from time to time form about the colonies, because these gentlemen, coming fresh as they do from the very centre of British life and thought, are able to give us a clear impression of how our colonial modes of living appear when viewed from an English standpoint. As a general rule Englishmen who visit the colonies have little or no previous knowledge on the subject, and are intensely surprised to find thriving communities and populous cities, with all the conveniences of modern civilisation existing in this far-off land. But in the case of the Earl of Onslow, who is now spending a few days in Sydney on his way to New Zealand, the matter is very different, for this gentleman, who has just been appointed to succeed Sir Wm. Jervois as Governor of New Zealand, is already possessed of an intimate knowledge of these colonies, acquired during the time when he served as Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies. His opinions with regard to Australia and the Australians may therefore be taken as having a much greater weight than those of a mere casual observer, and with a view of placing Lord Onslow's observations before the public, a representative of the Herald sought an interview with him yesterday. Lord Onslow expressed himself as being perfectly willing to place his ideas at the public disposal, but explained that his stay in the colonies had been so short that he had not yet had time to go very deeply into the conditions of life out here, and was only able, so far, to judge from a purely superficial standpoint.

COLONIAL LIFE.

"My first impressions of the colonies, when I landed at Adelaide, were," said the Earl, "of a distinctly favourable character. I was not, however, so much surprised as many newly-arrived persons seem to be at the busy life of the colonists, and the indications of progress and prosperity which I saw all around me. I was, to a certain extent, prepared for all this by my probation at the Colonial Office, and, as far as statistics went, knew something about the colonies and their trade. But I have yet to bring myself into harmony with colonial life and thought, and to do this it is necessary to mix intimately with the people—with all classes, I mean, and not merely with the official class. So far, of course, I have not had an opportunity of doing this, as my stay, both in Melbourne and Adelaide, was extremely brief. The former city reminded me very much of San Francisco, and the newness of the city and the go-ahead appearance of the people contrasts very strikingly with the old-world, quiet atmosphere of Sydney."

NEW ZEALAND.

With regard to the colony over which he is about to assume the position of Governor, Lord Onslow was naturally somewhat reticent. "I have not, of course," he said "been there yet, and so I cannot give you my impressions of the people and the land, and I do not feel justified in committing myself to any opinion about the country until I have lived there. But I am thoroughly familiar with its circumstances, financial and otherwise, and I trust sincerely that the present splendid season may do much to restore it to a condition of prosperity. In fact the prospects of the country seem brighter than they have been for years past, as the terrible drought which has visited the other Australian colonies has opened up a splendid market for New Zealand produce. Yes, the burden of debt resting on the colony does seem very heavy; but then all young countries must borrow, and as long as the money is invested in reproductive works which pay interest on the capital, the principle is a sound one. That the English people take this view of the case is sufficiently proved by the high value of colonial securities, and the readiness with which fresh loans are taken up on the London market."

FEDERATION.

"With regard to Imperial Federation, my views, I think, are getting pretty well known," remarked Lord Onslow, "for I was a member of the Colonial Conference. I do not, of course, pretend that the aim which we are all working and hoping for will be reached immediately, but I do think that the idea of joining all the branches of the British Empire into one great Federation is not merely an idle dream. We at home are not, as many people seem inclined to believe, opposed to Colonial Federation, but would rather aid it in every possible way as a step in the right direction. You see, Canada federated years ago with great success, and if Australia only followed the same example, and united into one great country, the work of Imperial Federation would be much facilitated. It would be ever so much easier to arrive at an agreement with one colony than with a number of separate and independent ones, each having their own opinions, and often, indeed, their own jealousies, which prevent them from acting together harmoniously. I regard it as certain that Imperial Federation must follow and not precede Colonial Federation, and therefore the sooner we can induce the colonies to throw aside their differences, and federate, the nearer we shall be to the attainment of Imperial Federation."

AUSTRALIAN NAVAL DEFENCES.

"Whilst on the subject of Federation, I may point out that the passing of the Naval Defences Act was certainly an important move in the right direction. The colonies will gain enormously by the new arrangement, for they will have, at a moderate cost, the services of a first-class naval squadron. The ships sent out will, indeed, be of a much higher class than was first intended, for the British naval authorities have decided to provide the very latest and best types of vessels only. At the Colonial Conference we merely promised to send out vessels of the Archer and Rattlesnake type; but since then the rapid improvements in naval architecture have made it possible to supply vessels of a very much higher class, and accordingly five vessels of the Medea type are now being built. They belong to what is known as the P class, all their names commencing with P, and will be called the Persian, Pelorus, Pandora, Psyche, and Phœnix. The Medea, after which these vessels are modelled, is I may explain, a protected cruiser of 2800 tons, armed with six-inch guns, and having a guaranteed speed of 20 knots. In addition the squadron will include two torpedo gunboats of the Sharpshooter type, to be called the Wizard and Whiting. I don't think I need dwell upon the great security which this auxiliary squadron will be to Australia, because the people out here, from what I can gather of their views, seem to be thoroughly well aware of this fact."

THE IMPERIAL INSTITUTE.

"I see," continued the Earl, "that Sir Somers Vine has already been out here telling you all about the Imperial Institute, and I dont think I can add much to the information which he gave you. I can only express my individual opinion that the Institution will be of great benefit to British trade. The scheme of collecting and publishing commercial intelligence from all parts of the Empire ought, if properly carried out, to be of much service, and I know from my own experience, the value of such a work. When I was Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade we issued a monthly periodical called the Board of Trade Journal, giving the latest news with regard to tariffs, new manufactures, and other commercial matters, and the information thus given was so much sought after that the journal soon became an established and even a financial success. The Imperial Institute intend to carry on the same work, only on a much larger and more comprehensive scale, and I see no reason why their efforts should not meet with even greater success."

MASONIC.

Before concluding his remarks, Lord Onslow, who is a P.G.W. of the English Constitution, spoke very warmly of the fraternal reception which had been accorded him by the Freemasons in these colonies. "Before I left England I was," he said, "much interested in colonial Masonry, and as a member of the Grand Lodge, took part in the negotiations which resulted in the union of the different New South Wales Constitutions into one Grand Lodge. I may tell you that this auspicious union was brought about mainly by the strong representations which Lord Carrington made as to its advisability, which induced the Prince of Wales to take the scheme up so warmly. I have been much surprised also at the great attention which is paid to housing the different lodges here, and I have only this morning visited your New Masonic Hall, which is really a splendid building, and admirably adapted for its purpose."

SELLING SUBURBAN LANDS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The words of Mr. Seaver will be echoed by many a disgusted freetrader throughout the colony. It would really be more consistent on the part of the Government to impose additional revenue duties to pay the deficit than to adopt the suicidal policy of selling suburban lands to that amount. Every town in the colony is now hemmed in with a fringe of vacant land, the owners of which are waiting for someone else to expend labour and capital to increase the value of their holdings. The Government will find that they have arrayed against them a force like that of the rising tide. A direct tax of 1d. in the £ on land value, irrespective of improvements, would have provided a fund to wipe out the deficit, whereas Mr. M'Millan's proposal simply transfers the right of collection to private hands, and actually leaves the colony at large in a worse position than before. It is all very well to talk of what will be done next year; but what if the united forces of all democrats, irrespective of fiscal opinions, be brought to bear against the Government? The need of a third party who will truly represent the advanced thought of the day becomes more and more apparent. If the present Government wilfully block the way to reform they will find no more steadfast and relentless opponents than those who are democrats first and freetraders afterwards.

I am, &c.,
ONE OF THE MANY.

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—MR. WARNER'S BENEFIT.

It might have been reasonably anticipated that the last appearance of Mr. Warner, especially on an occasion announced as his benefit, would have attracted a packed audience; but, although the lower portions of the House were well filled, there was anything but a large attendance in the dress circle. The programme submitted was certainly not lacking in novelty, though it is questionable if the general public are attracted by a bill which gives a little, but not enough, of several pieces, and whether they would not derive more pleasure from one sterling performance. Be that as it may, Mr. Warner undoubtedly provided the public with an embarras de richesse in the way of entertainment which appeared to be fully appreciated. The first item was the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet," in which Miss Gracie Warner secured nearly all the honours for her graceful and thoroughly natural pourtrayal of the love-sick Juliet. Mr. Warner as Romeo was good, and Mr. H. H. Vincent received a hearty round of applause for his very cleverly rendered satire upon Romeo's love dream and Queen Mab's influence thereon. The most enjoyable item, however, in the evening's programme was the celebrated screen scene from the "School for Scandal," in which Mr. Warner made an excellent impression in his impersonation of Charles Surface. Mr. Vincent's Sir Peter Teazle was worthy of the actor; in other words it was a refined and admirable conception of the character. Mr. Herbert Fleming as the smooth-tongued hypocrite Joseph Surface played carefully and well, and Miss Augusta Dargon's Lady Teazle though marred by a most decided accent evinced much dramatic force, especially at the close of the scene where Lady Teazle confesses her fault to Sir Peter and shows her contempt for Joseph Surface. After this came a song by Mr. Harold King entitled "Ora Pro Nobis." The theme is essentially pathetic, and Mr. King's rich voice did it full justice, so much so that he received a round of applause. Next came the third act of "The Lady of Lyons," after which Miss Dargon roused the audience to enthusiasm by reciting "Fontenoy." The performance concluded with the third act of "Othello," Mr. Warner impersonating the Moor, Mr. H. H. Vincent Iago, Mr. Albert Marsh Cassio, Miss Gracie Warner Desdemonia, and Miss Ada Ward Emelia.

It is hardly necessary to announce that Mr. Charles Arnold will appear at the Theatre Royal to-night in "Hans the Boatman." Mr. Arnold has not been very long absent from Sydney, but as his entertainment, judging from the enthusiasm with which it was always received during his first season here, has evidently not outrun its popularity, he is likely to draw crowded houses during the coming week. After Mr. Arnold leaves for America the pantomime "Sinbad the Sailor" will be produced, in which Miss Edith Blande will make her first appearance in Sydney.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

"Madame Midas" is still the attraction at the above place of amusement, and the piece will probably run well during the coming week.

CRITERION THEATRE.

The pretty little comedy of "The Two Roses" appears to have taken a hold upon the public, and during the past week the attendances at the Criterion Theatre have been very satisfactory. The piece will be continued for five nights longer.

MUSIC HALLS.

"Fun on the Bristol" has proved a very successful piece at the Alhambra Music Hall, and will be repeated this evening. The house has been well packed almost every night during the week, and the entertainment provided by the versatile company now performing at this place of amusement has been very much appreciated.

The Federal Minstrels continue to perform to good houses at the Haymarket Music Hall. The vocalists of the company are well worth hearing, and some very entertaining programmes have been performed. Amongst the songs to be sung this evening will be one on the recent Samoan disaster.

LAST DAYS OF POMPEII.

This grand display, which has attracted such large assemblages to Phillip Park, will be given again this evening. The descriptive fire portrait of H.M.S. Calliope will be repeated, and some novelties are announced. This afternoon the grand military and naval tournament will be presented again, and a capital programme has been prepared. In addition to the tournament the Faust family will appear. Some Northern Territory aboriginals will give an exhibition of spear-throwing, and a donkey race will take place.

THE CYCLORAMA.

The beautiful representation of the Battle of Gettysburg, at the Cyclorama, Redfern, is increasing in popularity, and has during the week been the admiration of numbers of people. It will be open as usual from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. to-day.

SKATING RINKS.

The skating season has now fairly begun, and the various rinks in and around Sydney are again enjoying the popularity for which they became so famous last year. The Crystal Palace Rink, York-street, presents a very gay appearance every evening, and is deservedly one of the most attractive of the rinks. The Elite Rink, Bedford and Elizabeth streets, has been largely patronised every evening since the celebration of the grand opening, and skaters are loud in praising the new composition floor. The Metropolitan Rink, Harris-street, Ultimo, provides a special attraction in the graceful and clever performances of the great skater Professor Mort Smith. The Trocadero Skating Palace at Newtown, with its fine appointments and very spacious floor, is a favourite rendezvous for skaters.

RE-UNION OF GRADUATES AND UNDER-GRADUATES.

The annual re-union of graduates and undergraduates of the Sydney University took place at the Oddfellows' Hall, Elizabeth-street, last evening, the ostensible object of the gathering being to bid farewell to the graduates of December, 1888. Mr. L. E. F. Neill, B.A., presided over a very large attendance of University men. In opening the proceedings, the chairman read a letter from the Chancellor of the University (Sir William Manning), who stated that he sympathised with everything that tended to bring the graduates and undergraduates together in the bonds of goodfellowship, and regretted that for various reasons he could not be present. Apologies for non-attendance were received from Professors Liversidge, M'Callum, and Gurney. An excellent programme of vocal and instrumental music was then rendered, amongst those who assisted being Mr. C. A. Flint, M.A., Mr. A. B. Piddington, B.A., Mr. J. Burnett, Mr. Thomas Gilpin and Mr. A. Parkinson. The pieces given by these gentlemen were well received. Mr. Gilbert Parker was loudly applauded for the effective manner in which he recited "The Revenge, a Ballad of the Armada," and Tennyson's "Northern Farmer." The 'cello solo contributed by Mr. Edgar Strauss and the pianoforte solo given by M. Henri Kowalski were vociferously applauded, encores being demanded and granted in each case. Dr. L. O'Neill and Mr. Percy Hollis (Goulburn) acted as accompanists. Refreshments were handed round during the evening, and several toasts, including "The University," "The Retiring Graduates, and "The University Teachers," were honoured. A special feature in the programme was Mr. A. Parkinson's able rendering of "The Death of Nelson," the accompaniment of which was played by Mons. H. Kowalski.

AQUARIUMS.

In view of the approaching holidays the attractions of the several aquariums are to be greatly augmented. The entertainments, always of an interesting character, will comprise, according to announcement, many new acts, and no doubt the enterprise of the managements will be fully rewarded by the crowds of pleasure-seekers which they will be sure to attract. Between the natural beauties of these pleasure resorts, the treasures garnered in the aquariums, the rinks, the tobogganing and switchback railways, the baths, and the varied entertainments, ample enjoyment should be obtained. Particulars will be found in our advertising columns of the Bondi, Coogee, and Manly Aquariums.

A concert is being inaugurated by Messrs. George Leeder and Thomas Hall, of Hurstville, under the patronage of the Hon. J. H. Carruthers, M.L.A., J. Wheeler, and H. Patrick, Mayor of Hurstville, to raise funds towards the erection of a Presbyterian Church building. Mr. Alderman Sproule has offered to contribute 25 per cent. for the next three years on any amount collected, so it is therefore anticipated that the receipts will be large. The date will be the 3rd May next.

A very successful rendering of "Jessica's First Prayer," a musically-illustrated song service, was given in the Free Church of England, Kogarah, on Thursday evening by the children of the Sunday School. The object of the service was the reduction of the debt upon the church. Mr. Perry, who presided, and Mr. Hollingworth, who read the story, performed their respective duties with commendable ability. The church was crowded. Mrs. Bowers, Miss Amy Hollingworth, Mr. Kirkby, and Mr. C. M'Kern lent their aid. A large collection resulted.

Our Brisbane correspondent telegraphs that the London Minstrel Tourists conclude a successful season at the Gaiety Theatre to-morrow. Sheridan's company, with "Fun on the Bristol," is doing a good business at the Opera House.

The Court of the Hon. Artillery Company has decided to send a memorial to the Queen regarding the appointment of a Captain-General and Colonel. It was also decided that a copy of the address should be forwarded to the Prince of Wales, accompanied by an expression of the sincere desire of the regiment that his Royal Highness may return to the post from which he retired.

Our Family Doctor says that all the children are to have Arnott's Milk Arrowroot Biscuits. They improve the children's health so much.—[Advt.]

WRECKS AT THE SOUTH SEA ISLANDS.

THE RED CROSS AND ADA C. OWEN LOST.

THE SHIP SUAKIM MISSING.

(From the New Zealand Herald.)

RARATONGA, March 23.

Daylight of Friday, the 15th, brought the cry of "Sail, oh," and a large vessel could be discerned away to the northward inward bound. Upon boarding her I found the vessel to be the Red Cross, a fine, wholesome wooden vessel of 1301 tons register, and owned by her builders, Messrs. J. T. Suthard and Sons, of Richmond, Maine, and Captain M'Intyre. She was built in 1877, and is 185ft. 8in. length over all. She left Newcastle at the beginning of the year, and all went well with the ship until the 29th of January, when she had reached long. 155·35 degrees W. and lat. 21·10 S. The morning of that day broke cloudy, with rain squalls. The weather continued, as the morning advanced, to look threatening, consequently all sail was furled except the three lower topsails, foresail, and maintopmast staysail. This was at 10 a.m. Half an hour later the good ship was struck by a violent hurricane that arose and overwhelmed the ship with dreadful suddenness, and she was thrown on her beam ends. The hurricane came from the E.N.E., and almost immediately she was struck her topsails, foresail, and staysail were blown out of the bolt ropes, and at 11 a.m. Captain M'Intyre saw the main and mizen masts go by the deck. These carried with them the fore topgallant-mast, jibboom, and lower foretopsail yard, the falling spars breaking the pump-gear, rails, &c. The ship was now lying in an almost helpless condition, and her decks were constantly flooded with water, which found its way below through the hole in the deck where the mainmast came through. Meanwhile the hurricane continued with fearful violence, and as an example of its power, it literally tore two of the ship's boats out of the davits and their fastenings, and they were swept away to sea as if they were but shavings.

Upon arrival here Captain M'Intyre came on shore, but found that he could not obtain a spar that could be rigged as a jury mast sufficient to take him on to Samoa, or obtain any other necessary gear; and as at this time the men refused to proceed further with the ship, as she was not seaworthy in her present condition, Captain M'Intyre was forced to abandon all ideas of going on, and decided to try and get the vessel into the Avarua harbour, and there let her remain until something further could be done. Unfortunately, in bringing the ship in she got ashore, and as he had no means of getting her off again negotiations were opened with Mr. R. Exham, the representative here of the firm of Messrs. Donald and Edenborough, which finally resulted in that firm becoming the purchaser of the ship and cargo for £500. She afterwards struck on the reef and sank.

Word was received by the schooner Daisy that a ship's boat and a quantity of wreckage had drifted on shore on the island of Aitutaki. The boat bore the name of the Suakim. The other gear consisted of cabin doors, oars, and a life-belt, &c. From the description of the doors, &c., Captain M'Intyre recognised them as belonging to the Suakim, which vessel left Newcastle bound for San Francisco three days before he sailed with the Red Cross. The Suakim is described as a fine iron ship and an almost new vessel, having only been built in 1886. She was of 1618 tons register and of the following dimensions: 259ft. long, 38ft. 2in. beam, and 23ft. depth of hold. She was built at Port Glasgow by Messrs. Russell and Co. for the Suakim Ship Company, Limited, and Captain Seabrook was in command.

The Richmond has just arrived here from Tahiti en route for your port, and on board of her are Captain Owens and the crew of Messrs. Donald and Edenborough's brigantine Ada C. Owen, which was lost while entering Papera harbour, on the south-west side of Tahiti, and close to Papeete, on February 4.

THE BATHURST AGRICULTURAL SHOW.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our Correspondent.)

BATHURST, Friday.

The attendance at the show to-day was very small, not more than 300 or 400 persons being present. Nearly all the live stock exhibits were removed by the afternoon, and there was nothing much to attract attention but the shed where the fine arts, vegetables, and other exhibits were shown. The exhibition has been a great success, and the result will enable the committee to largely increase the prizes next year. The prizes were paid over to-night.

TRADES MOVEMENTS.

The weekly meeting of the Trades Hall executive committee was held last night, Mr. J. E. West being in the chair. An application made by the Plumbers' Society for 500 shares in the Trades Hall Company was granted. Other business of a private nature was discussed, but no decision was arrived at. The eight-hours rules revisionary committee met last night at the Trades Hall, Dixon-street, Mr. Arthur Newland being in the chair. Twenty-one societies were represented. A communication was received from the eight-hours demonstration committee in Melbourne, inviting a Sydney representative to be present at the demonstration to be held on Saturday, April 20. The secretary was instructed to reply to the letter stating that the local committee regretted their inability to send a delegate to attend the demonstration; also to thank the Melbourne committee for their cordial invitation. It was resolved that the recommendation embodied in the eight-hours committee's report, re making the rules of a permanent character, be endorsed. The committee also recognised the necessity for a paid secretary being appointed during the sittings of the eight-hour committee.

The monthly meeting of the Tobacco Operatives' Society took place last night, at the Trades' Hall, Dixon-street. Mr. J. Watson presided. A communication was read from the Trades and Labour Council, stating that a meeting will be held in the Protestant Hall on Friday, 26th instant, to condemn the work of the Corps of Commissionaries.

CASUALTIES.

A shunter, named Samuel Davis, met with a serious accident at Darling Harbour yesterday morning. He was climbing from one carriage of a train to another when he missed his hold and fell while the train was going at a rate of about 20 miles an hour. Fortunately he fell clear of the wheels; but he was picked up in an unconscious state with several bruises about the head, and was removed to the Sydney Hospital.

Yesterday afternoon a carter named Arthur Romey, aged 15 years, residing in May-street, St. Peters, was driving a cart loaded with bricks along Oxford-street, when a tram came into collision with it and overturned it. The boy was extricated from the bricks which had fallen on top of him, and was admitted to the hospital with an injury to his back and bruises on his face.

MUNICIPAL COUNCILS.

ENFIELD.

The Enfield Council met on Tuesday evening. Present—The Mayor (Mr. James Eve), Aldermen Cadden, West, Foy, Hodson, Lipscomb, Westbrook, and Richardson. A communication was received from the Canterbury Council relative to the condition of Burwood-road, which thoroughfare passes through both municipalities. It was resolved that the joint works committees should confer upon the subject. The Mayor reported the result of his inquiries upon the subject of the alignment, also that the matter of drainage entering the borough from the adjoining borough of Burwood, had been brought under the notice of the latter council. Upon the recommendation of the finance committee, it was resolved to write to the Bank of New South Wales, inquiring upon what terms they would be prepared to grant the council an advance.

GRANVILLE.

A meeting of the above council was held on Wednesday evening last. Present, the Mayor, Alderman C. Unwin (in the chair), Aldermen Forsyth, Ross, Kay, Marshall, Ritchie, Goff, and Leggott. The finance committee's report, recommending the payment of accounts and salaries amounting in all to £203 19s. 1d., was received, and payment authorised. The valuators reported that an appeal court had been held. There were 16 appeals, 14 of which were sustained and two reduced. They also gave a denial to accusations that they had neglected to rate certain properties within the borough. A letter was received from the Treasury, stating that the endowment, amounting to £1013 11s. 8d., had been paid to the credit of the council. A letter was received from the overseer of works, stating that he desired one month's notice before his salary was reduced, as carried at last meeting. Tenders were accepted for kerbing and guttering, cube crossings, alignment stones, and dwarf wall and iron palisading in front of the Town Hall.

REDFERN.

The fortnightly meeting of the Redfern council was held on Thursday. There were present—The Mayor (Alderman Crowe), with Aldermen Williamson, Howe, Butterfield, Clarke, Lander, and Smith. Correspondence of an unimportant character was dealt with. A petition was presented by Alderman Lander from residents in the Golden Grove ward, protesting against the sewer manholes being left open, thereby causing a great nuisance. A report was also received from the engineer in charge of the work, to the effect that, pending legislative action, nothing could be done. The council resolved itself into a committee of the whole to consider the amending Sewerage Bill. Motions: The following motions were dealt with:—By Alderman Butterfield,—"That 100 tons of blue metal be placed on the west side of Morehead-street, between Kettle-street and Phillip-street, the cost not to exceed 9s. 6d. per ton." Carried. By Alderman Howe,—"That about 10 tons of blue metal be placed in ruts in Cornwallis-street, where it is required, at a cost not to exceed 9s. 6d. per ton, and that the property-owners abutting the street be requested to secure their fence against drifting sand." Carried. By Alderman Lee,—"That 675 tons of blue metal be placed in Young-street (when the sewer is laid) at a cost not to exceed 9s. 6d. per ton." By Alderman Lee,—"That an iron road roller (horse-power) be purchased at a cost of £170." Negatived. By Alderman Clarke,—"That the attention of the Water and Sewerage Board be directed to the apparently exorbitant charge of 10s. per horse per annum for water, when stables are also assessed and a rate charged thereon." Carried. "That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the councils of the various municipalities, and they be asked to co-operate in protesting against this charge." Carried. By Alderman Berry,—"That about 350 tons of metal be placed in Pitt-street, between Wells-street and Redfern-street, and Turner-street to Mr. Thompson's terrace, near boundary, at a probable cost of 10s. 3d. per ton." Carried. The council then rose.

ROCKDALE.

The fortnightly meeting of the Rockdale Council was held on the 11th April. There were present—The Mayor (W. G. Judd), with Aldermen Godfrey, Green, A. G. Carruthers, T. Price, S. Jeeves, and H. Cooke. Inward correspondence was read and dealt with as follows:—From the Board of Health, enclosing a return of persons admitted to the metropolitan hospital during the months of January and February suffering from typhoid fever, such return showing two persons so admitted. From Mr. E. D. Dyson, Government road superintendent, as to the raising of the Rocky Point-road opposite the junction with the Harrow-road, and stating that part has been coated and the remainder will be attended to at an early date. 2. As to the culvert in the Rocky Point-road he does not think it advisable to construct a culvert on the side of the road, as when other streets become opened, it would become useless, and notifying his recommendation to intercept the storm water at Rocky Point-road with a narrow lane from the railway by means of a pipe 16 or 18 inches, which will convey the water on to Bestic-street. From Mr. N. J. E. Cooper and a number of other residents of French-street, asking that certain improvements may be carried out. The letter was received, and a reply to be sent, that the improvements asked for were beyond question, but several improvements will be made to the footpaths and watertables. From Mr. Joseph Twiss, expressing his satisfaction of the Council's action in causing certain alterations in Harrow-road. From the council clerk, Hurstville, intimating the acceptance of a tender of Messrs. Walz Brothers at £140 10s. for culvert in the Harrow-road as per plan and specification submitted some time ago. Received, and Messrs. Walz Brothers' tender was approved of, and the Hurstville Council to be apprised accordingly. A further letter was received from the Hurstville Council, asking the Rockdale Council to maintain a lamp on the Harrow-road when Hurstville would do likewise. A reply was directed to be sent, stating that at the present they were not in a position to increase the number of lamps. The Mayor submitted a report from the finance committee, recommending payment of accounts amounting to £151. The Mayor also submitted a report from the Inspector of Nuisances for the past fortnight. Mr. Goldtown attended and addressed the council with regard to the Chinese cases referred to in the report, and as to the sanitary condition of the premises of Chinese residents in the municipality. The matter with regard to several cases for which information had not yet been filed was left in the hands of the Mayor, upon the understanding that if the inspector after making another visit found their premises clean, the cases are not to be proceeded with. The council clerk read the balance-sheet of the revenue and expenditure for the half-year, ending February 4, 1889, duly certified by the Mayor and auditors. The council then adjourned.

MUNICIPAL NOTES.

The Hurstville Council have written asking the Department of Public Works to receive a deputation upon the subject of the widening of the road opposite the Hurstville Railway Station. Alderman Sproule has been the principal mover in this matter.

The ex-Mayor of Hurstville (Alderman Milsop) was presented with a mayoral cradle at the last meeting of the Hurstville Council. He was the first Mayor of Hurstville.

THE BLACKS AT BRUNGLE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Having read the letter of "A Resident of Brungle" relating to the position of the aboriginals settled in that neighbourhood, and as I am in the habit of visiting the encampment, I may be allowed to give a brief expression of opinion on the subject. The blacks now settled at Brungle, it would seem, have been led to focus there partly on account of their being disturbed elsewhere, and partly because of the liberal supply of Government rations through the police at Gundagai, the fact of the existence of a reserve for camp purposes being, of course, an initial reason. That the camp is in certain respects an inconvenience to white settlers appears very plain as soon as one becomes acquainted with the bearings of the position. The aborigines ought not to be permitted to congregate in the very midst of European settlements, for if they do they not only injure the whites, but themselves. My own opinion, after a residence of many years amongst these people is that they can only be dealt with successfully in community, and such community should be as far removed as possible from centres of white population; and I consider that the argument of "A Brungle Resident," when he urges for the blacks' own benefit the reservation of an extensive area, somewhere where country is still available, for the purpose of settling thereon all the aboriginals in a given district. I am fully persuaded that if such a provision were to be made in three or four different places in the colony, and duly qualified men were set over such settlements who would be directly amenable to some such body as the Aborigines Protectorate Board—which organisation, I can say from practical observation, is thoroughly efficient in dealing with the needs of the blacks—not only would comprehensive and permanent good ensue to the remnants of the race still in our midst, but from the standpoint of economy, a decided saving of public money would be secured. For, as at present disbursed, a little here and a little there, without any real system of economy to regulate such distribution, there cannot fail to be much waste and loss. I have spoken to several persons of intelligence and sound judgment on the Upper Murrumbidgee, and they are all agreed on this question—that special legislation is most urgently required to provide adequately for those whom we have dispossessed; and if some philanthropic member of Parliament would only take the matter up and make it so to speak his "hobby," it would not be long before a change for the better would come to 8000 needy human beings. That legislation is urgently required on this subject may be clearly seen by a single fact recently given to myself personally by a gentleman actively engaged on behalf of our blacks. He assured me that during a period of about two years and a half £10,000 had been spent on two mission stations, with nothing scarcely to show for it. If that is the case then it is high time that special legislation should be secured, if for no other reason, to prevent such waste of public money.

I am, &c.,
MURRUMBIDGEE.

A GOOD WORD FOR THE SUEZ CANAL.

So many hard words have been said of the canal arrangements, that it is refreshing to find the following:—At the Sunderland Ship-owners annual meeting held the last week in February, Mr. James Laing, referring to the Suez Canal, on the board of which he was a representative, said that since the convention in 1885 between Mr. Charles Lesseps and the shipowners everything had gone harmoniously, while shipowners had received greatly increased facilities in the passage of vessels, enabling them to go through in about half the time formerly required. They had also been benefited by the reduction of dues, which last year saved the shipowners between £320,000 and £340,000. He thought it due to their good friends in Paris to say that the way in which they received and treated the British directors was worthy of all praise. He mentioned that, owing to the use of the electric light, vessels had gone through the canal in 15 hours. The canal was also being enlarged and deepened.

IS VICE INCREASING IN SYDNEY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have been absent from Sydney for some days, or I should have tried before this to correct a false impression you have formed of certain words of mine, uttered on Sunday evening last. Nothing could be more courteous than your criticism. If the sentiments attributed to me were really mine, I should have deserved a much stronger rebuke than that which you gave. You represented me as pronouncing the opinion that drunkenness, unchastity, and Sabbath-breaking are unusually prominent among us. I am fortunately able to give you my ipsissima verba. Is atheism increasing in Sydney? I fear it is. I am no pessimist, but I really think this city bids fair to deny God more openly than any city in the south. Drunkenness can be effectually checked only by putting in force the laws of God, and here the traffickers in strong drink are more powerful than the magistracy, and openly defy the Legislature. Impurity can be stayed only by recognition of the Supreme as a holy God, and here indecency runs riot in defiance of the police. One great trade, wholesale and retail, has covered itself with infamy through pandering to the worst passions of mankind. There are honourable exceptions, but the majority of shops engaged in it are foul with impurity, and the majority of wholesale houses provide the means. In England, for centuries, one day in seven has been regarded as a day of rest—a day for the Lord. But here we display our wares and open our shops, and cater for public amusement with a lavish expenditure of labour and a reckless defiance of law. What is all this but proof that our acknowledgment of God is becoming feebler, that we are in danger of lapsing socially into the hardness and insolence of atheism! We need to be brought back again sharply to the evident truth that a universe without a presiding intelligence cannot be moral—Aut Deus aut Diabolus.

Possibly the gravamen of my charge is as heavy in this statement as in that attributed to me, but the incidence of it is different. The charge is that in Sydney we are disobedient to human laws, and that hence we bid fair to deny the Divine lawgiver, "more openly than any city in the south." I am, &c.,

JAMES JEFFERIS.

The French village of Ceillac, near Embrun, was almost entirely destroyed by fire. Two hundred and fifty persons, who lost all in the conflagration, were without shelter in the country, which was covered with snow. The damage to property is estimated at 700,000 fr.

The Borough Council of Randwick is calling for tenders for a loan of £10,000 for a term of 10 years, on debentures bearing interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum.

Our London cable news shows that the bank reserves had increased during the week from £14,836,000 to £14,426,000, and the proportion of reserves to liabilities from 39 per cent to 41⅞ per cent. The reduction of the public deposits from £12,860,000 to £9,286,000 is a marked feature due, of course, to the payment by Government of the quarterly dividends during the week. Some portion of the amount is doubtless represented in the increase from £24,090,000 to £25,096,000 shown in the figures under the head of other deposits. The position shows the money market as slightly weaker. Consols have advanced 5s. Colonial securities are about the same as last week, except Tasmanian, which have declined 20s., owing to the announcement of the new loan of £1,000,000. Copper has receded £2 15s., and Chili bars are quoted at £39 10s. Australian tin, at £94, has also given way 45s. per ton. The upward movement in pig iron has been checked, and the price has receded 6d. per ton. Glasgow warrants being quoted at 44s. 3d.

The fourteenth half-yearly report of the Federal Building Society, presented at the half-yearly meeting in Melbourne to-day, shows a profit of £11,167, balance from last half-year £1851, making a total of £13,018, which the directors propose to appropriate as follows:—Dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, £1000; carrying forward to next half-year £3018. The present value of loans is stated to be £665,060, the society having offices in Sydney and Adelaide. The total amount of the deposits is £452,299, and the paid-up capital £200,000.

From to-day's Government Gazette we copy the following general abstract showing the average amount of liabilities and assets of the banks named within the colony of New South Wales, taken from the several weekly statements during the quarter from the 1st January to 31st March, 1889:—

Mercantile of Sydney.—Liabilities: Notes in circulation, not bearing interest, £25,249 16s. 8d.; bills in circulation, not bearing interest, £951 3s. 8d.; balances due to other banks and branches, £87,666 15s. 9d.; deposits, not bearing interest, £500,818 7s. 5d.; bearing interest £1,066,315 17s. 6d.; total amount of liabilities, £1,681,002 0s. 7d. Assets: Coined gold and silver and other coined metals, £92,480 14s. 9d.; landed property, £129,612 4s. 3d.; notes and bills of other banks, £15,935 4s. 5d.; balances due from other banks, £5057 1s. 1d.; amount of all debts due to the bank, including notes, bills of exchange, and all stock and funded debts of every description excepting notes, bills, and balances due to the said bank from other banks, including £104,616 5s., average amount of New South Wales Government debentures, £1,865,983 [illegible] 5d.; total amount of assets, £2,109,068 12s. [illegible] Amount of the capital stock paid up at this date, £300,000; rate of the last dividend declared to the shareholders, 9 per cent. per annum; amount of the last dividend declared, £13,500; amount of the reserved profits at the time of declaring such dividend £119,724 3s. 7d.

New Oriental.—Liabilities: Bills in circulation not bearing interest, £2687 10s. 6d.; deposits—not bearing interest £24,381 15s. 9d., bearing interest £97,345 0s. 8d.—£121,726 16s. 5d.; total amount of liabilities, £124,414 6s. 11d. Assets: Coined gold and silver, and other coined metals, £25,019 19s. 1d.; notes and bills of other banks, £1186 1s. 8d.; balances due from other banks, £261 15s. 1d.; amount of all debts due to the bank, including notes, bills of exchange, and all stock and funded debts of every description, excepting notes, bills, and balances due to the said bank from other banks, £216,642 7s.; total amount of assets, £243,110 2s. 10d. In the Import markets to-day no transactions of importance came under notice. Buyers continue to purchase in small lines for immediate requirements only. Still, however, the effect of the great rainfall is apparent in the improved tone of the markets, consequent on the hope of better times to come. The flour market is steady. Quotations: Australian roller, £12 10s. to £13 10s., according to quality; New Zealand, at £11 10s. to £12; stone makes, Australian, £11 10s. to £12; and New Zealand, £10 15s. to £11. The market continues to be fully supplied with New Zealand wheat, with other shipments at hand. Further business in Tuscan at 5s., delivered on train. A moderately good demand is maintained for tea. About 137,000lb. was withdrawn from bond last week. As about 2,200,000lb. remains in bond, an equal reduction weekly until the beginning of August when the new teas may be expected, would leave little stock to carry over till next year. But probably it will be thought that last week's withdrawals were rather above the average, and may not be maintained. Next week an auction catalogue, comprising about 3000 packages, will be submitted for sale. Coffee is a trifle dearer, No. 1 Ceylon Plantation being quoted at 11½d. to 11¾d.; Barry's chicory, 2½d.; Epps' cocoa, 1s. 5½d. Prime currants are selling at 4½d.; old fruit at 4d.; elemes, new fruit, weak, at 5d.; and sultanas firm at the same figure. Ten tons of dried fruits withdrawn from bond during the week, present stocks being 1,214,943lb. Dates, 2½d. Dairymaid condensed milk, 6s. 4½d. to 6s. 6d.; Nestle's, 6s. 7½d. A second cargo of sugar for the Company came in last night. Stocks held by merchants are light, and the market is very firm at up to £27 for best white, from £23 to £24 for good yellows, and from £19 for low yellows. The English market has still an upward tendency; German beet having advanced 9d. per cwt., being now quoted at 18s. Fine table rice still fully supplied; bonded stocks of all descriptions are 1103 tons, a decrease of 88 tons for the week; fine table quoted at £12, and the lower grades from £11. Sago and tapioca, 3¼d. Pepper, white, 1s. 1¼d.; black, 8¾d. Rock salt is scarcely so firm, although 85s. is still asked, bonded stocks amounting to 1475 tons being the same as last week; bag salt also is without change in value; coarse at 80s., and fine 90s. to 95s. being the current market rates, and bonded stocks amounting to 7633 tons, being only five tons less than last week. The demand for fish has fallen away considerably. Tinned salmon still commands 8s. 7½d., which was paid for Alaska. Quarter sardines are less plentiful, and good brands readily command 3s. 6d., halves selling at from 6s. Herrings and other fish are without change in value on the week. All oilmen's stores also have been moved off in trade parcels at last week's rates, no alterations being quotable, and stocks generally ample of salad oils, mustards, pickles. Stearine candles are weaker, up to 6d. being asked for best brands. Malt is dull of sale, 6s. 9d. to 7s. 3d. may be quoted for large parcels. English hops, 1s. 9d.; Tasmanians, new, from 1s. 4d., inquiry being very limited, and the trade in brewers' materials generally very dull. The business done in liquids is on a comparatively limited scale; for ale the demand has declined. Best brands are worth 10s. 6d. quarts, and 7s. 3d. pints; others, from 7s. quarts, and 5s. 6d. pints; Pig stout, 9s. 9d. and 6s. 9d., quarts and pints respectively, the latter almost unprocurable; Foster's, Boar's Head, Dagger, and other brands, in moderate request. Hennessy's three-star brandy held for 48s. 6d. to 50s., in small lots, the stock still being very light. For single-star of the same brand, 35s. quoted. Not much doing in second-class brandy. Leading brands of whisky in moderate request. Burnett's Old Tom still very scarce, and held for 12s.; Geneva is selling at 11s. 6d. Rum has had more notice, some additions to bonded stock having been made during the week. In the metal market there has been rather more inquiry for galvanised iron and fencing-wire. Galvanised iron sold at £18 15s. to £19 5s. Sheet lead dull of sale at £17. Fencing wire in better request, at £9 15s. to £10 for No. 8, and £10 15s. to £11 for No. 10, according to brand. For tin plates there is very little demand, owing to the comparative stagnation of business with the meat-preservers; 16s. 7½d. to 16s. 9d. is quoted for I.C. cokes. There is hardly any inquiry for wire nails, which are still heavily overstocked, and 11s. is a full price. Muntz is weak at 8½d. Linseed oil dull of sale at 2s. 9d. to 3s. Kerosene from 10d. to 12d., according to test. Castor is being doled out at 4s. 3d. to 4s. 6d. China, 3s. 10d. Turpentine, 2s. 8d. There is very little doing in blasting powder; 6d. is the value of the best makes. Business noticed in Nobel's dynamite at convention prices. Woolpacks are selling at 1s. 10½d. to 1s 11d. Branbags are held for 5s. 6d., the market being very bare. Cornsacks, 5s. 10½d. 6s. 1d. Cement in large parcels quoted from 16s. to 16s. 6d.

Messrs. John Sanderson and Co. report having received the following cablegram from their London house, Messrs. Sanderson, Murray, and Co., dated 11th instant, viz.:—"Competition very brisk. Very large attendance of buyers. Combing merino advanced 5 per cent. Fine crossbred advanced 5 per cent. Coarse crossbred advanced a shade. Lambs, merino, and crossbred, demand good."

The steamer Ravenna arrived to-day from London, via Melbourne, with a general cargo valued at £17,300. The ship Lake Superior also arrived from Liverpool, with an assorted cargo valued at £7800.

The following was the Customs revenue received to-day:—

Spirits, £1957 8s. 6d.; wine (still), £60 15s.; wine (sparkling), £1; ale, porter, and beer (in wood), £204 12s. 6d.; ale, porter, and beer (in bottles), £373 6s. 3d.; tobacco and snuff, £138 6s.; tobacco (for manufacturing purposes only), £34 17s.; cigars, £188 8s.; tea, £238 3s. 9d.; coffee (raw), £152 6s. 3d.; sugar (unrefined), £8 9s. 7d.; dried fruits, £598 15s. 10d.; sarsaparilla (over 25 per cent), £5 13s. 4d. THE WOOL TRADE.

The tone of the London market at the sales now progressing continues very firm, one of the private cablegrams even reporting prices as having advanced ½d. to 1d. per lb. over the closing rates of February. Our own correspondent, wiring 6th instant, states that the colonial wool sales are proceeding, with indications of increasing strength. The advance is chiefly in fine greasy merinos. Both home and foreign buyers are competing with great spirit. The total number of bales catalogued to date amounted to 58,600. The number sold was 56,800. And on the 8th instant—"The tone of the wool market is hardening, especially for greasy merinos."

In view of the stock at present in and now nearing London being so considerable, it is ground for much satisfaction to find the position of the market so cheeringly referred to.

Should the same buoyancy be experienced in June, by the close of which series the great bulk of the season's production will have passed the hammer or gone direct into manufacturers' hands, the outlook for the September sales, at which only a very limited quantity can possibly remain to be offered, is also full of promise for shipments made late on in the season.

Writing with special reference to the series at present in progress, an esteemed correspondent thus remarks:—"The next sales are fixed to open on 2nd April, without limitation as to quantity, and it is estimated 400,000 bales will arrive in time. To date the fresh arrivals are 91,400 bales, of which quite 20,000 have gone forward direct. There will be the usual recess for Easter from 18th to 23rd April, both days inclusive. The consumption of wool in the provinces is very large, some of the factories working night and day, and the firmness with which the sales closed helps to uphold prices, but the tendency from the heavy quantities expected for the next two sales is rather to soften. Prospectively, however, no reasonable fear exists of any large accumulation of stocks as the year progresses. France and Germany have not bought so largely as usual, although they have been busy throughout, but reports from their manufacturing districts are not so bright as our own. The American demand, though not large, has exercised a strengthening influence all round."

United States Market.—Latest Boston dates are to 28th February. The market was then rather quiet, and what little change had taken place in prices was in buyers' favour. The American Wool Reporter of 14th February mentions that sales of Australian wool, consisting largely of combing, have been made to arrive, about 600 bales in all; 42c. represents the outside price for choice combing, and 37 to 38c. for less desirable lots. The quotation for clothing was 75c. to 78c. as clean cost, and for combing 80c. to 82c. A week later (21st January) the same paper states:—"After our usual thorough weekly canvass of this market we find it more difficult than for many months to record anything new or of special interest. The week has certainly been one of excessive dulness and therefore almost featureless. The manufacturers that have visited the markets have been few and far between, and those that have proved purchasers failed to take other than small parcels. Such a very quiet week implies that those who endeavour to effect sales must in some instances concede slightly from current quotations. The season of protracted dulness which has prevailed since the opening of the year now places the market in the buyer's favour, yet no decided break in prices has occurred, and we are unable to make any quotable change from last week's figures. Boston is the cheapest seaboard market in which to purchase wool at present. Australians have shared in the general dulness in the market, and the demand has been limited, yet they sell relatively better than other fleece wools, but not at outside quotations. Choice combing scoured is moving at 80c. and best clothing at 75c."

Latest quotations are—for greasy, choice combings, 39 to 42 cents; average combing, 37 to 40 cents; crossbred, 38 to 42 cents; and clothing, 36 to 38 cents, duty paid 10 cents.

Locally, there has been little doing, it being the off week. A good private inquiry exists, and some fair-sized parcels of scoured have changed hands at full rates. Very firm prices will, doubtless, prevail at the auctions which will be held on 15th, 16th, and 17th instant. The offerings thereat must necessarily be very limited, as the receipts of wool in town are now insignificant.

Exports.—One vessel only has cleared since our last, taking 1192 bales, as under:—

From Sydney.

Vessel.	Bales.
Ormuz (s.s.), April 6	1,192
Brought forward	384,090
From Sydney	385,282
From Newcastle	52,161
Total from New South Wales since July 1, 1888	437,443
Same period last season	383,266
Increase	54,177

Whilst New South Wales shows such a large increase, it is somewhat surprising that the whole increase for Australia and New Zealand does not exceed 8586 bales. The following are the exports from the various colonies, as given by Messrs. Goldsbrough, Mort, and Co. in their circular of 4th April:—

Colony.	1888-9.	1887-8.	Increase.	Decrease.
New South Wales	433,931	376,533	57,398	...
Victoria	318,604	334,349	...	15,746
South Australia	119,945	146,660	...	26,715
Queensland	81,083	74,504	6,579	...
West Australia	20,746	16,438	4,308	...
Tasmania	13,565	16,657	...	3,092
New Zealand	208,678	222,824	...	14,146
	1,196,551	1,187,965	68,285	59,699
	1,187,965	...	59,699	...
	8,586	...	8,586	...

The late heavy rains will no doubt have been sufficient to restore navigation on the Darling, and a large quantity of wool will be liberated in time to be included in this season's exports, which should swell the year's increase close on to 50,000 bales.

Freights.—Rates show no change, the quotations still being—By steamer, ⅜d. and ½d. for greasy and clean respectively; and by sailing vessel, ¼d. for greasy, and ⅜d. for clean, dumped or undumped.

Arrivals for the week amount to only 758 bales.

HIDE AND TALLOW SALES.

Mr. John Bridge reports: I again offered the best catalogue of the day, 2305 hides. A full attendance of buyers was present, and for sound qualities a splendid inquiry. Some substantial orders are on the market which are of great service. I cleared 2147 at auction and after sale, obtaining 3½d to 3¾d for best heavies (no extra heavies forward, would top 4d); heavies rated at 3d to 3¼d; medium weights, 2¾d to 3¼d; light, 2½d to 2¾d; faulty hides dull of sale at 2½d; yearlings rated to 7s 9d; calfskins to 3s 1d. Tallow advanced 10s to 20s per ton. I cleared 187 casks under splendid competition. Mutton, £22 5s to £22 15s; best beef, £21 10s to £22 7s 6d; good, £21 to £21 10s; medium, £20 to £20 10s; dark to £20.—[Advt.]

PRODUCE MARKET.—Friday.

This morning a limited supply of forage, comprising 12 trucks, and a fair quantity of wood were submitted at the Darling Harbour railway terminus. The auctions were moderately attended by the trade. As regards forage, the demand throughout the sales was animated, particularly for hay, which realised high figures. There was fair competition for wood. At the wharfs average consignments came to hand from Northern rivers, southern ports, and the neighbouring colonies, especially Adelaide and Tasmania. Trade was restricted to supplies only for the day's requirements. Circular Head potatoes again receded in value. Dairy produce, chiefly cheese and bacon, was in good demand. At Darling Harbour sales the following figures were obtained:—

Wood.—Fair consignments. Billet quoted at 8s to 10s per ton; bundle, 8s to 12s 6d; foot, 8s to 13s; bakers', 8s to 11s.

Hay.—Two trucks to hand. There was strong competition at firm values. Good oaten, 10s to 10s 1d per cwt.; medium kinds, 7s 7d.

Straw.—Nine trucks forward. Clean and bright, in bundles, was steady, and realised 4s 10d to 5s 4d per cwt.; other sorts were rather slack, 3s 3d to 4s 1d; oaten, 3s.

Chaff.—Only one truck of straw chaff received, which was disposed of at 4s 3d per cwt.

At the wharfs the wholesale quotations were:—

Maize.—Yesterday's arrivals from the northern rivers amounted to 5258 bags. Values of good lines ranged from 3s 2d to 3s 3d per bushel.

Oats.—Best feeding descriptions remain steady, at 3s 3d to 3s 5d per bushel; dark, from 2s 9d; Tartarian seed, 3s 4d to 3s 6d.

Bran unaltered, 1s 1d per bushel.

Pollard.—Moving off at 1s 3d to 1s 3½d per bushel.

Hay.—Rather smaller shipments from the Hunter River this morning than of late. Best dry green lucerne still ranges from £4 10s to £4 15s per ton; superior lots, to £5; other kinds, from £3 15s to £4 5s.

Chaff.—Stocks supplemented by consignments last night from the adjoining colonies. Steady demand prevails, owing to scarcity of supplies at Darling Harbour sales. Adelaide, £7 to £7 15s per ton; choice lines, £8; Victorian straw, £4 15s to £5 10s; oaten, £6 5s to £7 5s.

Onions.—A comparatively small shipment from Victoria last night. Market was dull. Quoted £14 per ton.

Potatoes.—Supplies are still arriving from Tasmania, 2706 bags being again received last night. Prices receded. Circular Head, £4 15s per ton; other sorts, from £4.

Butter.—Illawarra dairy kinds at 1s 3d to 1s 4d per lb.; factory-made, 1s 4d to 1s 6d; intercolonial packed, to 1s 2d.

Cheese.—Light stocks, and the demand was animated. Best colonial descriptions, 6d to 7½d per lb.; second qualities, 4d to 5d; New Zealand ranges from 6d to 8½d.

Bacon.—Hand-cured Southern moving off steadily at 8d to 10d per lb; machine-cured, 6d to 8d; roll bacon, 9½d; New Zealand, 10d; hams are quiet, 8d to 11d.

Lard.—The inquiry was active. Best, in bladders, 6d to 7½d per lb.; bulk, from 4d.

Eggs.—Small supplies. Northern river lines, 1s 9d to 1s 10d per dozen; Southern districts lots, 2s.

Poultry.—Good sorts are mostly inquired for, especially fowls and ducks. The former are 3s 9d to 4s per pair; latter, 3s 3d to 4s 9d; geese, rather difficult of sale, 5s 6d to 7s; turkeys, 8s 6d to 13s.

Meat.—Mr. H. Macnamara, of the Metropolitan Meat Market reports sales of bodies of beef at 2½d per lb.; forequarters, 2d; hind-quarters, 3d; mutton, 1½d to 2½d; lambs, in carcase, 5s to 8s; pork, 4d to 5½d. The Riverstone Meat Company report having sold 60 bodies beef, 2½d to 3½d; forequarters, 2d to 2½d; hind-quarters, 3d to 3½d; 600 bodies mutton, 1½d to 2d; lambs, 8s to 11s.

Fruit.—At George-street Market a fair supply of seasonable fruits was received from our various country districts, Queensland, Tasmania, and Adelaide. The bulk of the consignments were of apples, pears, and bananas. Business did not disclose much activity. Quotations are as follows:—Tasmanian apples, 5s to 10s per case; Queensland pineapples, 18s to 20s per case, or 8s per dozen; bananas, including Fijian and Queensland sorts, 2s 6d to 5s per bunch; peaches, late crop, 4s to 5s; pears, 10s to 15s; plums, 5s; passion fruit, 9d per dozen; quinces, 4s; grapes, Adelaide and Melbourne kinds, 8d to 9d per lb; pie melons, 3s to 5s per dozen; dried bananas, 6s per dozen; cocoanuts, 1s 6d per dozen, or 7s to 9s per bag.

STOCK, STATION, AND PRODUCE REPORTS.

Tallow.—Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, F. L. Barker, Goldsbrough, Mort, and Co., Limited, Brunker and Wolfe, Winchcombe, Carson, and Co., J. H. Geddes and Co., and Hill, Clark, and Co., report holding sales yesterday. 323 packages were offered, and 251 sold publicly. Strong competition was experienced both for shipping and local requirements, and a further advance in prices of 10s to 15s per ton was again reported. Quotations:—Best beef, £21 to £22 per ton; medium, £19 10s to £20 10s; best mixed, £21 10s to £22 10s; medium, £19 5s to £20 10s; inferior, £14 to £19; best mutton, £22 10s to £23.

Hides.—6303 were offered and 4612 sold at yesterday's auctions. Sales were weakened by the absence of shippers, consequently values were easier, especially for sloppy sorts, to the extent of about ⅛d to ¼d. Prices as follows:—Extra heavy, in good condition, 3½d to 3¾d per lb.; ordinary heavy, 2¾d to 3¼d; medium, 2¼d to 2¾d; light, 2¼d to 2½d, dry station, 2½d to 3½d; horsehides, 8s to 8s; calfskins, 9d to 3s 3d; yearlings, 2s 6d to 6s.

MARSUPIAL SKINS.

Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, report that at their auction sale on Friday there was no abatement of the strong demand for large and heavy well-cured gray kangarooskins, which are only available in small lots, and are eagerly competed for by purchasers representing English, American, and continental interests. Very large wallaroo and red skins command a fairly active inquiry, but prices obtained for these were greatly below those for gray skins. Smaller sizes were again taken by the local tanning trade. Quotations: Extra large weighty and superior skins, 90s to 106s; exceptional heavy sorts, to 125s; very large and good, 56s to 85s; ordinary large, 42s to 54s; medium, 30s to 40s; fair, 21s to 30s; small, 13s to 20s; very small, 2s 6d to 10s; largest and best wallabyskins sell readily as high as 20s; good, 9s to 12s; small to medium, 5s to 8s 6d; very small, 1s 6d to 3s; rock wallaby, in better demand, from 3s to 5s 6d, according to size; bear, lower in price, best worth 5s 6d to 7s; small to fair, 1s 6d to 5s; opossum, well-furred parcels are keenly sought after, 9s 6d to 13s 6d; good, 7s to 9s; fair, 5s to 6s; faulty, 2s 6d to 4s 6d.

Hair.—Horsehair, consisting of mane and tail in fairly active demand at 11d to 13d per lb.; cow, washed, 10d to 13d; stumps, 4d to 8d.

Horns and Bones.—Values of horns are scarcely so high as of late. Large and well cared for lots range from 25s to 37s per 100; exceptional lines to 42s; medium, 14s to 22s; small, 8s to 10s; tips, from 2s 6d. Bones: Shank worth £4 10s to £7 10s per ton; common bones, £3 15s to £3. Hoofs, £3 to £2 10s.

Leather.—At last Tuesday's sales the market was exceptionally dull, and the business transacted was limited to a very few lots of extra light dressed leathers. Heavy and medium sorts were quite unsaleable. As regards sole, shippers are not anxious to operate, even at a reduction on late rates. Harness lines again neglected. Quotations: Sole, heavy and superior, 9d to 10d; medium and light, 7½d to 7¾d; kip, 11d to 14d; cow tweed, 14d to 17½d; heavy, 12d to 15d; calf tweed, 21d to 24d; yearling tweed, 18d to 19d. Harness: Best, 11d to 12½d; medium, 10d to 10½d; bag, 9s to 10s 6d; bridle, 10s to 11d.

Store Stock.—The rainfall has strengthened the inquiry for store bullocks. Delivered on the Upper Hunter, they are worth 80s to 85s; and at Albury, 90s to 95s. From a like cause the demand for store sheep has been improved, and prices have been slightly hardened. Wethers, from 6s to 7s, according to age.

Stations.—It is probable that the rainfall will stimulate the inquiry, but no sales have yet been reported.

Crushing of the Band and Albion Gold-mining Company, Ballarat, 460 tons stone yielded 162oz. gold.

In our issue of the 11th instant a telegram from Broken Hill stated that the assay of ore from the Central Broken Hill Company was 8¼oz. This should have been 88¼oz.

BROKEN HILL, Friday.

In addition to other repairs to the Cornwell smelter it is found necessary to line the iron jackets with brick so as to keep the heat of them. This will reduce the capacity somewhat of the crucible, but will not, it is thought, materially affect the weekly amount of ore proposed to be treated. The smelter, it is said, will not be ready for work for another week. In reference to the discovery of ore in No. 1 shaft of the South mine, Captain Piper states that the ore consists almost of pure galena, but cannot say yet what extent there is of it. Several tons were raised to-day. At the North mine the hanging wall of the lode at the 300ft. level has been disclosed. The wall was met with 33ft. from the shaft, leaving 27 clear feet of lode stuff. Of this 8ft. are on the hanging wall and 4ft. on the foot wall. It is good, clean ore. Driving on the lode will commence in a day or two. The ore got at the south drive at the 200ft. level maintains its average. In a few days driving will also be commenced at the 100ft. level in the south shaft in a southerly direction. The stopes continue to look well, producing the usual supply of high-class ore. Sixty-five tons of silicious galena are sent to the concentrators daily. Fifty tons of concentrates have been despatched to Dry Creek during the week, averaging 22oz. of silver and 63 per cent. of lead. At the Junction mine the crosscut started to prove the width of the lode at the 300ft. level discloses 12ft. of solid ore, with no sign of the wall on either side. An improvement has taken place in the quality of the ore within the last day or two.

BLAYNEY, Friday.

A pennyweight of gold to a bucket was got to-day in M'Phillamy's new shaft. Payable gold is reported to have been got at Flanagan's Gully.

COBAR, Friday.

Mining matters in general continue quiet here. The heavy roads have delayed the delivery of the engine for the Cobar Quartz Crushing Company. Arrangements have been made with this company for the treatment of tons from the Occidental, following which trials from 100 other claims will be made. The battery of the Cobar Chesney Mine is nearly ready for work.

CROOKWELL, Friday.

Great complaints are made at the time wasted in starting the battery at the Markdale mine. It was thought that stone from the adjacent mines would be treated ere this. There is talk about buying another battery to crush for the public.

GUNDAGAI, Friday.

It is understood that the proprietor of the Jackalass estate, near Gundagai, intends throwing it open on certain terms to the mining community at an early date.

PURNAMOOTA, Friday.

There was great excitement in the township yesterday and to-day owing to the news of an alluvial gold find having leaked out. All who owned or could borrow conveyances rushed to peg out, besides which numbers came from Silverton and Broken Hill. The locality is distant six miles north, and about half a mile north of the Kingfisher mine, to which the Silver Age reporter paid a visit a few months back, and said a gold-bearing deposit might be expected. It appears that a 4¼oz. nugget and several smaller ones were found two months ago on the surface on a low hill bordering a small alluvial flat. This, the first alluvial find on the Barrier, will induce general prospecting. Reef gold has been found at Yancowinna, Para, and Mundi Mundi. There are also numerous claims all over the field, notably in the Purnamoota district, within a 10 miles radius of the present find, commencing with the May Flower, War Dance Group, and the Silver King Group, Golden Crest. This latter had its rush in 1884, whence stone assayed over 9oz. The company had treated several tons of stone; but owing to the selection being of too low quality, or an improper method of treatment, the results were poor. In the meantime funds became exhausted and work was stopped. There is nothing to justify a rush.

SILVERTON, Friday.

A contract has been let to sink the main shaft of the New Broken Hill Extended mine a further depth of 100ft., making a total of 250ft. At the Mount Robe Proprietary No. 2 tunnel is in 271ft., and No. 3 127ft. At present the rock is highly mineralised, being intermixed with small veins of carbonate lead and galena. There are good indications of being near the lode, and it is expected to strike it shortly. The new shaft is down 32ft. At 51ft. the west wall of the lode was struck in the south-east corner of the shaft. A few feet further will have to be sunk before it can be broken into. The lode appears to be underlying about one in six. At the Potosi mine No. 1 shaft sunk on the main lode is down a vertical depth of 117ft. A crosscut made to meet at 11ft. off the level lode was cut at 20ft. from the shaft, and a drive put in to the north for 64ft. The main shaft is down 146ft. The country is of a favourable nature both for working and for the existence of the lode. It is expected to strike the lode at about 200ft., and also shoots of ore from the 40ft. level of No. 1 shaft, when they will be opened out. A nugget of gold weighing 4¼oz. has been found about 20 miles from Broken Hill. The country where it was found is being vigorously prospected.

MANAGERS' REPORTS.

Broken Hill Block Silver-mining Company, Limited (by telegraph), April 10.—"No boring since last report. Engineer making complete overhaul of machinery."

Webb's Consols, Emmaville, New South Wales (by telegraph), April 10.—"No. 2 shaft 120ft. deep, still improving; 2ft. solid galena in bottom. Drive continues to improve. Lode not yet traversed in No. 4 shaft."

The Broken Hill South Extended No. 1 Silver-mining Company, No Liability, April 6.—During the past week the crosscut has been driven 4ft., total 175ft. The country passed through has been very hard.

Mount Sheba Gold-mining Company, Nundle, April 10.—The tunnel for tail race has been driven 15ft. for the week, which leaves 99ft. to drive. The ground is still hard. Head race: Three men are still employed on the Snowball race, and two are employed clearing timber off the claim for the last week. No. 1 dam: The late wet weather has prevented the contractor from making good progress. The No. 2 dam is now within 2ft. of running out of the bywash, and looks splendid, no leaks whatever. Other works progressing favourably.

King Solomon's Hill Gold Mine Syndicate, Barraba, April 8.—Work for last week: South drive at 65ft. level put in 4ft.; total length, 9ft. In face have now two reefs, one about 18in., the other 12in. wide. Whether two distinct reefs, or the old reef split with a horse, it is hard to say. April 10.—Since last report got loose fine gold in new drive. Reef, 1ft. wide; good footwall.

Giant's Den Tin-mining Company, Limited, April 6.—The men during the week have been driving on lode, but owing to foul air, could not make much headway, and to-day had to cease work altogether. Have tried various means to ventilate it, but found them useless, so to prevent further loss of time and future trouble shall commence a new shaft and connect it with the present workings at their deepest level. This will ensure perfect ventilation for at least 200ft., and then, if required, sinking and driving can go on simultaneously. The weather has turned fine again, and are still without sufficient water, so shall have to devote the time to the lode and keep the machinery, &c., in going order.

Broken Hill South Silver-mining Company, Limited, April 8.—Main engine shaft: The winze below the 250ft. level has been sunk 9ft. 6in., and is now down 35ft. 6in. The lode during the past day or two has improved in quality, as well as having opened out wider. No. 1 shaft: The winze below the 200ft. level is down 57ft., at which point have crosscut the vein, and find it to be 7ft. wide, carrying very fair quality galena ore. No. 1 trial shaft: This shaft is now down 49ft. 6in. below the 170ft. level, and is yielding similar class of ore as reported on last week. The 170ft. north drive has been extended 23ft. through kaolin and oxidised iron, carrying but very little silver value. The blocking-out face is now yielding carbonate ore of very good quality. Hauling shaft: This shaft is sunk 42ft. below the 100ft. level, and is now let on contract at £3 10s. per foot to sink the remainder of the lift. During the past week 10 tons 11cwt. of ore have been forwarded to Dry Creek, and 130 tons of ore have been sold to the Cornwall Smelting Company.

Broken Hill South Block 5 Mine, April 8.—Main engine shaft: This shaft is sunk 50ft. 8in. below the brace. The first set of bearers are being placed into position; on completion of which the shaft will be close timbered. Western shaft is down 28ft. 6in. from the surface and is now being prepared to receive timber.

The Little Gem Amalgamated Gold-mining Company, Moruya, April 12 (by telegraph).—"Reef south end of winze 6ft. 7in., gold showing freely."

M'Phillamy's Hill Gold-mining Company, Blayney.—Mr. A. A. Gallagher has received the following telegram from the manager at the mine:—"Ten feet payable wash; ½dwt. to the oil-can; 3ft. go about 1oz. to the load."

Webb's South Silver-mining Company, Limited, April 6.—The contractor has completed dressing shaft and cutting hitch holes for timber, and is now timbering.

The Lubra Silver-mining Company, No Liability, April 6.—Shifted poppet-heads, and erected same at north shaft, and laid down tramway to water level in underlie shaft. On the 4th commenced driving on the course of the lode eastward 6ft. above water level. Have driven 3ft.; the walls are well defined, but the formation is small at present, from 4in. to 7in., with veins of iron and galena running through it.

THOSE MARKETS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Our city fathers will shortly be issuing their invitations to the mayors and aldermen of the chief cities of Australia to the ceremonies in connection with the opening of the Town Hall. I trust before this important event takes place that the mass of festering rubbish known as the George-street Markets will be removed and the site improved as far as possible before the arrival of our visitors. The Government has done its part; let the aldermen, without further delay, do theirs.

ILLAWARRA LINE ACCOMMODATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I write to invoke the aid of your influential paper, in remedying an injustice to which travellers by the Illawarra Line are subject. I refer to the disgraceful accommodation afforded to second-class passengers. Why is it that no Yankee cars are run on this line? No doubt the Commissioners are short of rolling stock; but even so, why should all the cars be running on the suburban line? If it is possible to attach one second-class car to each train it would be a great boon. A great many of the travellers by this line are mechanics, and consequently are compelled to travel to and fro in their working clothes, many of them, especially iron-workers, &c., being unavoidably black. Of course, others employed in business in the city are compelled to pay certain attention to dress, and to be crushed in a compartment to hold 10 (and often with more), is unpleasant, to say the least. If, as I suggest, one car be attached to each train, it would enable business people to travel comfortably, having always noticed on the other line that mechanics, whose occupation is unavoidably grimy, always enter the old style of carriage. I would also draw attention to the dirty condition of the carriages on this line. They appear not to have been painted for years, and their very condition tends to make a certain class of passengers imagine that a little more dirt can make no difference. Hence, the seats in muddy weather bear the marks of dirty boots and the partitions are scrawled over with pencil, and in some cases cut in with words and sentences of a most disgusting character. Again, in reference to the vexed question of smoking. A lot has appeared lately from the smokers' point of view. I should like a word on the other side. In the old style of carriage it appears to be taken for granted the smokers may indulge whenever they please. It is true the officials at Redfern often warn smokers to desist, the result being that the pipe is taken out till the train starts, when it is all serene, and they enjoy their habit whatever others may do. By all means give smokers sufficient accommodation, as they certainly have cause for complaint in that respect. There are rules regulating (or should do) smoking. Why are they not enforced? I would suggest that notice be given that on and after a certain date the law will be rigorously enforced. The officials at Redfern, often seeing that more smoking accommodation is required, affix labels to the doors when there are several passengers inside, and to who, not noticing the change, complain of smoking, draw upon themselves some not very complimentary remarks. This way of labelling carriages for smoking when required causes them all to smell objectionably, and the floors to be offensive from the spitting of smokers. Whilst acknowledging the many improvements the Commissioners have and are having carried out, I think they only require their attention to be drawn to the matter to supply the remedy. I have enclosed my name and address, as also those of several of my fellow-travellers, who conjointly with myself are answerable for the above.

I am, &c., TRAVELLER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It is with some feeling of reluctance I appear in print as a public complainer, but having waited so long for a reformation as regards travelling accommodation on the Illawarra branch of railways, more especially since the inauguration of the revised railway management, utter disgust compels me to make known my feelings upon the above subject. The travelling public on this branch are subjected to a scandalous treatment in the shape of dirty, filthy carriages, more especially the second-class boxes, which are, as Mr. Eddy knows, far inferior to the third-class in England. Our cars are a disgrace to a civilised country, both internally and externally in appearance, and uncomfortable in accommodation. Our 7.25 a.m. train from Hurstville has not had a long second-class car on for months. People tripping and stumbling over each other getting in or out when being overcrowded shows the unsuitableness of these confined apartments. The cushions are apparently pitched into a seat regardless of fit, leaving a division of six or eight inches sometimes for the unfortunate occupant in the centre. I am sure if the cars were properly attended to they would last twice as long as regards renovations, and save the cost in painting, &c., which could be always kept clean, considering the highly-finished state they are turned out from the shops. I might say that a considerable amount of mismanagement still exists in the want of proper cars. I noticed the 7.45 this morning had three first-class cars, which arrived at Redfern with five passengers only, yet, when we reach St. Peters, all the seconds are overcrowded, and, if placed in the firsts, we are liable to have the difference demanded from us. Also, in reference to smoking, there are eight-tenths of the workmen who are smokers, without sufficient accommodation, and not the least notice is taken of either the bylaw or its liability. Men smoke all over the place—railway stations, carriages, anywhere, and no one opposes them, for any remonstrance is received with "mind your own business," or such like. If Mr. Eddy wishes to retain the good wishes of the travelling public he should study their comforts; and I hope his trip to Grafton on board ship will show him the difference between Government and private enterprise as to cleanliness, although we have a wide difference between the trams in that respect and the S. U. O. Company's 'buses. He would also provide notices in each carriage in reference to smoking, and provide detectives to guard against the damaging of railway property, it being shameful the way paintwork is scratched, and upholstery cut and torn, especially by boys going to school. Hoping I have not occupied too much space,

I am, &c.,

Hurstville, April 11. TRAVELLER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have been waiting for some abler pen than mine to write about what I consider a great injustice the residents of the Illawarra line are subjected to. The time-table is good, but not so the accommodation, for that is simply wretched. Sometime ago the railway authorities allowed us one American car—second class—but for some reason, known only to the powers that be, this concession has been withdrawn, and travellers on this popular and well-paying line have to herd together in miserable, dirty carriages, many of them minus windows. Surely Mr. Eddy can remedy this. Thanking you in anticipation,

I am, &c., A SUFFERER.

Musical Instruments.

MESSRS. BEALE AND COMPANY invite inspection of their latest shipments of the splendid HAPSBURG PIANOS. The new showrooms, which are admitted to be the handsomest in this Hemisphere, are filled with a complete range of these instruments, whose ever-increasing sale has been the most striking proof of their popularity throughout the Australian colonies. Fifty-two warehouses and shops are devoted to the sale of the HAPSBURG PIANOS exclusively. They are to be found in many thousands of happy homes in all parts of these territories, and always giving satisfaction. Governors, Bishops, Judicial and Legislative Dignitaries; musical authorities of the highest prominence; musical societies, and thousands of private persons well known in the respective districts have voluntarily furnished us with testimonials stating their hearty satisfaction with HAPSBURGS purchased from us. For some years we published selections from this tribute of praise, but the number of such certificates has become so great that we cannot adequately represent them in a few lines of extracts. But wherever you live there are neighbours whose names we can give possessing a HAPSBURG. We strive, by giving the best value, that their recommendation shall be in our favour.

The HAPSBURG PIANOS are made under our own constant supervision in Germany to our registered designs and of special construction.

There can be no questioning the fact that the Piano Trade of these colonies has undergone a complete revolution during the last five years; and to that desirable change certainly no firm has contributed more than Messrs. BEALE and COMPANY. During the time high prices continued the trade was held by a few, and hundreds of homes now rendered attractive by the glorious influence of music, scarce could dream of becoming the ultimate owners of the instrument which has done so much to cheer and to refine our modern domestic life.

When BEALE and COMPANY commenced business they had quietly gauged this condition of affairs in Australia, and they began operations on a plan which could alone work out successfully in a mammoth undertaking such as they proposed. With the Australian selling branch of their enterprise they resolved to combine the manufacture of the Pianos in Germany—the centre of the world's trade for that instrument. But the experts sent out here for the purpose of fully determining what was best fitted for colonial requirements, reported that it was essential to have a special make of piano to suit our climate—an instrument as different from those made for Europe, as Australia is different from the Old World. The result of this was the production of the STAUNCHEST PIANOFORTE of modern times—the iron-framed "Hapsburg." The instrument is regarded by the most capable experts of Europe as the PRODUCTION OF THE AGE, combining as it does every feature of the highest class instrument, with the maximum of strength and durability, and it was placed on the market at prices much under what other firms and manufacturers had previously demanded. Although it took almost endless trouble and long, patient labour to produce the design of the "Inimitable Hapsburg," yet once produced the demand grew so rapidly, and has become so great, that the enterprising originators are able to OUT-DISTANCE ALL COMPETITORS FOR BOTH QUALITY AND PRICE. The peculiar construction of the IRON FRAME, the supreme excellence of the WIRES, and the UNIQUE MOVEMENTS, have, with other factors, all contributed to this splendid success. No other instrument possesses to the same degree such RICH, FULL, CLEAR, BELL-LIKE TONES, so noticeable in the "HAPSBURG," especially in the higher grades; while STRENGTH, SOLIDITY, and IMPERVIOUSNESS to CLIMATIC INFLUENCES have been so well looked to that, whether on the coldest, bleakest spots of New Zealand, or our own Monaro Plains, or on the hottest of our Western and Northern areas, this WONDERFUL PIANOFORTE not only maintains but IMPROVES its tone, and consequent value, even after years of use. And it must continue so. The genius and experience of the mechanical world in this branch of art are embodied in this ONE INSTRUMENT—the INIMITABLE HAPSBURG—and the sales to-day give ample evidence of the repute in which it is held. BEALE and COMPANY have placed the "HAPSBURG" with THOUSANDS OF FAMILIES in Australia. Homes in the far distant back blocks, and homes in the cities are not only enlivened, but are made purer and better through the influence of its music. The firm resolved to do a large trade by selling these SUPERIOR INSTRUMENTS AT PRICES AND ON TERMS demanded for the lower grades, and success has crowned their efforts. They do far the largest business and hold the largest stocks in the colonies. They give their BEST EFFORTS to suit the CIRCUMSTANCES and REQUIREMENTS of every customer, and they supply for CASH OR ON AN EASY SYSTEM OF TIME-PAYMENT which they have made peculiarly their own. The correspondence department is of itself a huge undertaking; every mail brings its burden of letters. From the great landowner, from the rich squatter and the astute merchant, they come. And they come, too, from clergymen, from doctors, and solicitors, from civil servants, and from the struggling selector, the tradesman, the working-man; for fathers and mothers of every grade and class now recognise the influence which music exerts for good in the life of the home. And every writer receives courteous attention and immediate response.

HAPSBURG
Double
Iron Framed
PIANOS

possess the following advantages:—

1st.—The WIRES are of a very high quality and intensely sensitive; their vibrations, reverberated by a sounding board of special construction, are clear and bell-like, instead of the muffled, tin-kettly, or metallic sounds so common in cheap English and French Pianos.

2nd—Being double-oblique, the strings are of a greater length and fuller tone than in the old straight-strung pianos.

3rd—The action is perfect check repeater.

4th—All the Hapsburg Pianos are Trichord.

5th—They are all Seven Octaves.

6th—They have consolidated Iron Frames of great strength, thus resisting the rapid mutations of a humid tropical climate, and requiring tuning only at long intervals.

7th—They oppose obstacles to the inroads of cockroaches, silver-fish, mice, &c. They have wire gauze backs, which cannot be eaten by vermin, and other unique improvements devised for similar ends.

8th—The felts are clenched on the hammers, instead of being fastened by glue, as is the case with nearly every piano except the Hapsburg.

9th—They have brass or nickel-faced Rest Planks, instead of the old-fashioned perishable style.

10th—Rust is guarded against, wherever possible, by the substitution of bronze for other metals.

11th—The outer cases are handsome in design, and of durable beautiful woods. They can be had in Walnut, or in Walnut and Gold, or in Ebony and Gold.

12th—No matter in what part of the colony you live we will supply you with a Hapsburg Piano upon easy terms of payment. No charge will be made for packing or packing cases.

"THOSE BEAUTIFUL PLUSHES."

This remark has been made more than once by visitors to our store. Since Monday last, when we opened some twenty-five cases, not a few ladies have halted in admiration as they passed through, beginning with one little look and ending in "yards enough" of a favourite shade for some purpose or another.

PLUSHES are as fashionable as ever this season, and to meet the demand we have imported very largely; largely even for us, whose importations have, during the past year or two, far exceeded those of many wholesale houses.

THIS SEASON we offer, in addition to value that is undeniable, a most delightful show of colours, for it has been the aim of our buyers to omit nothing good and to exclude everything bad or doubtful. And they have well succeeded. Probably a show of colours like that presented in our this season's PLUSHES was never before seen this side of the line of demarcation known as the Equator.

TEMPTATION comes in winning guise. Sometimes it is impossible to resist, at others the inclination to yield is very strong. Anyone honouring our PLUSHES with a visit will find it a hard matter to set aside such seductive inducement as they offer, and a task of no mean difficulty to fly away. For the guidance of our lady friends, we quote a few Shades:—

BLUE, MARINE, ROYAL, SAPHIR, GENDARME, COQUELICOT, CARONBIER, TERRA COTTA, CHANDRON, KAIMAN, TABAC, MOREDORE TABAC, MARRON, BISMARCK, EVEQUE, PANSEE, WINE, CASTOR, BEIGE, ARDOISE, CUIR, COLENS, COQ-DE-ROCHE, PALISSANDRE, ALICANTE, HAVANNE, ALGERIEN, HELIOTROPE, CITRON, FOIN, ECRU, SALMON, ROSE-DE-BARRI, OLD GOLD, and a thousand others.

Specially we desire to point out New Shades in GREEN, which, all the world knows, is the season colour. To those who propose to go in for "THE WEARING OF THE GREEN,"
we beg to introduce the following quite New Shades, and which are eagerly sought after by the leaders of fashion in the old world:—

FAVOURITE GREENS
as follows:—
NEW OLIVE, MOUSSE, FLORENTINE.

RESEDAR, VIEUX-VERT,
PISTACHE.

APPLE GREEN,
in a score of tints.

FIG GREEN,
deliciously diversified.

MOSS GREEN,
a dozen times repeated in a dozen different shades.

A WOMAN'S WILL.

Dip the Atlantic Ocean dry with a teaspoon; twist our heel into the toe of your boot; make subscribers pay the printer; send up fishing-hooks with a balloon, and fish for stars; get astride a gossamer, and chase a comet; when the rain is pouring down, like the cataract of Niagara, remember where you left your umbrella; choke a mosquito with a brickbat; in short, prove all things considered impossible to be possible, but never attempt to coax a woman to say she WON'T when she has long ago made up her mind to say she WILL GO

To the south of the hotel is BYWONG HALL, a large cottage containing 10 rooms and offices, with flower garden in front and vegetable garden at rear.

THE CINDER TRACK and the 150 YARDS RUNNING GROUND show by the turnstiles that thousands of people PAY for ADMISSION to see the running in the course of the year, and the HANDICAPS run at Sir Joseph Banks at intervals during the year are the means of returning a large income to the proprietor, which could be almost doubled by running handicaps at shorter intervals during the year.

SIR JOSEPH BANKS is also a favourite spot for PUBLIC PICNICS, among which ST. PATRICK'S may be mentioned as always having been held there.

this sale presents the opportunity of purchasing an established industry capable of very much larger development to meet the growth of the colony, now in high repute, in all the capitals of the world. To business men it is a well-known fact that the more you keep an establishment of this character in full swing, so the ratio of profit increases, and with the appreciation of the known capabilities of our matchless climate and soil and scope for industry, whereby a steadily increasing stream of immigration may be expected to our shores.
THIS MULTIFORM MANUFACTORY has within it the possibility of making for its persevering owners a mint of money. To the English capitalist this chance offers a new field for his enterprise.

AN INVENTORY of the buildings and machinery, &c., as also of the stock, will be prepared, and available for inspection at our rooms. Meanwhile, the firm on the spot will be happy to afford visitors every facility and information towards a thorough viewing of the estate, &c.

COMPOSITORS.
BE TRUE TO YOURSELVES AND YOUR FELLOW-TRADESMEN.
DO NOT TURN BLACKLEG-NON-UNIONISTS, BY GOING TO BRISBANE.
Do not forget that in Sydney less than 16 years ago the standard wage was £2 10s per week of 50 hours, instead of £3 per week of 48 hours, as at present; and that the increased rate was brought about ONLY by trades-unionism, without which you would be earning perhaps less than £2 per week. In Brisbane five years ago the wages ranged from 35s to £2 10s for week of 50 hours; at the present time £3 per week of 48 hours is the ruling rates.
Understand your position: If the Brisbane Master Printers once get you to sign a document stating THAT YOU WILL NEVER JOIN A TRADES UNION (which is a stipulation in the agreement now being offered for a term of six months), you will be at their mercy at the end of the term, and they will pay you only what they choose, as you will have no society to stand by you in your hour of trouble. This is the reason of their desire to break up the Queensland Typographical Association.
Beware of the advertisements appearing at different addresses.

GIVE THE BOYS A CHANCE.
The attention of parents and guardians is called to the advice given by Charles Reade, the celebrated author, in his work on "The Coming Man." He says, "I advise parents to have their boys taught shorthand and typewriting. A shorthand writer who can typewrite his notes will be safer from poverty than a Greek scholar." Many educated youths who have learned shorthand and typewriting have attained to the lucrative position of secretary, who would otherwise have had to plod along for years as mere junior clerks.
The REMINGTON has also been the means of opening up a new avenue of employment for educated ladies. In London many ladies of good connections have opened offices for the practice of typewriting, and are doing well. In Sydney and Melbourne, also, several ladies have embraced the typewriting profession with beneficial results, and the demand for their services is slowly but surely increasing.
Parents should purchase a machine for the use of their family, so that when their boys and girls are ready to enter the business world, they will have become expert operators, and will be able at once to command good salaries.
The REMINGTON (which obtained a first-class award at the Melbourne Exhibition) may be seen in operation and purchased at the offices of Messrs. F. LASSETTER and CO., Limited, George-street; also of STOTT and HOARE, Instructors in Shorthand and Typewriting to the classes established by the New South Wales Railway Commissioners, Instructors in Typewriting to the St. Philip's Grammar School, Church-hill, and Sole Importers for Australia of the Typewriter, 1, Victoria Arcade, and 5, Victoria-chambers, Sydney, and at Melbourne.
